Allies Strike Back, Forbid Rail Traffic To Red Zone

Berlin Police Chief Ousted in Defiance Of Soviet; Western Election Set Sept. 1

Berlin, July 26 (AP).—The United States and Britain struck back tonight at the Russian land blockade of Berlin. They banned all railway traffic into and out of the Soviet zone of Germany.

Officially, the Anglo-American action was ascribed to "technical difficulties." That was the phrase the Russians used in explaining why they stopped all overland traffic to Berlin. American and British spokesmen, however, admitted their joint action constituted "economic sanctions."

The Western Allies also took the offensive on another front. They reached an agreement on final plans for a unified government of western Germany. The agreement, between German political leaders and the military governors of the United States, British and French zones, calls for the election of a constitutional assembly by September 1.

Meanwhile, the decks were cleared in Berlin for a new East-West political test of strength on a brand new issue. It developed after the city's anti-Communist city government ordered the dismissal of Police President Paul Markgraf. He was appointed by the Russians in 1945. The city government accused him of purging the police force of "several hundreds" of policemen and many high police officials "in reckless disregard of all human consideration."

The Russian reaction to Markgraf's firing came swiftly. Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, the Soviet commander, sent a letter to Berlin's mayoress, Frau Louise Schroeder, ordering the immediate dismissal of Herr Stum, deputy police chief and head of the police administrative section. Kotikov, who called himself "military commander of Berlin" in the letter although he is only commander of

20 Skymasters Ready To Take Off Today

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Westover Air Force Base, Mass., July 26.—Two squadrons totaling 20 Skymaster C-54 planes will take off from here Tuesday morning to join the Berlin airlift, pilots here said tonight.

The big craft, which carry triple crews, from the Eleventh and Fourteenth Military Air Transport Service Squadrons and will be the first of eight such squadrons to depart for the Berlin mission this week, it was learned. Six other squadrons of the MATS Skymasters will depart Tuesday or Wednesday on the Atlantic flight, pilots said.

Brig. Gen. Archie J. Olds, jr., new commander of the MATS, who has just arrived here, and his public information officers declined comment and referred all inquiries to Air Force headquarters in Washington. However, the 20 big planes, ready to depart, were seen by this reporter upon his return from Europe after observing the Berlin airlift in operation. Pilots confirmed their destination.

Maj. Gen. William N. Tunner, deputy commander of MATS, will arrive here Tuesday to go out with the first flight. An air transportation expert, he will take command of the Berlin airlift under Lieut. Gen. Curtis LeMay, commander of the Air Forces in Europe. Tunner commanded the lift over the Himalaya "hump" during the war.

Departure of the eight squadrons will end for the time being all MATS cargo flights to Europe.

U. N. Suspends Efforts to Curb Armaments

Committee Talks Fail And Issue Now Goes Before Assembly

Lake Success, July 26 (AP).—United Nations attempts to cut the world's armies and guns virtually collapsed today.

The issue, another battle between Russian and the Western powers, is certain to go before the U. N. Assembly in Paris on atomic controls.

By a 9-to-2 vote, the working committee of the U. N. Commission on Conventional Armaments decided in effect there is no use talking about regulating and reducing armed forces and armaments until Russia and the other big powers agree on a U. N. police force, the atom is controlled, and peace treaties are made with Germany and Japan.

The majority was made up by the United States, Britain, France, China, Colombia, Syria, Argentina, Canada and Belgium.

Russia and the Soviet Ukraine voted against the majority.

Delegates meanwhile are laying plans for a full debate on the arms and atomic issue in the Assembly.

The resolution approved today—originally offered by Britain—listed these conditions for confidence and security necessary for an effective system of regulation and reduction of armaments and armed forces:

1. Establishment of the U. N. police force outlined in the U. N. Charter. This has been stymied by continuing disagreements between Russia and the other four members of the Big Five—the Unted States, France, China and Britain.

2. International control of atomic energy. The U. N. Atomic Energy Commission suspended in May efforts to agree on control of the atom. Russia and the others disagree here also.

3. Conclusion of peace settlements with Germany and Japan which will prevent them from being aggressors in the future.

Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, put in a new resolution calling for a general reduction of arms and armed forces, the prohibition of atomic weapons and destruction of existing atomic bombs.

The committee adjourned without voting on the Russian proposal.

Miller to Enter Fight For Virginia Governor

Richmond, Va., July 26 (AP).—Col. Francis Pickens Miller of Charlottesville, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor in next year's primary.

This brings the number of candidates to three and assures a fight between the dominant State Democratic organization and anti-organization factions.

500 to Lose Homes for New Building

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Approximately 500 persons who live on the northeast border of Capitol Hill eventually will have to find new homes to clear a site for the new Senate Office Building.

Official word on the proposed mass eviction came yesterday from David Lynn, architect for the Capitol, who has asked the United States Attorney General to condemn all properties in the half block which includes First st. and the east sections of B and C sts. ne., before next May 1.

By street numbers, the condemned property includes numbers 100 through 130 B st. ne.; the entire block of First st. between B and C sts., and numbers 100 through 125 on C st. ne. In addition, 137 C st ne. will be taken over to open what is now a blind alley in the western half of the block.

Will Pay "Reasonable" Price

In his announcement yesterday, Lynn left the way open for negotiation by the property owners if they wish to sell at what he would term a reasonable price. If prices offered are unreasonable, condemnation proceedings will be instituted, he said.

This is one of the first steps necessary for completing a $20,600,000 Senate Office Building which would relieve overcrowding.

"Slum's Row," as First st. is now known, and Schott's alley, one of the city's worst slum centers, will pass into oblivion when the site is cleared.

District officials estimated Washington will lose $10,000 a year in tax income when the Federal Government takes over the land. Assessed value of the properties is about $500,000.

Houses which must go before construction can start are predominantly rooming or boarding houses. Former Senator Robert R. Reynolds, son-in-law of the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, is present owner of 100 B st. ne.

Senate Doorkeeper Unworried

The Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church, Inc., which has headquarters at 100 Maryland ave. ne. owns four lots on the B st. side of the block.

The Second Church of Christ, Scientist, of the District of Columbia owns three lots on the northwest end of C st. ne., and parishioners had planned to erect a new church there.

Residents of the area, who have known for some time that they faced eventual eviction from their homes, took news of the Government's plans calmly.

Samuel P. Griffin, owner of the property at 211 1st st. ne., and for the past 32 years a doorkeeper for the Senate, had a typical reaction. "If the Government wants the property, it certainly has a right to take it. I don't know where

District Guard Reaches Camp Without Gear

Messkits, Uniforms, Boots Flown There To Ease Emergency

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Arrival of a National Guard C-47 cargo plane at Camp Pendleton, Va., last night assured District recruits training there that they would be fully equipped for a dawn attack on the chow wagon, if nothing else.

The plane, dispatched by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard, in answer to a complaint from Col. Charles M. Myers, training instructor, carried 1000 pounds of messkits, boots and uniforms. Piloted by Col. George B. Bilby, who had been scheduled to take the plane up anyway on a regular training flight, the craft landed near Pendleton at 8:20 p. m. about 1½ hours after leaving Andrews Field.

"We now have the bare essentials," commented Myers following arrival of the "relief" shipment. Myers, a training officer attached to the Second Army, is on "loan" to the Guard.

More than 200 of the 734 enlisted men sent to Camp Pendleton, Virginia Beach, for two-weeks training, arrived without "even the minimum equipment requirements," according to Myers.

Not only was messgear missing, Colonel Myers complained over the telephone to Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, guard commander, but scores of the men reported without proper uniforms and combat boots.

The snafu was termed "an utter failure of supply" by the Second Army officer.

Traveling with the cargo were Maj. Fletcher F. Bernsdorff, District Guard supply officer, and Maj. Paul K. Bailey, Guard assistant adjutant general, who has been instructed to investigate and report back to General Cox today.

Colonel Myers also called Second Army headquarters at Fort George G. Meade, Md., with a request for aid. The Second Army is responsible for the training of the guardsmen.

A spokesman for the Second Army said the message was relayed to the supply officer at Fort Story, Va., who in turn sent it to the United States Property and Dis-

France Gets New Cabinet Under Marie

Week-Old Crisis Ends as Socialist Objections Are Finally Dropped

Paris (Tuesday), July 27 (AP). Premier Andre Marie announced last night the formation of a new French cabinet and presented its members early today to President Vincent Auriol.

Marie, a Radical Socialist, had to win over the Socialist Party before forming his government and ending a week-long political crisis. During that time the nation was without a government.

The new cabinet, like its predecessor, contains no Communists and is made up of members of parties who favor the cause of the Western Allies.

The only major change from the eight cabinets France has had in the last three years is the absence of Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, who has represented France in all major international conferences since 1945.

Bidault was dropped and replaced as foreign minister by Robert Schuman, the outgoing premier, whose cabinet resigned July 19 and precipitated the crisis. Since Schuman is a Popular Republican (MRP) and a party colleague of Bidault, no change in French foreign policy was seen as a result of the switch.

Marie, a moderate, chose prewar Premier Paul Reynaud as finance minister. This fact worried the Socialists, who feared Reynaud would pursue a capitalistic line.

The Socialists, therefore, were hesitant until the last minute about approving Marie's cabinet list and participating in the government.

The new cabinet is made up of 28 men—19 ministers and nine secretaries of state. Five Radical Socialists, including Marie, were named to ministries, six MRP members, six Socialists and two Independents.

Following is a list of the cabinet members selected by Marie and approved by leaders of the parties that gave the Radical Socialist Premier a vote of confidence in the National Assembly Saturday:

Vice Premier—Leon Blum, Socialist;
Vice Premier—Pierre Teitgen, Popular Republican (MRP);
Commerce and Industry—Robert Lacoste, Socialist;
Agriculture—Pierre Pflimlin, MRP;
National Education—Yvon Delbos, Radical-Socialist;
Reconstruction—Rene Coty, Independent Republican;
Colonies—Paul Coste-Floret, MRP;
Public Works—Christian Pineau, Socialist;
Labor—Daniel Mayer, Socialist;
War Veterans—Andre Maroselli, Radical Socialist;
Justice—Robert Lecourt, MRP;
Health—Pierre Schneiter, MRP;
Minister of State—Henru Queuille, Radical Socialist;
Minister of State—Paul Ramadier, Socialist;
Foreign Affairs—Robert Schuman, MRP;
Interior—Jules Moch, Socialist;
Armed Forces—Rene Mayer, Radical Socialist;
Finance and Economic Affairs—Paul Reynaud, Independent Republican.

Charles Lussy, president of the Socialists' parliamentary group, said his faction agreed unanimously, with 12 abstentions, to take part in the cabinet. They voted, 46 to 21, however, to accept Reynaud, prewar rightist Premier, as finance minister.

Truman Orders End Of Bias in U. S. Jobs And Armed Service

Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday set up a fair employment practices system for Government employment and at the same time established a committee to secure "equality of treatment and opportunity in the armed services."

The President by executive order established a seven-member Fair Employment Board within the Civil Service Commission to put into effect an employment policy "without discrimination because of race, color, religion or national origin."

In addition, he made the head of each department "personally responsible" to see that the policy is carried out, and directed that a Fair Employment Officer be named within each department.

Acting as President and Commander in Chief, Mr. Truman also created an advisory committee within the "President's Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services."

This committee, advising the armed services, he directed, is authorized to examine into rules, procedures and practices of the armed services and make recommendations to the President and the Secretaries of Defense, Army, Navy and Air.

The Armed Services Advisory Committee, he said, may summon witnesses from the armed services or executive departments and agencies and order the production of documents.

The President's order concerning the armed forces did not specifically call for an end to segregation among American troops, although legislative action to achieve this purpose was requested by the President's Committee on Civil Rights, October 29, 1947.

Nevertheless it was the armed services order which touched off furious denunciation from the Solid South. Most Southerners agreed with a spokesman for the Civil Service Commission who said that antisegregation rules had been in force within the Civil Service for years and the new order would have little effect.

The President's unheralded action was taken on the eve of his appearance before the special session of Congress today when he is expected to advocate passage of the poll-tax-repeal and the anti-lynching bills.

It followed by less than 24 hours the adoption in Philadelphia of the platform of Henry Wallace's Progressive Party which called for an end of discrimination and segregation in the armed services and in

CTC Reverses Stand on Fares After Hearing

Holtzoff Ruling Forces Transit Firm to Honor 13c D. C.-Virginia Rate

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Capital Transit Co. reversed its stand on the Virginia commuter rate yesterday and agreed to continue honoring the joint-fare tickets.

After a District Court hearing, the local transportation company sent out orders revoking a previous decision to step out of the joint-fare system at 12:01 this morning.

At the hearing, Justice Alexander Holtzoff decreed "tentatively" that the Interstate Commerce Commission fare set at 13.3 cents per one-way ride was correct. This is the toll between any point in Washington and the Pentagon, the Washington National Airport, the Air Force Annex and the Navy Annex in Arlington. CTC's share of this joint rate is 5.83 cents.

Capital Transit insists it is entitled to 10 cents a ride or $1.50 for a weekly pass from all its riders, no matter what the destination. If the rider is Virginia bound, says CTC, he should pay an extra fare to the company carrying him to Virginia.

Under this theory, the 17,000 commuters involved would have to pay 20 cents to get to work each day.

Capital Transit's theory is that the Public Utility Commission is the proper body to set the rate. They asked the court to decide the matter.

Justice Holtzoff said he was bound by Supreme Court decisions saying that ICC had the right to set fares in cases of this kind. He emphasized that any order he might make was only preliminary and is effective only until the case is heard on its merits.

But, said Justice Holtzoff, "Capital Transit is caught between the upper and nether millstones."

He said that if the local company obeyed either the ICC or the PUC order it was placed in jeopardy if it turned out that its decision was wrong. Therefor, he ruled, he would grant an injunction to keep the PUC from penalizing the company but would not enjoin the ICC.

The Capital Transit Co. declined to accept his offer after the PUC said it did not intend to penalize the utility firm for obeying the ICC fare.

There remains a question as to whether a one-judge court or a three-judge court is required to decide a case of this kind. To reinforce its position the CTC filed for a three-judge court

D. C. Pay Rise Moves Begun In Congress

Rees Introduces Bill at Opening For $330 Increase

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Prospects for a $330 pay raise for the District's 17,000 municipal employes brightened yesterday as a result of three actions on Capitol Hill:

1. A bill was introduced in the House to give classified District workers the same wage boost already granted Federal civil service workers.

2. Proponents of a sales tax for the District, balked by filibuster in the last session, prepared a new drive for a levy on retail purchases. The tax would be used chiefly to cover the cost of an increase in pay for local government employes.

3. A House leader indicated that if other means failed, he would seek a Federal loan to the District so that there would be funds available for the pay raise.

Less than an hour after the House gathered in the first meeting of the special session of Congress, Representative Edward H. Rees (R., Kans.), chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, introduced a bill granting a $330 a year cost-of-living increase to the District's classified Government employes.

The measure, in effect, would eliminate the Cain amendment from the Federal pay increase bill adopted by the last session of Congress. The amendment, introduced by Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) chaiman of the District Committee's revenue-raising subcommittee, blocks District employes from participating in the pay raise unless and until adequate funds are raised to meet the additional six million dollar a year cost of operating the local government.

The House already had passed a revenue-raising bill, one which combined a 2 per cent sales tax with a high-level income tax, as a means of meeting the increases. But on the Senate side, the sale tax was filibustered to death by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), who announced that though he favored the pay raise, he was unalterably opposed to raising the funds by taxing the "little people."

The bill introduced by Representative Rees yesterday would directly affect only 8000 District Government workers, those designated as "classified employes." His measure would not in itself help

Reconvened Congress to Get Truman Ideas Today

Legislators Await Program; Filibuster Seen as Southern Senators Caucus

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The hot and bothered Eightieth Congress reassembled yesterday with its fingers crossed as President Truman completed an 11-point legislative challenge for personal delivery today.

A trio of issues in the President's program, price control, housing and civil rights, touched off a preliminary political skirmish but Republican leaders issued a temporary "hold-fire" order.

All it amounted to was an overnight truce. Legislatively, anything is likely to happen following Mr. Truman's appearance before a joint session at 12:30 p. m. today.

Southern Filibuster Likely

A Southern Democratic filibuster, to end all filibusters, seemed the most likely early development as Mr. Truman decided to push his party's civil rights plank.

The Senate's routine opening was all over in 11 minutes. But House Democrats and Republicans for an hour and 50 minutes had it hot and heavy over who was to blame for high prices and short housing.

In these other developments:

1. Republican leaders held a round of conferences without reaching any decision on either the length or subject matter of the session. A two-House GOP high command huddle, and a later Senate Republican Steering conference, agreed to let the President cast the first stone.

Southern Senators Organize

2. Nineteen of the Senate's 22 Southern Democrats met and organized for what Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia, described as "a fight to the limit of our ability" against anti-poll tax, anti-lynch or FEPC legislation. All three bills are on the Senate calendar and a simple motion will touch off a filibuster blocking any other Senate action for weeks.

3. President Truman conferred with Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.), his vice presidential running mate, and other top House and Senate leaders, on the contents of his message. Later the White House made public a "score card for the special session," disclosing the 11 measures Mr. Truman will underline in his message.

Anti-Inflation Bill First

An anti-inflation bill led the list. Details were not disclosed but the President was reported ready to ask for controls on meat and other "selected" items, without reviving price ceilings generally.

Other measures on the program, mostly gleaned from last session's unfinished business:

The Senate-passed Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, now blocked in the House Banking and Rules Committees.

A minimum wage increase from 40 to 75 cents.

The Senate-passed Federal-aid-to-education bill, now in the House Labor Committee.

Expanded social security coverage and benefits.

Reform of Federal pay scales.

A civil-rights program.

A new displaced-person bill removing alleged discriminations against Jews and Catholics in the act passed last session.

A 65-million-dollar loan for completion of United Nations headquarters in New York.

Senate ratification of the international wheat agreement.

District Officer Injured Slightly In Plane Crash

Maj. Harry G. Howton, 30, of 1031 N. Manchester st., Arlington, suffered minor injuries last night when he was forced to crash-land his P-51 fighter plane on a small private airstrip near Bristol, Va.

Howton was admitted for treatment about 9 p. m. at King's Mountain Hospital, Bristol, according to Brig. Gen. B. M. Hovey, commander of the Army air base at Bolling Feld.

Howton, who is attached to the operational requirements division of the Military Air Transport Service, was on a training flight, returning to Bolling from Birmingham, Ala., when the plane developed engine trouble near Bristol.

Even the Lawyer Is Baldish

Baldheaded Jurist Backs Ban On 'Hair-Growing' Scalp Rub

A bald-headed jurist argued the merits of a hair-growing scalp rub yesterday with a bald-headed lawyer while eight bald-headed spectators listened intently in District Court.

The final ruling—

"If there was a preparation that really grew hair, there wouldn't be any baldheads."

This sage opinion was given by Justice Alexander Holtzoff, who bears a quarter-moon of hair around his judicial pate. He gave it to Attorney Louis Lebowitz, who boasts a half-moon.

Lebowitz brought suit to set aside a fraud order against the La-San Laboratories of Yeadon, Pa. They make the HHL Scalp Rub.

Postal authorities have impounded all mail addressed to the laboratories or to the operator, Max Levinsky, described as partly bald himself.

As Lebowitz argued heatedly, Justice Holtzoff stared at the very high forehead of the attorney. Finally Lebowitz could stand it no longer.

"Your honor, I admit I don't use scalp rub, but I'm satisfied with my lot. As a matter of fact, I now would rather comb my hair with a towel than with anything else," he said.

"I was wondering about that," said the jurist.

Lebowitz said there was no proof that the HHL rub didn't grow hair. It contained sex hormones, Lebowitz said. He added that he had an unsolicited testimonial stating that it had caused a man's hairline to reach an all-time low.

Lebowitz admitted he didn't know for sure that it was a bona-fide hair-grower.

"Oh, well, your client should have found out whether it could grow hair before he put it on the market," answered the jurist.

He upheld the fraud order, but said Levinsky should get his personal mail.

Field Too Congested

Board of Trade Backs Move To Oust Military at Airport

The Washington Board of Trade yesterday added its weight to the move to oust military operations from the Washington National Airport.

President Leon Chatelain, jr., announced the action following a special meeting of the organization's board of directors.

The directors, Chatelain said, indorsed as Trade Board policy a recommendation of its aviation committee that the Board of Trade "take steps with appropriate authorities to remove all military operations, equipment, personnel and facilities" from the airport.

The aviation committee, headed by Jesse M. Hadley, had requested the action on the grounds that:

Congestion at National Airport, particularly under instrument flying conditions, "has reached a point where it is difficult to schedule additional (commercial) flights for the airport; the field cannot feasibly be enlarged "because of ground limitations which would not permit safety for instrument landing."

Also that since airport authorities have stated that the military operations accounts for 45 per cent of air traffic at the airport under instrument conditions, present congestion would be "greatly alleviated" if the military did not use the field. Finally, the committee report said air travel for both passenger and freight is steadily increasing and the trend should be stimulated to bring "money and people into our city by making aviation "attractive."

A Record Planting

Truman's Friends Celebrate 'Turnip Day in Missouri'

Independence, Mo., July 26 (U.P.)—President Truman's neighbors down in the potato bottoms were planting turnips today.

It was "Turnip Day in Missouri," as the President remarked in announcing he was calling Congress back to Washington for the special session beginning today.

The old saying in Missouri is:

"On the 25th of July, sow your turnips, wet or dry."

Turnip growers pointed out that when July 25 falls on Sunday the saying is applicable on the following Monday, turnip growers being church-going folk. That was a fact Mr. Truman obviously took into consideration when he said today was "Turnip Day."

Down in the Atherton and Courtney bottoms, the potatoes were out of the ground and the turnip seed was going in on farms owned by Frank Larkin, jr., son of the late B. F. Larkin, close personal friend of Mr. Truman, and the Stewart brothers, old-time truck farmers. Near here the Mann brothers were planting turnips.

The ground was soaked from last night's soaking rain.

Thomas D. Sheahan, commissioner of markets in Kansas City, suggested there apparently is more turnip plantin' today than there had been on one given day in years.

"We hadn't sold hardly a turnip seed," Sheahan said, "when Mr. Truman made his acceptance speech. Then, right after his words about 'turnip day', our sales in Kansas City tripled almost overnight."

Robertson to Offer Own School Aid Bill

A Federal-aid school bill designed to guard against possible Federal attempts to ban segregation is planned by Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.).

Robertson said he will offer the six hundred million dollars measure today as a substitute for the Taft bill passed by the Senate and now pending in the House.

"The Taft bill," Robertson said in a statement, "would not solve the problem of Virginia or of other Southern States."

The new bill would authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to give 300 million dollars in outright grants. Another 300 million dollars would be distributed in 20-year loans at 2½ per cent interest.

Prescribed Use Differs

The money would be used for building consolidated elementary and high schools throughout the Nation.

The Taft bill would authorize Federal aid of 300 million dollars a year to aid in financing public school systems.

"I voted against the Taft bill," Robertson said, "primarily because I knew the States could not get this kind of aid without Government control which ultimately would involve the question of segregation."

In stating the Taft bill would not solve the problem of the South, Robertson said it is not sufficient "merely to increase the salaries of present teachers.

Consolidation needed

"We must have a more efficient system, which necessitates the consolidation of small units, and that means new buildings for the grade schools as well as for the high schools," he added.

"This building program is the biggest need."

Robertson said that under his plan, schools could be built by local agencies which would be allowed to repay their share of costs in easy installments over 20 years.

"This would release funds," he added, "that could be used for increasing teachers' salaries or for other purposes.

"Unlike the Taft bill, my proposal would not involve the Federal Government in a program of recurring annual contributions that would permanently increase the national budget.

Would Retain Independence

"Nor would localities become so dependent on a Federal contribution that they would find themselves helpless to resist some future attempt to tie strings to the funds, dictating qualifications for teachers, prescribing curricula or forbidding segregation."

Robertson said better schools are needed in all parts of the country, and especially for Negroes in Virginia and the South.

"I know of no better way to help them," he said. "But if the Federal Government is to aid in achieving that end, it should do so without even the latent power to usurp the functions of local self-government in this important field."

The Robertson bill would divide funds among the States on the basis of the proportion of the number of school-age children (5 to 17 in each State to the total number of children of this age in the Nation.

State boards of education would make the allocations within the States.

'Must Act'

Green Sees Congress On a Spot

Kansas City, Mo., July 26 (AP).—President William Green of the AFL said today he has no hope that the Eightieth Congress in its extra session will redeem a record of "black reaction."

In a message from Washington to Labor's Educational and Political Club of Kansas City, the labor leader added:

"President Truman has put Congress on the spot.

"It cannot squirm off that spot. it must act on the problems he presents for its consideration or be judged for the failure to act by the American people."

Green, in saying he despaired of constructive work in the session which opened today, asked these questions:

"Do you for one moment believe that a Congress so hostile to the interests of the workers of the country will suddenly reverse itself and vote to kill its monstrous antilabor creation, the Taft-Hartley Act?

"Is it conceivable that a Congress which has gone out of its way to encourage price profiteering will now reform itself overnight and approve action to protect the American people from further inflation?

"Can we expect a Congress so consistently subservient to the real estate lobby to listen to the emergency appeals of millions of home seekers for a real, low-cost housing program, such as is provided in the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill?"

Green was to have delivered the speech in person, but was unable to do so because Mrs. Green is ill in a hospital at Newark, Ohio. He went there to be with her.

7c Pay Boost Is Agreed to By Bethlehem

Camden, N. J., July 26 (AP).—A wage agreement calling for a seven-cent across-the-board increase for about 28,000 employes of the Bethlehem Steel Company's nine East coast plants was announced today.

The agreement, reached by company negotiators and representatives of the CIO-Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding of America last Friday in New York is subject to the approval of the union membership.

John Green, president of the union, made the announcement jointly with J. M. Larkin, company vice president. Green said employes of the company yards located in New York, Boston, Baltimore and Hoboken, N. J. areas will vote on the contract this week.

Provisions of Accord

The wage boost package includes:

1—Across-the-board increases of seven cents an hour for both base pay rates and employes on piece work and incentive programs.

2—Application of the increase to overtime and night-shift differentials, which will amount to approximately one-half cent an hour.

3—A two-cent an hour credit for those employes who were on strike in 1947 during part of the vacation period.

The fringe workers, who are covered by a separate contract with the same union, were offered a 5 per cent boost or $2.50 a week, whichever is greater, Green said.

The joint announcement said employes involved in the 19½-week strike in 1947 who have not had their vacations will, receive a 55 per cent increase in either time or pay—if the vacation is worked.

Other Agreements

Those who already have taken their 1948 vacation will be given 55 per cent of their vacation pay.

The agreement also calls for:

A company check-off including union dues assessment up to $2 and initiation fees up to $10 subject to cancellation by the individual employe during a specific 15-day grace period.

Extension of the contract to July 23, 1950, with a clause for reopening in 1949 on wages and social and welfare benefits.

Kaiser Steel Plant Boosts Pay, Prices

San Francisco, July 26 (AP).—CIO Steelworkers at Henry Kaiser's Fontana steel plant today received wage increases averaging 13 cents an hour.

Kaiser Company Inc. also said Fontana will increase its price of steel an average of $9.83 per ton.

Hens Eat Grass, Still Lay Eggs, Scot Declares

Glasgow, Scotland, July 26 (U.P.).—Dr. D. R. Tullis claimed today he has developed hens which live on grass and still lay eggs.

Tullis said he first tried feeding his hens ordinary grass. They could not digest it. Then he found they would take a pill made up of four-fifths grass and one-fifth grain.

Tullis asserted a few pills the size of an aspirin tablet will give a hen all the nourishment she requires. In some cases, he added, egg production was increased 25 to 50 per cent.

Tullis said his final discovery was that chicks of the pill-fed hens live to grow and lay eggs on a diet of grass alone.

3 Globe-Circling B-29s Land in Aden

Aden, July 26 (U.P.). — Three United States globe-circling B-29s landed today at this British protectorate in southern Arabia. Lieut. Col. Richard Klile, commander of the flight, described the trip here from Tripoli, Libya, as "uneventful."

The Superforts were scheduled to leave for Negumbo Field, Colombo, Ceylon, tomorrow afternoon.

House Starts Off in 'Turnip Session' projects, including four million dollars to start the TVA steam plant, rejected last session.

All of these measures, and what to do about them, figured in the Republican leadership conferences, along with the most popular GOP query, "When do we adjourn?"

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., (Mass.) said no decisions were reached at an early-morning huddle, and none will be until "we hear what the President has to say."

Senate GOP Group Meets

Senator Robert A. Taft (Ohio) said a late afternoon conference of his Senate GOP steering committee went over the same ground without deciding what to do. GOP Senators up for relection sat in with the GOP policy group. Taft said they were consulted on the political issues in their States.

The Ohioan said some of the Senators present advocated an immediate adjournment, but a decision on that question, along with various proposals for a GOP program, went over until today when the leaders will hold another huddle. "We'll probably be able to tell you tomorrow," Taft told reporters.

It was learned that at least two of the leaders, Senator Taft and Representative Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) turned down a Mutual Broadcasting Co. offer of radio time tonight to reply to the President.

Dewey May Answer Message

One Republican who sat in on the two-House party parley said a formel reply by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is being discussed instead, and Republicans may "demand" the same time from all radio networks allotted the President today.

House Appropriations Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) said he favored passing a resolution paying members' railroad mileage and adjourning at once.

Senator Edward V. Robertson (R., Wyo.) called it a "shot-gun" session. He said he urged the Republican policy committee to adjourn Congress until November 8.

Senator Russell, who presided at the 19-man Southern Democratic caucus told reporters that "a majority of this group would vote to adjourn sine die."

Southerners to Try Persuasion

All but three Southern Senators, J. William Fulbright, Arkansas; Kenneth McKellar, Tennessee, and Claude Pepper, Florida, attended the caucus called to chart opposition to the civil rights measures. Fulbright and McKellar were out of town. Russell said Pepper "has never been invited to these 'meetings' because he sponsored an antipoll tax bill and revision of Senate debate rules.

Russell told reporters he "didn't like the word filibuster," but some of the Senators "will speak at length."

"We will use reason and persuasion to get our case before the country," he said.

Terming it a fight "to preserve our dual system of government," he told reporters: "It won't be another Appomatox. We might be wiped out but we won't surrender."

Hope to Block Cloture

In an effort to block cloture (a two-thirds vote shutting off debate), it was learned the Southerners plan to launch their filibuster against any motion to call up a civil rights bill.

Normally, cloture does not apply to debate on a motion to call up a bill. What the Southerners fear is that this time an appeal may be taken from the ruling of the chair on that point. By a simple majority vote, sustaining the appeal, the Senate could then decide that cloture applies to such a motion.

Opening special session preliminaries consisted mainly of a quorum call in the Senate. It turned out 65 Senators. Across the Capitol, 310 House members answered the roll.

McCormack's Schedule

In the speechmaking that followered, centering around who's to blame for the high cost of living and the housing shortage:

House Democratic Whip John McCormack (Mass.) called for action to check the price rise and ease the housing shortage, noting that both party platforms are in agreement on a long-range housing program. House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) asked McCormack if he was giving a preview of what was in the President's message. McCormack said he didn't know what was in the message but he did know about conditions in the country and "Congress ought to give the people a break."

Umbrellas Advised for Members

Representative George H. Bender (R., Ohio) charged the special session is a "continuation" of the Democratic convention. He told of the pigeons released in Philadelphia's Convention Hall after Mr. Truman's acceptance speech and discussed "the habits of pigeons." He said members should equip themselves with umbrellas when they come to hear the President today.

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) said members ought to stop arguing over "who did what . . . hour wives can't pay bills with speeches." Mrs. Douglas predicted President Truman will report to Congress on the high cost of living and housing. She said she was thankful Republicans now recognize such problems do exist.

Sees Quick Housing Passage

Representative Jacob J. Javits (R., N. Y.) termed housing "still the No. 1 domestic bill" before the House, and said a long-range housing bill will quickly become law if members will sign the pending discharge petition.

Representative Reid F. Murray (R., Wis.) defended farm price levels and suggested farm price critics get a taste of the farm problem by raising their own food. Murray said Mr. Truman can handle the situation "whenever he wants to" by controlling prices at the wholesale level.

Extra Session 'Score Card'

The White House yesterday issued what is called a "score card for special session." It noted that "the legislation urged upon the Congress by the President is in various stages" and then gave this listing:

	Passed Senate	Favorably reported by House committee	Hearings held by this or previous Congress
1. Anti-inflation program	No	No	Yes
2. Housing bill	Yes	Yes	Yes
3. Federal aid to education	Yes	No	Yes
4. Increase minimum wage	No	No	Yes
5. Social Security: Increase persons covered and amounts of benefit	No	No(A)	Yes

(C) Does not require House action.

Fire Halts Pennsy Trains Between N. Y., Philadelphia

Bristol, Pa., July 26 (AP).—Fire broke out on a bridge across Pennsylvania Railroad tracks late today and tied up movement of all mainline trains between New York and Philadelphia.

A railroad spokesman in Philadelphia said the blaze, of undetermined origin, swept a frame bridge near Bristol and then spread to wires above.

The damage to the wires forced PRR to halt movement of its electrified trains on the four mainline tracks.

He said all traffic between New York and Philadelphia was being rerouted over other lines.

(A Pennsylvania Railroad spokesman at Union Station here said the fire delayed arrival of six Washington-bound trains as long as five hours. They included the Silver Meteor and Champion, he said.)

Oculists Condemn Kickbacks on Sales

Chicago, July 26 (AP).—Ninety-eight northern Illinois eye doctor defendants in the Government's optical antitrust suit agreed today to an injunction against accepting rebates from sales of eyeglasses.

The court order was signed by Federal Judge John P. Barnes after the oculists had filed a stipulation condemning the rebate system and pledging not to accept kickbacks on purchases by patients.

The order provided that other oculists who had not signed the stipulation could voluntarily become subject to the judgment by signing the stipulation and obtaining a court order applying terms of the injunction to them.

Approximately 3000 oculists have been made parties to the Government's civil suits which named two optical firms, the American Optical Co., and the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., as principal defandants.

Attorney George B. Christensen, representing Bausch & Lomb, objected to the court order as a "side deal" and "bob-tailed procedure" which "may very seriously prejudice" the outcome of the case.

World Bank To Cooperate With ECA

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Close cooperation between the Economic Cooperation Administration and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development was assured yesterday.

Grant Forbes of Boston, an experienced international banker, was named by the World Bank as liaison officer with United States and European officials handling the European Recovery Program.

Forbes will make his headquarters in Paris, Vice President Robert L. Garner of the World Bank announced.

A graduate of Harvard College and Law School, from 1911 to 1919 Forbes was counsel for an international financial group in Paris which operated railways and industries in South America. He was also foreign representative of the American International Corp. of New York, with headquarters in London.

From 1921 to 1932 Forbes was European partner of the New York banking firm of Blair & Co., Inc., and traveled widely in Europe and the Near East. He was financial adviser for several important international banking firms from 1932 to 1940.

During World War II, he was a member of the Navy Price Adjustment Board. He was granted the Navy Citation for Meritorious Civilian Service. Later he served as field commissioner for France under the Foreign Liquidation Commissioner.

Recently he has been consultant to the United States Export-Import Bank.

Dutch Loan Probable

Garner also announced that Holland probably will soon get a joint loan of "less that 15 million dollars" from the World Bank for ship-buying purposes.

Data is now being prepared on a possible loan of 15 to 20 million dollars to Belgium for steel and power projects. These are the two most concrete negotiations now in progress with countries participating in the European Recovery Program.

The bank is also studying proposals for financing equipment to produce lumber for western European countries from the forests of Yugoslavia Czechoslovakia, Poland and Finland. Only preliminary negotiations have so far taken place. No concrete proposal of how the matter will be handled has yet come to the bank, Garner said.

Poland has been told that "conditions have not made it practicable to proceed with a long-standing" application from that country.

The bank's 10 member advisory council closed its first annual meeting with World Bank officials Friday. No disclosure of the council's discussions will be made, Garner said, beyond the statement that they covered economic and financial problems affecting the policies of the bank.

25,000 Lions Assemble In N. Y. for Convention

New York, July 26 (U.P.).—The Lions' international convention, New York's biggest this year, got off to a roaring start today when some 25,000 members from 48 States and 19 foreign countries descended on Madison Square Garden.

Delegates joined voices and howled their approval of familiar club songs which the Madison Square audience sang en masse.

Luzon Peasant Rebels Seek Forgiveness

Manila, (Tuesday), July 27 (AP).—Southern Luzon's rebellious peasants have begun to register for governmental forgiveness, despite official postponement of the ceremony.

Unofficial reports today said 150 unarmed members of the National Peasant Union had appeared and registered for amnesty, although a scheduled mass registration was delayed until Thursday.

Amnesty was offered to the estimated 50,000 anti-administration peasant guerillas on Luzon by presidential proclamation, ratified by the Philippine Congress.

Italian Labor Splits Into Two Camps

Rome, July 26 (AP).—Italy's labor forces split into two hostile camps today. The largest bloc is Communist-controlled. The second faction has Catholic and government party backing.

Meanwhile, labor leaders in between these two groups were trying dsperately to hold together the seven million-members General Confederation of Labor (CGIL). The big confederation began cracking up a week ago after its Communist-dominated executive committee called a disastrous general strike following the attempted assassination of Communist boss, Palmiro Togliatti.

The Communist majority in the CGIL executive committee abandoned efforts today to maintain labor unity and in effect told Christian Democrat and Catholic labor (ACLI) leaders to "go ahead and form your own union."

Trains to Red Zone Banned

the Russian sector of the city, accused Stum of "preparing to split the Berlin police."

Thus, Kotikov served indirect notice that the Russians do not intend to accept the city's firing of the Soviet-appointed Markgraf. Kotikov's letter demanded "an investigation of all persons whose actions are directed toward splitting the Berlin police, regardless of their post or position." Ironically, his letter instructed Frau Schroeder to tell Markgraf to fire Stum.

An official British statement said Kotikov went "entirely beyond his powers" in ordering the dismissal of Stum. It said he 'has no power to dismiss a leading city-wide official without the consent of, and in consultation with, the other commandants."

The ban on trains to and from the Soviet zone was ordered by Gens. Lucius D. Clay and Sir Brian Robertson, the American and British occupation commanders. It was effective at once.

A British spokesman said the Soziet zone, as well as the more southwesterly rail lines across bizonia to Italy and Switzerland are affected by the order.

Coupled with the British-American suspension of Ruhr steel and coal shipments to the Soviet zone after the Russians started the blockade, the western allies' restrictions on rail traffic are bound to have serious effects on eastern Germany, it was said.

Most interzonal traffic in Germany has been interrupted by Russian action, the Soviets saying that "technical difficulties" prohibited the movement of trains from western zone areas.

However, a number of freight trains have been moving into and through the British, American and French zones carrying manufactured and raw materials products from the Russian zone.

The new ban means that trains carrying goods from the Soviet zone to Switzerland, or to Bremen for shipment to other countries, no longer can travel through western Germany. The same ban applies to traffic from other countries bound for the Soviet zone.

The exact tonnage affected by this block on trade with the West was not known but it will cut off monthly shipments of 20,000 tons of pyrite, a steel ingredient, from Italy to the Soviet zone. It will halt Soviet zone brown coal which has been going to Switzerland and a small amount of potash that had been going to Britain, among other items.

It also will cut off a fairly considerable traffic between the Russian zone and Italy in other chemicals and general cargo.

Robert Murphy, political adviser to General Clay, said after the meeting of military governors and German leaders in Frankfurt that "we are all set." The agreement on setting up a western German government leaves the door open for future participation by the Russian zone.

The constitution to be drafted by the assembly will be submited to the German people in a referndum, as suggested by the military government. The governors promised, however, that they would place before the allied governments the German leaders' objection to a referendum. The Germans say a referendum would enable Nazis, Communists and malcontents to stir discord.

No decision was made on a name for the proposed government or on German proposals that they be allowed to send trade representatives abroad, but American officials said they expected no great difficulty in solving these matters as long as there was general agreement on the over-all picture.

London, July 26 (AP).—In an atmosphere of secrecy the United States, Britain and France hunted today for a plan to end the Berlin blockade, ease multiplying differences with Russia over Germany and check the world's fear of war.

Diplomats from the three Western powers launched a new and critical week of talks on the Berlin crisis. This time they had fresh, first-hand information from Washington and Moscow to help guide discussions.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin called in the special United States team of troubleshooters—Charles E. Bohlen, State Department counsellor; Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to Britain, and W. Bedell Smith, Ambassador to Russia—for a personal review of the situation.

Smith will return to Moscow tomorrow apd Bohlen will go to Washington Wednesday.

The discussion then will be carried on by Douglas, French Ambassador Rene Massigli and Sir William Strang, chief of the British Foreign Office's German section.

The intenseification of the talks reflected apparent differences on two major points:

1. How far should the western allies go in meeting Moscow's demands for four-power consultations on all of Germany instead of on Berlin alone?

2. Just what method should be employed in approaching Russia with some form of a let's-talk-it-over proposition on condition the Soviet blockade of Berlin is lifted?

The differences were underscored by the fact that just a week ago a rough draft of a new note to Moscow, which apparently had Douglas 'tentative approval, was passed along to Washington for review.

Responsible officials here reported thhe note ran into objections in Washington requiring revisions.

The secrecy attending the western powers' next move in the Berlin situation was underlined tonight when the British government decided to cancel a scheduled debate on foreign affairs in the Houses of Commons and Lords Wednesday.

Before the cancellation was ordered, Bevin was to have reviewed Britain's foreign policy in Commons that day.

Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor in Germany, will fly here tomorrow to furnish Bevin with a report on current events in Berlin.

Navy Planning Bainbridge Reopening

The Navy is making plans to reopen its huge training center at Bainbridge, Md., the unofficial Armed Force Magazine said yesterday.

It quoted Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, as saying the center "probably will be reopened" before the end of the year.

The influx of 10,000 recruits monthly plus some 2500 18-year-old traniees will overtax the existing training stations at San Diego, Calif., and Great Lakes, Ill. Denfeld said.

The Navy declined to comment on the reopening of Bainbridge. It was understood a request has been made to the Bureau of the Budget for funds to run the center.

Navy recruiting has been booming along and exceeded the quota for this month in the first 20 days, forcing the Navy to suspend recruiting until August. Figures released today on recruiting from July, 1947 to June, 1948 showed the Navy topped its goal of 180,000. The Navy signed up 181,603 men.

Manila, Philippines, July 26 (U.P.) Bernardo Anzures, actor, 21, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the murders of screen and radio songstress Lilian Velez and her maid.

They were stabbed to death June 27.

Adm. Wright Ordered Here In Series of Navy Switches

Rear Admiral Carlton H. Wright, Chapel Hill, N. C., has been assigned to duty in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations, the Navy said yesterday.

Admiral Wright has been deputy high commissioner of the Carolines, Marshalls and Marianas, Pacific islands, since last September. The Navy announced recently he would be relieved by Rear Admiral Leon S. Fiske.

Rear Admiral John E. Whelchel, Hogansville, Ga., will take over a newly created amphibious command. He will leave the post of chief of staff and aide to the commander, service force, Pacific Fleet about August 10 to become commander of Amphibious Group Four, established as a planning staff at the Little Creek, Va., naval base.

Admiral Whelchel served on the academy football coaching staff in the 20s, and was head coach at one time.

Another change in duty announced was transfer of Rear Admiral Allen E. Smith, to be commander of battleships and cruisers, Atlantic Fleet. Admiral Smith of Detroit, Mich., has been chief of staff and aide to the president of the Naval War College, Newport, R. I.

Russians Seize Two Spying on Railways

U. S., Britain to Name ERP Labor-Management Advisers

Paris, July 26 (AP).—British Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps today called upon European nations and peoples to make mutual sacrifices for "the greatest and most difficult tasks of European cooperation" and pledged Britain would do her share.

Following a three-hour conference with ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman, Cripps told a news conference that a joint British-American management-labor group would be formed soon to advise ways of boosting British productivity for the European Recovery Program (ERP).

British members will be chosen from the Fedeartion of British Industries, a group comparable to the National Association of Manufacturers, and from the Trades Union Congress.

ECA Chief in China En Route to U. S.

Shanghai, (Tuesday), July 27 (AP). Charles Stillman, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration survey mission to China, departed by air today for Washington conferences.

He is carrying a list of reconstruction projects for China, and his mission's recommendations on them. Approximately 75 million dollars of the 275 million dollars United States grant to China has been set aside for reconstruction.

Bigart Near Hideout Of Greek Partisans

(Continuing the dramatic account of Homer Bigart's journey through rebel-held territory in Greece for an interview with the rebel leader, General Markos.)

By Homer Bigart

Copyright, 1948, N. Y. Herald Tribune Inc.

With General Markos in the Grammos Mountains, July 2 (Delayed).—With the Phlorina Plain behind us, we could relax a bit. On a mountain summit near Lake Prespa, Major Nestorus, the cavalry commander, lifted his arm to the southwest in a gesture embracing a vast jumble of mountains and said, "All Partisan."

In this corner of Greece the population was largely Slav. We passed villages where only the old and infirm remained. Every youth who could fight was with the Partisans. The old people still cherished the dream of an autonomous Macedonia; their dislike of Athens, always intense, had been aggravated by recent bombings.

They had been told by their political commissars that President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall alone were responsible for the American bombs and rockets that fell on their homes and that the big majority of American people, being democratic, might presently throw out Truman in favor of Wallace. They thought that not only the bombs but the Spitfires that dropped them were from America and some believed American troops already were fighting alongside the Athens forces in the Grammos battle.

English Spoken Everywhere

In every village there were a few old men who had lived in the United States and could still speak English. I could talk with them freely and alone. Thus I was able to obtain what I believe is the true story of the so-called mass "abduction" of Greek children by Partisans to Slav countries. The abduction story has become one of the main pillars of Greek propaganda.

In the village of Vatokhorton, a Greek orthodox priest, the Rev. George Erakle, formerly of St. George's Church, Boston, told me: "Three months ago, planes came every day. We put the child in those pillboxes on the hill" (prewar pillboxes against the Italian invasion through Albania) but it was too cold for them. We had to send them across the frontier—there was nothing else to be done. So about 140 left." No word had been received of the children and the priest was unable to say where they were.

Further down the road was the village of Kroustalopiyi. There, Tom Nestor, who once had a candy store in St. Louis, told me there had been six raids, the last on March 9. On January 15, a woman had been killed and a girl wounded. Those were the only casualties, but most of the villagers decided to send their children north. Escorted by five young women of the village, 150 children departed in three groups. Nestor's five children went with them.

I saw some homes and barns that were destroyed.

Depopulated of Youth

Kroustalopiyi was completely depopulated of children and youths; 161 Partisans had enlisted from this little village.

"We gonna fight to last man," said Minitri Karkori, who had worked in the Ford plant at Detroit. "American people very good people. But Truman no good."

Another march of a day and night brought us to the Aliakmon River and to the Grammos area. Here the mountain landscape was even more chaotic than the Voras range—vast summits of slate and crumbling rock, chasms that it took hours to descend.

At last we were nearing action. We could hear the dull roar of the Greek army artillery below Nestorion that night, still at least 10 miles from the front. We were told that Partisans were holding well despite severe pounding. No important ground had been yielded and the Athens radio no longer spoke of swift and victorious conclusion of the Grammos battle.

Phoned General Staff

John, my escort, had talked by phone with the general staff. Markos couldn't see me tomorrow—he was off in the Konitsa sector—and had left word that I be shown Partisan positions near Nestorion. So the interview was set for the following day.

Through glasses we looked down and across a steep valley to the razorback ridge which was the Partisan front line. The positions were taking a terrific pounding and, after one especially heavy barrage, I glanced at the major with an unspoken question. He saw what was on my mind. "Considering the volume of enemy fire, our casualties aren't high," he said. But there had been casualties among officers, with two captains and a major among the wounded.

He estimated Athens was hurling three divisions against him. That meant he was outnumbered more than nine to one. Also the enemy had a preponderance of artillery and full control of the air. The Partisans have no planes. An officer, pointing to a hawk circling high above the ridge, said, "That's our air force."

Only One Partisan Gun

He praised the tenacity of his men, saying that 70 Partisans were successfully holding an exposed position on which the enemy had dumped 3000 shells.

In three hours at the front I heard only one Partisan gun. It was fired infrequently. The problems of supply and the evacuation of wounded were, of course, terrific. There are no roads in the Partisan sector; mules were the only transport. I saw a dozen wounded men walking back to the field station. In many places the rocky trail was stained with blood.

Major Adamedis told me most of his casualties resulted from artillery. He said he thought his reserves were sufficient and that there was enough ammunition.

There appeared to be no shortage of food. Besides bread there was plenty of goat's cheese.

Next day we rode over the backbone of the Pindus, expecting to meet General Markos on the way. It was after dark when we reached a village. The general, who was known to be hurrying eastward for a look at the Nestorion fighting, hadn't yet come through.

I was aroused at dawn and taken to a guarded house. After a moment I was led upstairs where the only furniture was a plain wooden table and two chairs. Markos was sitting at the table and opposite him was a rather cadaverous looking man I recognized as Roussos, his Foreign Affairs Minister.

A typical snafu nearly cost me the interview after two weeks of painful and exhausing travel. Neither Markos nor Roussos speaks English and John, my escorting officer, was clearly incapable of accurate translation. Markos was impatient to reach the battle. The only solution was to ride back to the next village, where there was a woman who spoke English well.

We found her without difficulty and at Markos' suggestion rode a little beyond the town as a precaution against air attack and paused in a shady churchyard. I had no camera, but Roussos produced one and took a roll of film which he gave me. I handed Markos a copy of Time magazine that had his picture on the cover, and when he and Roussos had finished laughing at the old rogues' gallery photos of his cabinet which embellished the text we started talking. Unfortunately, I had heard nothing of the Tito-Cominform row and the general volunteered no comment, although I believe he knew of it then.

He apologized for my long and devious journey and insisted that precautions be taken for my personal safety. He asked me where I wanted to leave Partisan territory, and I said the outskirts of Ioanina would be fine. He agreed, saying the sector was quiet.

I was to have a strong patrol and travel as fast as I liked. I was glad he gave this order, for my disappearance must now be causing some concern. Two weeks had passed and I was still at least 50 travel hours from Ioanina.

(Mr. Bigart's final article, to be published tomorrow gives the details of his interview with General Markos.)

Greek Army Launches Final Grammos Push

Athens, July 26 (AP).—Greek troops jumped off this morning in a drive that may be the final push in the rugged Grammos Mountain campaign.

Two full divisions and elements of two more began new assaults against guerilla forces of Markos Vafiades on both the eastern and western fronts of northern Greece.

First official reports said the drive was "going well." However, a guerilla counter-attack drove government troops off the vital Kleptis heights after they had held it two hours. Guerilla resistance on Kleptis has been holding up the army's ninth division for 10 days in its efforts to drive into the Smolika Mountains.

The army's second division is moving in force from Eptahorion, driving for a juncture with the ninth division in an attempt to cut the guerillas' Grammos stronghold area in two. The two divisions are separated by less than 8 miles of mountainous terrain which is studded with guerilla fortifications.

Yugoslav Official Says U. S. 'Imperialists' Use Hitlerites

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 26 (AP).—Vice Premier Edward Kardelj today charged the United States with attempting to spread its economic system over the world.

At the same time he told the congress of the Yugoslav Communist Party that Yugoslavia wants "economic cooperation with all countries on the grounds of equality and respect for mutual obligations." He did not limit his bid for economic cooperation to countries in the Russian orbit.

The statement followed an interview with Premier Marshal Tito yesterday by Culbert L. Olsen, former Governor of California, who said Tito told him Yugoslavia is ready and willing to trade with the United States on condition that no political ties are attached.

Kardelj said, however, that Yugoslav Communists would continue to fight imperialism and declared American imperialism in western Germany is leaning on the same capitalistic monopolies as did Hitler.

The imperialists systematically are suppressing democratic forces led by the Soviet Union, Kardelj said, ant they wisn to make a peace that will suit them as the new pretenders to world domination.

He further charged the United States with spreading and fortifying its economic system all over the world by intensifying measures against Communist parties and choking the democratic rights of sovereign peoples. He said the United States was mixing in the internal affairs of free nations and creating agents of foreign imperialism in those countries.

Kardelj said Yugoslav foreign policy would continue along the line of collaboration with the Soviet Union and the countries of the "peoples' democracies."

He reiterated, however, one of the main poins which resulted in the split with the Moscow-directed Cominform. Yugoslavs will practice "universal activity for peace and peaceful cooperation on the grounds of full equality based on the principles of the United Nations," he said.

The question of equality has been brought to the fore by Tito and other Yugoslav leaders in their quarrel with the Cominform. The Cominform has charged Tito and other Yugoslav Communist leaders with following a nationalist and anti-Russian policy.

U. N. Group Hits Dutch On Indonesia

Lake Success, N. Y., June 26 (U.P.).—The United Nations Indonesian Commission tonight charged that the Dutch have used armed force to blockade the Republic of Indonesia, thereby causing "grave" hardships to 80 million natives.

Trade restrictions, backed by the Dutch navy, "give civil and military authorities of the Netherlands absolute control" over trade of the island republic, the Committee of Good Offices cabled the Security Council.

This total embargo on the republic's trade, the three-nation commission wrote, has caused severe shortages of medical supplies as well as machinery and other goods needed to repair war havoc in Indonesia.

This firm and unequivocal support of Indonesian charges that the Dutch have clamped a blockade during the six-month U. N. secured truce came as the Security Council prepared to consider tomorrow why mediation efforts have failed.

Canada and U. S. Agree On Television Channels

Ottawa, July 26 (AP).—Canada and the United States have agreed on a distribution of television channels within a 250-mile belt on each side of the border, government officials said today.

The agreement will insure that when television stations are started in Canada cities—applications are pending in Toronto and Montreal—they will have certain channels open on which there will be no interference.

Cairo, July 26 (AP).—Immediate demilitarization of Jerusalem seemed unlikely tonight after sources close to the Israeli government said conditions proposed by Count Folke Bernadotte appeared unacceptable to the Jews.

However, an Israeli government spokesman in Tel Aviv explained that the proposals still must be acted on by the full cabinet.

Bernadotte, the United Nations' mediator, said yesterday the Arab states had agreed in principle to the demilitarization plan and that it would become effective on Jewish approval.

The mediator returned to his Rhodes headquarters tonight after visiting Beirut and Tel Aviv, where he conferred with Lebanese and Israeli officials. He said on his return that there would "not be any conferences here in Rhodes" with Arabs and Jews on the Palestine question before the end of August.

Bernadotte said he planned to leave for Sweden on the ninth or tenth of August to attend a meeting of the International Red Cross. He said that between now and then he intended to visit Jerusalem; the Trans-Jordan capital of Amman; Alexandria, the summer capital of Egypt; Tel Aviv, and Haifa.

In Beirut, meanwhile, the cabinet of Lebanese Premier Riad El Solh resigned. No reason was given for the resignation and Riad was said to be forming a new government.

Earlier, a United Nations military observer reported Jewish planes and infantry had violated the Palestine truce by attacking three Arab villages along the Haifa-Tel Aviv road.

Threat of Court Action Brings Rose Trellis Down

Describing her activities as "worse than heartbreaking," Mrs. Alma E. Marshall of 1326 Allison st. ne., last night began removing the last of her embattled rose trellis—and the bushes.

Mrs. Marshall, a rose fancier of many years' standing, was ordered by John W. Batson, District trees and parking division superintendent, to take down the 8-foot structure—or face prosecution.

A local ordinance limits fencing to 42 inches in height above the sidewalk. Furthermore, the school teacher's handiwork trespassed on District property about 29 feet.

we will move, but I guess we will find a place."

Mrs. Beulah S. Wallace, who runs a rooming house at 100 B st. ne., the property owned by former Senator Reynolds, said she is "looking for a big house." She has a house full of furniture now, and wants to continue in the rooming house business.

J. Earl Hummer, an attorney chairman of the building committee for the Second Church of Christ Scientist, said the congregation already has a considerable sum in its building fund, and would press its search for a new site for the church.

One of the hardest hit of the property owners is Mrs. M. Suelston Barker, who developed four properties at 118, 120, 128 and 130 B st. ne. as rooming houses. Mrs. Barker acquired her last site in 1946, and now, she says, she'll have to start all over again.

An official estimate on persons to be displaced by the mass eviction was lacking yesterday. However, District and Federal officials agreed that the 500 figure was as "close as any" at the moment. There are 55 structures in the affected area, and it is known that the alley dwellings are congested.

Last official census of the block, in 1940, showed 96 structures, with 224 dwelling units. Only 36 of the structures were owner-occupied. Of the total, 148 dwelling units had been built up to 1899. All of the alley dwellings were built prior to 1892, when Congress passed a law against them.

E. Milton Dulin, assistant director of public health engineering for the District, said sanitary conditions in Schotts alley at the present time are "very good." He said the alley had been under constant supervision by his office for the past six months, and has been 'cleaned up very well."

Red Cross to Open 3 Baby Care Classes

RAF Drops Malay Leaflets

Singapore, July 26 (AP).—Royal Air Force planes today began dropping 1,250,000 leaflets over Malayan jungle settlements calling on the population to help the government "smash the Communist party."

Distribution of the leaflets coincided with a British army announcement that more reinforcements have been ordered to Malaya for use against the Communist insurgents.

A police communique said some of the insurgents had burned down half of the village of Pantai Remis in Perak state during the day. The village is about 350 miles northwest of Singapore.

Governor Sir Edward Gimson issued a proclamation to the residents of Singapore informing them that the city "is quiet but we must all be on the alert to prevent violence from coming among us." He called on the population to travel at night as little as possible and to remain orderly if trouble develops.

The Johore state government imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew on traffic in the north half of Johore Straits which separate Singapore Island from the Malayan mainland.

Text of President Truman's Executive Orders on FEPC, Equal Treatment

The text of President Truman's executive order governing fair employment practices within the Federal establishment follows:

WHEREAS the principles on which our Government is based require a policy of fair employment throughout the Federal establishment, without discrimination because of race, color, religion or national origin; and

Whereas it is desirable and in the public interest that all steps be taken necessary to insure that this long-established policy shall be more effectively carried out:

Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, by the Constitution and the laws of the United States, it is hereby ordered as follows:

1. All personnel actions taken by Federal appointing officers shall be based solely on merit and fitness; and such officers are authorized and directed to take appropriate steps to insure that in all such actions there shall be no discrimination because of race, color, religion, or national origin.

2. The head of each department in the executive branch of the Government shall be personally responsible for an effective program to insure that fair employment policies are fully observed in all personnel actions within his department.

3. The head of each department shall designate an official thereof as fair employment officer. Such officer shall be given full operating responsibility, under the immediate supervision of the department head, for carrying out the fair-employment policy herein stated. Notice of the appointment of such officer shall be given to all officers and employes of the department. The fair employment officer shall, among other things—

(a) Appraise the personnel actions of the department at regular intervals to determine their ment policy expressed in this order.

(b) Receive complaints or appeals concerning personnel actions taken in the department on grounds of alleged discrimination because of race, color, religion, or national origin.

(c) Appoint such control or regional deputies, committees, or hearing boards, from among the officers or employes of the department, as he may find necessary or desirable on a temporary or permanent basis to investigate, or to receive, complaints of discrimination.

(d) Take necessary corrective or disciplinary action, in consultation with, or on the basis of delegated authority from, the head of the department.

4. The findings or action of the fair employment officer shall be subject to direct appeal to the head of the department. The decision of the head of the department on such appeal shall be subject to appeal to the Fair Employment Board of the Civil Service Commission, hereinafter provided for.

5. There shall be established in the Civil Service Commission a Fair Employment Board (hereinafter referred to as the board) of not less than seven persons, the members of which shall be officers or employes of the commission. The board shall—

(a) Have authority to review decisions made by the head of any department which are appealed pursuant to the provisions of this order, or referred to the board by the head of the department for advice, and to make recommendations to such head. In any instance in which the recommendation of the board is not promptly and fully carried out the case shall be reported by the board to the President, for such action as he finds necessary.

(b) Make rules and regulations, in consultation with the Civil Service Commission, deemed necessary to carry out the board's duties and responsibilities under this order.

(c) Advise all departments on problems and policies relating to fair employment.

(d) Disseminate information pertinent to fair-employment programs.

(e) Coordinate the fair-employment policies and procedures of the several programs.

6. All departments are directed to furnish to the board all information needed for the review of personnel actions or for the compilation of reports.

7. The term "department" as used herein shall refer to all departments and agencies of the executive branch of the Government, including the Civil Service Commission. The term "personnel action," as used herein, shall include failure to act. Persons failing of appointment who allege a grievance relating to discrimination shall be entitled to the remedies herein provided.

8. The means of relief provided by this order shall be supplemental to those provided by existing statutes, executive orders, and regulations. The Civil Service Commission shall have authority, in consultation with the board, to make such additional regulations, and to amend existing regulations, in such manner as may be found necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this order.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

The text of Mr. Truman's executive order establishing a committee on equality of treatment and opportunity in the Armed Services follows:

WHEREAS it is essential that there be maintained in the armed services of the United States the highest standards of democracy, with equality of treatment and opportunity for all those who serve in our country's defense:

Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, by the Constitution and the statutes of the United States, and as Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Services, it is hereby ordered as follows:

It It is hereby declared to be the policy of the President that there shall be equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the armed services without regard to race, color, religion or national origin. This policy shall be put into effect as rapidly as possible, having due regard to the time required to effectuate any necessary changes without impairing efficiency or morale.

2. There shall be created in the national military establishment an advisory committee to be known as the President's Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services, which shall be composed of seven members to be designated by the President.

3. The committee is authorized on behalf of the President to examine into the rules, procedures and practices of the armed services in order to determine in what respect such rules, procedures and practices may be altered or improved with a view to carrying out the policy of this order. The committee shall confer and advise with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of the Air Force, and shall make such recommendations to the President and to said secretaries as in the judgement of the committee will effectuate the policy hereof.

4. All executive departments and agencies of the Federal Government are authorized and directed to cooperate with the committee in its work, and to furnish the committee such information or the services of such persons as the committee may require in the performance of its duties.

5. If pigs would grow like this...
Strange-looking animal, isn't it? If pigs did grow like this, instead of the way nature makes them, they would provide more hams and other cuts many people prefer—and fewer of the less popular cuts.
Actually, meat packers buy the pigs that come to market—as nature grows them—then turn them into as many as 80 different products: fresh, cured and smoked meats, and sausage. So your retailer can order just what he needs to supply his customers with what they want.
And meat packers also put to good use the parts of meat animals that aren't meat. These are carefully and expertly saved, and wind up in vital medicines, fine cosmetics, leather and scores of other products used every day by millions of people. Sale of by-products helps pay expenses.
And, after expenses are paid, the meat packer's profit on all meat sold averages a fraction of a cent a pound.

Cash market. Meat packers provide farmers with a daily cash market for all classes of livestock. This promotes future livestock production and enables meat packing plants to operate efficiently and provide your retailer with as wide a variety of meats as possible.

All meat must be sold. Fresh meat is perishable—most of it must be sold within a few days for whatever price it will bring. Prices are established by the public's demand for the available supply.

From the average dollar received by meat packers, about 80¢ goes to farmers (from which they must pay feeding and other costs) Nearly one-half of what is left goes for pay rolls. Profits average about 1½¢ out of each dollar of sales, or a fraction of a cent a pound.

Truman Orders Equal Federal Job Rights

Federal employment.

The plank adopted by the Progressive Party read:

"We call for a presidential proclamation ending segregation and all forms of discrimination in the armed services and Federal employment."

Speaker after speaker at the Progressive Party convention had heaped charges of "fraud" and "insincerity" upon President Truman's civil rights program, and had insisted he could "wipe out" all segregation and discrimination in Federal employment and the Government by a simple proclamation.

In advance of the move by the President, Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.), undisputed whip of the Progressive Party, attempted in advance to give credit for such a possible move to the Progressive nominee for President.

He said at a press conference Sunday evening that if the Chief Executive made any such moves, Progressive Party Nominee Henry A. Wallace should have the credit.

Although President's order concerning the armed forces did not call specifically for an end to segregation among American troops it clearly authorized the committee to make such a recommendation.

It directly ordered that the policy of "equality of treatment and opportunity for all" should be put into effect "as rapidly as possible, having due regard to the time required to effectuate any necessary changes without impairing efficiency or morale."

The possible effect on the armed services thus is left somewhat indefinite, and much will depend upon the personnel of the new advisory board.

The President's Committee on Civil Rights has already held that there is discrimination against the Negro in the armed services, and has outlined its case in detail.

With its power to summon witnesses and documents the new board will have enormous power to influence public opinion and bring pressure on the armed services chiefs if the members appointed are articulate and anxious to take their case to the public through the medium of newspapers, radio and otherwise.

The President's Committee on Civil Rights has pointed out that in the Army less than one Negro in 70 is commissioned while there is one white officer for every seven enlisted white men.

An articulate and determined board can equally well point up and stress some of the objections to segregation which the President's committee has already made.

Neither Board Named

Neither of the two seven-man boards has been named.

It would be anticipated that such boards would contain full representation of Negroes, largest minority involved. Within the last few days some of the largest Negro newspapers in the United States have declared strongly in favor of the reelection of President Truman. Among these is the Chicago Defender, largest and one of the most highly regarded Negro weeklies.

In his order creating the armed services advisory board the Chief Executive said that, "it is essential there be maintained in the armed services of the United States the highest standards of democracy, with equality of treatment and opportunity for all who serve in our country's defense."

In his order creating the FEPC in the Federal service he said that "the principles on which our Government is based require a policy of fair employment through the Federal establishment, without discrimination because of race, color, religion, or national origin."

Results Uncertain

It was not clear when the order was issued just how much change will be involved in Government employment by virtue of the new order since there are already Civil Service regulations prohibiting distribution of pctures or other marks of identification by race or color when Civil Service employes are hired.

A more vigorous campaign to eliminate discrimination, however, will be one obvious result.

Each department's FEPC officer is directed to:

1. Appraise the personnel actions of the department to see that they follow out the order to eliminate discrimination in hiring, promoting, etc.
2. Receive complaints or appeals from actions of personnel officers.
3. Appoint all necessary control or regional deputies within the department.
4. "Take necessary corrective or disciplinary action in consultation with, or on the basis of delegated authority from the head of the department.

The findings of this departmental FEPC officer are subject to direct appeal to the head of the department.

In turn the findings of the department head are subject to appeal to the Civil Service Commission's Fair Employment Board appointed by the President.

President Harry B. Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission declined comment last night on the President's FEPC order for Government workers.

So far as the armed services were concerned, the reaction was noncommittal.

Cooperation Promised

Lieut. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, deputy chief of staff for the Army Department, said:

"Of course the department will cooperate with the committee. I can assure you.

"I think this is a very important problem, and we will be glad to discuss it with any committee appointed to go into the matter."

Capt. Robert Berry, personal public relations adviser to Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal, said the Defense Secretary "will do all in his power to carry out the President's order." He added that "as far as I know, there is no discrimination in the armed forces."

The President's Committee found last October that in the Navy Negro officers are in a ratio of fewer than 1 to 10,000 Negro enlisted men, while for every seven enlisted white men there is one officer.

A 15-member delegation of Negro leaders called into conference by Forrestal last April refused to advise him on Negro affairs "until segregation is eliminated."

A. Philip Randolph, head of the AFL Brtherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, has announced he will urge Negroes to refuse to register for the new draft unless segregation is eliminated.

At the Progressive Party convention many Negroes urged the adoption by the platform committee of a plank calling for what was eqpuivalent to a civil disobedience campaign unless segregation were eliminated. One reason the plank failed of adoption was some fear that it might violate laws governing treason.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) lashed out at the President's order, particularly that relating to the armed forces, as an attempt by the President to "out-Wallace Wallace."

"The order threatens the morale of the armed forces," he said, "and thus may affect our foreign policy by undermining our armed services at the very time we need maximum strength and unity in this country."

Russians Won't Attend New York Air Show

New York, July 26 (U.P.).—Russian diplomats have declined an invitation to attend a large air show featuring some of the latest United States aviation developments, it was disclosed today.

The Soviet Embassy in Washington in a letter said the Russians couldn't attend the air show because of "previous engagements." The letter came as a surprise to many who had expected Russian military attaches would want to witness the performance of new American jets.

Rohrer to Quit Weather Bureau After 50 Years

Retiring Friday after nearly 50 years with the United States Weather Bureau, Charles W. Rohrer, 66, of Franklin Park, Fairfax, Va., is looking forward to more of his favorite sport—roller skating—and some gardening.

Mr. Rohrer

The personnel specialist, who began his career in July, 1899, as an observer in Harrisburg, Pa., also confessed yesterday that he might "take it easy for awhile" after retiring.

Rohrer, father of three and grandad to seven, expects later to visit his boyhood haunts near Millerstown and Harrisburg, Pa.

Rohrer confided that it's "better to make a change now when I still have the incentive to do things, than later."

Rohrer shifted to the Weather Bureau offices here in 1903 and worked up to his present post as a personnel assistant. He is a widower.

Armored Mob Chief Bernie Shelton Slain

Peoria, Ill., July 26 (AP).—Bernie Shelton, whose prohibition era gang used the weapons of a modern army, was shot and killed from ambush today.

His 59-year-old brother, Carl, the gang leader, was slain in similar style near Fairfield, in southern Illinois, nine months ago.

Bernie, 50, former gambling overlord in Peoria, met his finish when he strolled out of his favorite tavern hangout in a heavily wooded section at the edge of the city to get a breath of fresh air.

An assassin, lying in a clump of bushes, fired one shot. The bullet tore through Bernie's chest. He pitched forward on his face, mortally wounded.

Police theorized his slayer fled through the woods to an automobile parked on an adjoining bluff and escaped.

Apparently there were no witnesses, police said.

Shelton died shortly, after arrival at a hospital.

Shelton came to Peoria from southern Illinois several years ago and took control of gambling in the Peoria County area. However, gambling activities came almost to a halt in April, 1947, when Sheriff Earl Spainhaower opened a vigorous drive against slot machines and other gambling.

The Shelton gang was equipped with a plane, tank, and fleet of armored cars during its prohibition era battles with Charlie Birger's mob in southern Illinois.

When Birger set himself up at Shady Rest, a fortified cabin resort in Williamson County, a plane bombed him. In a show of strength, the Shelton's once rolled into the City of Marion in a tank and fleet of armored cars and paraded around the courthouse.

In the years of strife between the two gangs, more than 20 men were killed.

The gangs once worked hand in hand but split over the division of slot machine profits.

Birger was the ultimate victor and took control of the district.

Carl Shelton's slaying never has been solved. His neighbor, Charlie Harris, was arrested but a grand jury returned a no true bill.

Real 'Aristocat'

Felice, Queen Of Cats, Blue But Not Sad

FELICIA
The National Winner

Perhaps it was a hidden strain of feline modesty yesterday that caused Felice to accept her glamorous new title with such becoming grace.

Stalking around her cage at Norbeck, Md., yesterday the silken haired copper-eyed aristocrat purred contentment as her proud owner, Mrs. Merald E. Hoag, sang her praises.

Mrs. Hoag had just been notified by the All American Cattery Board that Felice had been named the best blue female in the United States and Canada for 1948.

In fact, Felice, whose full name is "Champion Dixi-Land's Felice of Nor-Mont," had won 18 "bests" during the season. Felice already has 8 points toward grand champion, and Mrs. Hoag, whose husband runs the Norbeck Hatchery, confidently predicts Felice will win the required 7 additional points next season to become grand champion.

A cat fancier for four years, Mrs. Hoag says it is a full-time job grooming and feeding her 30 registered and pedigreed cats some of whom are from imported stock. She also feeds an alley cat which wanders happily outside the cages housing the blue blooded felines. She spends considerable time in the air flying to cat shows as far away as St. Louis, Milwaukee and Boston.

Such delicacies as rats and mice are forbidden, Mrs. Hoag revealed. The animals' daily menu consists of plenty of vitamins from cod liver oil, brewers yeast, calcium, biscuits, and such.

D. C. Pay Rise Moves Begun

some 9000 other municipal employes, including teachers, policemen and firemen, whose raises are included in other legislation.

However, there's no doubt that passage of the Rees bill would bring about adoption of legislation to push up the pay level of all D. C. employes.

Rees charged yesterday that the Cain amendment is "discriminatory" against local Government employes.

"While I am of the opinion that the District should provide its fair share of the expenses of the District government, I do not believe that the D. C. budget should be balanced at the expense of the District government employes," Rees said.

Even without the pay raise, the District is due to go into the hole this fiscal year—which began July 1—and next. In fact, by July 1, 1950, assuming the same flow of revenue into the local treasury and the same expenditures—with the pay raise—the District foresees a deficit of between eight million and nine million dollars.

Add the pay raise, at around six million dollars a year for the two years and you have an overall total deficit of 20 million dollars by the end of fiscal '50.

If the snarled local fiscal situation cannot be cleared up, then Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, plans to seek a United States Treasury loan to the District to meet the deficit. Dirksen indicated yesterday he would take such emergency action only after all other means of resolving the complex problem had failed.

Court Frees Man To Whom State Can't Pay Claim

Baltimore, July 26 (AP).—Lacy Vinson was acquitted of a vegrancy charge today when it turned out the State owes him $3200.

"I think it is a pretty sad situation," said Judge Joseph Sherbow.

"I'm not going to send you to jail while State officials decide where to get the money."

Vinson, 32, explained he was working at Spring Grove State Hospital when he lost his left eye in an accident. The Maryland Compensation Board awarded him $3200, but will have no funds until Maryland's General Assembly meets in January.

Roosevelt's Ex-Guard Takes Kaiser Position

Boston, July 26 (AP).—Thomas A. Qualters, former bodyguard of President Roosevelt, resigned today as district administrator of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service to join the Kaiser Steel and Iron Co., in Fontana, Calif.

He will become assistant director of labor relations in mid-August.

British Jets Show Stuff at Andrews Field

Six Royal Air Force jet fighters who flew the Atlantic in the first west-bound jet crossing yesterday put on a breathtaking air show at Andrews Field, Md.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air chief of staff, reviewed the exhibition of close order flying.

Three of the jets rolled, looped and did tight turns in a formation so close that their wing tips appeared to touch. A single jet buzzed the field flying a few feet above the ground and then in inverted flight buzzed the field a second time.

The six DeHavilland Vampires left England July 1 and arrived at Andrews Field by way of Greenland, Labrador and Canada. While crossing they met 16 American F-80 jets now in England.

After greeting the 21 RAF officers and 31 men who made the flight, Vandenberg said of the visit:

"It is a continuation of the friendship and feeling of good will between the two nations."

The planes took off after the exhibition for an hour's trip to Greenville, S. C., where they will take part in maneuvers with the Ninth Air Force. Before returning to England the jets will participate in the international air show in New York July 31 to August 8.

Defend Church, Against Attacks, Pope Pius Urges

Vatican City, July 26 (U.P.)—Pope Pius today called upon the faithful to "defend the Church against attacks of its enemies" and to pray for peace during the Holy Year of 1950.

The Pope listed four "intentions" for the Holy Year, which serve as a program for the faithful. They are:

1. "Sanctification of the soul through prayer and penitence and unshakable faith in Christ and the Church."

2. "Action for peace and the safeguarding of holy places."

3. "Defense of the Church against renewed attacks of its enemies and imploration of the true faith of those who err, and those who lost their faith, and the godless."

4. "Realization of social justice through works of assistance to the humble and needy."

The setting of "intentions" by the Pope is customary before each Holy Year.

New Type Loom Weaves Faster, Uses Less Space

Passaic, N. J., July 26 (AP).—A new loom which weaves an estimated three to five times as fast as present models was under study today by four of the Nation's biggest mills here.

The loom, designed by Marius Fayolle of Villeurbane, France, was first demonstrated in Long Island City, N. Y. It is built by a French firm headed by Louis Vincent Ancet.

Executives of Passaic Mills said it showed promises of "making the start in a new era in the textile industry."

The loom ocupies much less floor space than conventional models, weaving vertically instead of horizontally with the cloth moving onto rolls at the top.

The new loom is under study by New Jersey Worsted and Gera Mills, both operated by Forstmann Woolen Co., and Botany Mills, and Samuel Hird and Sons.

One on the Aisle—

Funny Man Jose Sings the Blues

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT TOWN: Jose Ferrer, who can be a very funny fellow indeed, as you will see when Olney reveals "The Importance of Being Earnest" tonight, was gloomy yesterday . . . "I'm afraid the theater is an anachronism," muttered this graduate of Princeton's theater set (Jimmy Stewart and Joshua Logan are others of that group) . . . "Economically it just crazy and it can't begin to pull the way the movies, radio and television do . . . After all, who wants to take a chance on a play for $4.40 if they can watch Gable for 50 cents? . . . The cost of putting on a play and buying theater tickets doesn't make sense . . . You've got to be sure of an absolute smash before you put on a play . . . And the worse things get, the higher salaries actors, stagehands and all concern demand . . . No, I don't think the theater will completely die out, but things are certainly tough and I can't help taking a dim view of the future . . . The logical thing nowadays for a reasonably good actor to do is to make one picture every couple of years and live on the proceeds; for instance, I'd like to paint . . . John Halliday just gave up waiting around for plays; he'd do a picture every so often, live in Hawaii the rest of the time." . . . Puerto Rican-born Joe isn't always gloomy . . . He was funny in "Charley's Aunt" and "Let's Face It" (he took over from Danny Kaye) and he proved he's got courage with the success he made of New York City Center's acting company last winter . . . But even the most infatuated lover of the living theater must admit that Joe's dim view is sadly logical.

THE OLNEY has several other folk of interest about the premises these days . . . Directing "The Importance," for instance, is Gerald Savory, a chap who once wrote a comedy called "George and Margaret," which had a fabulously successful London run, though its local celebrity was confined to the fact that in the Washington Civic Theater cast the juvenile lead was played by a drama critic on his nights off. The Star's Harry MacArthur . . . Playing Gwendolyn will be Frances Reid, who was Roxanne to Ferrer's "Cyrano" in its memorable revival . . . The Cecily will be Phyllis Hill, a deliciously pretty blonde who began as a dancer, turned down a part in a musical called "Away We Go," which was to change its name to "Oklahoma," and wound up in "Cyrano"; that part brought her the real-life role of bride to Star Ferrer. . . . And Viola Roache, who's played every feminine role in the Wilde comedy, will be Lady Bracknell.

CURLY AND LAURE, of the National's "Oklahoma," used to go to the same Presbyterian Church in Hollywood, but never met until Wilton Clary and Carolyn Tanner took over the musical's leads in New York. . . . Unlike Joe Ferrer, this attractive couple take a brighter view of the living theater, probably because so many musicals are talked of for the next season. Clary has studied singing for 10 of his 26 years, Carolyn about 3 of her 20. . . . Indianapolis-born Clary has done all the musicals which have become a summer tradition and also won one of Arthur Godfrey's early talent awards. . . . Carolyn, a Tarheel by birth, went to the Coast early to live, majored in dramatics at UCLA and surprised herself by finding she had a voice that has brought her quickly to the top. . . . Offstage, they make a good-looking pair, but don't get any ideas. . . . Both of them have dreams of marrying two other people.

SAMMY BAUGH has fallen for the call of the grease paint, and these hot days you'll find him at Columbia's Hollywood studios to play in "Triple Threat," which may yet manage a fall release date . . . Also in the cast with Slingin' Sam will be Bill Dudley of the Detroit Lions.

SONGS WITH GUITARS continue the upward trend . . . Now Bethesda's Tex Hobgood and Joe McConkey, of WBCC, are taking to broadcasting direct from the stage of the Hiser Theater, Bethesda; the airings are every Wednesday afternoon at 1:15 . . . The boys' "Spurs and Guitars" program is followed each midweek matinee by a Western feature film, all of which goes under the Hiser's title of "Sagebrush Matinee."

NEIL HAMILTON, bound for the Coast and his first picture in some time, is doing it the long way round. . . . He's going from 44th street via Rehoboth Beach and "Blithe Spirit," in which he opened last night at the Henlopen Playhouse, where the Noel Coward comedy will have a two-week run.

VARIETY CLUBBERS are having an active midsummer. . . . Benefiting the club's Welfare Fund next Monday will be the Ezzard Charles-Jimmy Bevins battle in the heavyweight elimination contest for the championship at Griff Stadium. . . . And after that, sooner than you think, comes the club's annual football benefit in Baltimore, where the Redskins play the Chicago Bears Sunday September 19.

Home Rule Bill's Fate Up To Leaders

The fate of the District home rule bill last night appeared to hinge on the outcome of a Senate-House leadership meeting, scheduled to follow the President's message to a joint session of Congress this afternoon.

Following a leadership meeting yesterday, Speaker Joe Martin (R., Mass.) declared that today's meeting would determine Congress' course on major national legislation—and the home rule measure as well.

Representative Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, announced yesterday he would press for definite House action on the legislation in this special session.

The District Committee last session approved the Auchincloss home rule and reorganization bill—setting up a locally controlled government—but after one day's debate, the House set the highly controversial measure aside.

IN STAR-PACKED CAST: Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall, his missus, appear in "Key Largo" with such top favorites as Edward G. Robinson, Lionel Barrymore, Claire Trevor and Thomas Gomez. The film version of the Maxwell Anderson play opens at the Warner Thursday morning

Virginian Headed Home Dies on Pacific Ship

Honolulu, July 26 (AP).—Boyd Mager Steele, executive of the Goodyear Tyre Co. of Australia, died of a heart attack and was buried at sea three days ago, it was disclosed when the British steamer Lakemba arrived today. Steele, 44, was en route to his home in Stephens City, Va., with his wife after eight years in Australia and the East Indies.

400 Patients A Day At Venereal Clinic

Twisting a handkerchief, the frail blonde woman sat on the edge of a chair in a doctor's cubicle at Polk Health Center. Haltingly, she explained:

"I just got a letter from my sister-in-law and she tells me my husband—we's been separated several months—he has a bad case of gonorrhea."

Her pale blue eyes staring into space the woman went on:

"A year ago my husband got discharged from the Army only after he got cured of syphilis. I'm worried for me . . . and my baby."

400 Patients a Day

The worried mother was one of some 400 to 500 women, men and youths who daily enter the clinic at 7th and P sts. nw. between 11:30 a. m. and 2 p. m., between 4:30 and 6:30 p. m. for venereal disease tests or treatment.

Some patients are repeaters. Like the 36-year-old laborer who showed up yesterday "because my girl friend was taken sick last week." His record showed treatments for five cases of venereal disease since 1943.

Others are first-time victims, usually frightened, often shocked and ashamed. For example, the 26-year-old Agriculture Department stenographer who told the doctor yesterday:

"I'd heard about syphilis and how it starts and what terrible things it can do to a person. But I never heard about gonorrhea until I read a story last week."

Learned From Article

She referred, she said, to an article in The Washington Post, in connection with the gonorrhea control drive launched by health authorities recently. The woman, mother of two young children, said she read the story and realized that the symptoms described were "what I once had."

Running the clinic are two full-time and eight part-time doctors, assisted by five District public health nurses under Dr. A. B. Greaves, acting clinical director.

Fortunately, patients today can expect speedy, painless cures, thanks to the wonder drug, penicillin. However, they are cautioned to refrain from drinking, heavy work and, above all, to abstain from sexual contacts until they have recovered.

One of the most vital functions performed by the clinic staff is the ferreting out of those persons with whom the infected person has had recent sex relations, so they also may be treated, if infected.

PUC Sticks to Veto On Booklets in Cabs

The Public Utilities Commission refused yesterday to withdraw its veto of a plan to distribute 100,000 informational folders through taxicab drivers in connection with the District drive against gonorrhea.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, personally asked for reconsideration of the ruling at a conference with PUC, but Chairman James H. Flanagan announced the commission still found the plan objectionable.

Flanagan previously stated that PUC feared distribution of such pamphlets would "inevitably lead to numerous and serious complaints from the riding public."

Dr. Ruhland said he pointed out to PUC that 39 cab companies and fleets have approved the idea.

Meanwhile, distribution of the four-page pamphlets, which include description of symptoms of gonorrhea and syphilis, is being carried out by hotels and rooming houses, drug and liquor stores, restaurants and barber shops.

Navy, Air Force Study Joint Use of Bases

Secretary of Defense Forrestal has asked the joint chiefs of staff to consider the joint use of air bases by the United States Air Force and naval aviation.

The Secretary, in a memorandum dated July 19, asked that the study be made "before plans to open new bases are put into effect."

He also asked consideration of combing operations at fields already in use with a view to closing some bases if possible.

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

FASTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. FASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Make This Salad the Year 'Round!

TUNA SALAD MOLDS

1 tablespoon gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup milk
2 egg yolks lightly beaten
1/2 tablespoon melted butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 can Star-Kist Tuna (7 oz.)

Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Combine seasonings, egg yolks and milk in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water for 7 minutes until it thickens, stirring constantly with rotary egg beater. Add butter, lemon juice, and gelatin and beat until gelatin is dissolved. Fold in tuna which has been flaked. Pour into molds and chill until firm. Unmold. Serve with your favorite dressing. Serves 6.

You can see and taste the goodness of Star-Kist. There's a reason . . . only the smaller, better-flavored tuna are packed under this label. Buy either Solid or Grated—Star-Kist quality is the same.

Eleanor M. Patterson

Condolences to our neighbor, the Times-Herald, on the sudden death of its editor and publisher, Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson. "Cissy" she was familiarly called, not only by her intimates, but also by hosts of people with whom she came in contact. The diminutive was given her in childhood by her brother, Joseph Medill Patterson, owner of the New York Daily News, who preceded her in death two years ago. Use of the diminutive by so many people gives a clew to the character of one of the most salient personalities in the life of the Capital. She had a democratic streak which, combined with her dislike of organized charity, made many persons in humbler walks of life indebted to her personal and almost furtive benefactions. Here was the humanity in the woman—expressed personally and practically.

But these aspects of Mrs. Patterson's make-up were hidden from general view. They may have been concessions to her sex—a sort of residual femininity after her unfortunate experience in wedlock. The marital disaster of her youth overtook her when she was a high-spirited beauty making the grand tour of Europe. A lesser woman would have been crushed by this particular misfortune, but in Mrs. Patterson's case her inheritance was too tough to be undermined. She got more aggressive, and she brought first to the Herald, then to the Times, and finally to the combined Times-Herald a very positive view of life and people, together with an imperiousness indisposed to tolerate opposition.

Mrs. Patterson had had newspaper experience before she became a publisher in Washington. She had a family feeling for the business, but, denied a start by the family Chicago Tribune, got sundry reporting assignments for the Hearst newspapers. She then felt that she was qualified to enter the family business, but, it is said, both her cousin, Col. Robert R. McCormick, and then her brother, Captain Patterson, were not enthusiastic. They reckoned without "Cissy's" grit and determination. Her taking over of a newspaper in Washington may have been in part due to an ambition to prove to her family that she could make good in the newspaper world as well as they. She made a success of newspaper operation, staking out her claim with entertainment, woman appeal, and personality news and comment.

In a way it was curious that the Times-Herald showed such individuality under her leadership when she identified it so closely with the New York Daily News. Most days the Times-Herald ran the editorial of the New York Daily News. The latter's, her brother's, policy was hers, but it always seemed a secondary interest, for she appeared to be far more intent upon pursuing the feuds which seemed necessary to her way of life. Personalities were more important to her than policies, and in her passing the Washington scene has lost a woman whose crotchets never failed to enliven the town, and who had the pulse and power to make them public issues.

Psychiatric Dearth

Dr. Lawrence Kubie of Columbia University's College of Physicians offers a new idea as to how the country can help to overcome its acute shortage of trained psychiatrists. At present, he told the conference on "ways to mental health" at Harvard University, the customary training of a specialist in psychoanalytic psychiatry takes 12 to 16 years after graduation from college. The result is an acute shortage of men and women competent to deal with the problems of mental health in an age when the tempo of life puts increasing strains upon nervous systems and produces an appalling human wreckage.

In the hope of enlisting more talent in psychiatric research, teaching and therapy, Dr. Kubie suggests a new curriculum leading to a doctorate in medical psychology. He would set up a test training unit under the joint control of a leading medical school and a university department dealing with the social sciences, such as Harvard's Department of Social Relations. Students would be drawn from the fields of education, social work and general psychology as well as medicine. Their training would require from six to eight years. Only a test can determine whether competent psychiatrists can be produced by this method, and it is precisely such a test that Dr. Kubie is advocating. We suspect that the great majority of laymen who see only the stupendous scope of the problem, the comparative neglect of research in this field and the inadequate numbers of highly trained psychiatrists will be sympathetic toward any proposal that promises to enhance our resources for combating mental illness.

Intra-European Trade

Administrator Hoffman has given the European nations receiving ECA funds a timely warning in Paris that they have not yet attained the teamwork necessary to success of the recovery program. Mr. Hoffman naturally wants evidence that can be presented to Congress next year when ECA comes before it for new appropriations to show that Europe is making progress toward recovery through mutual self-help, instead of passively accepting our aid. The primary objective, of course, is to step up production in accordance with comprehensive plans that are continental in scope. That kind of reconstruction calls for cooperation among aided countries and willingness to make immediate sacrifices for the attainment of long-range common objectives.

Of the many problems requiring attention, none is at the moment more urgent than the question of how to revive intra-European trade. As The Washington Post recently pointed out, the trade between European countries has been largely carried on since the war under numerous intricate bilateral agreements providing for mutual extension of limited amounts of credit by the signatories to finance trade deficits leaving payment of any additional deficits to be met in gold and dollars. The depletion of gold and dollar reserves, however, has currently reduced this intra-European trade to a state of near paralysis. Its revival is essental to insure normal export outlets for the increased output of goods that is in prospect and to reduce excessive dependence upon imports from dollar areas.

With stable, freely convertible currencies, European countries would be able to buy and sell freely among themselves without calling for outside assistance. But free exchanges and convertible currencies which provide the essential basis for a system of multilateral payments can be achieved only by countries able to pay their way—that is, in a position to balance their international accounts. Before Mr. Hoffman arrived in Paris proposals for a European currency pool had been under discussion in Paris for some time. They were intended as a first step toward restoration of a multilateral clearing system of the sort needed. But they encountered opposition from European creditor as well as debtor states, especially from the British, who feared for the future of the pound sterling. However, by linking domestic currency contributions to such a pool with ECA dollar grants, reluctance to make contributions to the pool can, it is believed, be overcome.

This was the situation that greeted Mr. Hoffman. Now, according to late reports from Paris, a compromise plan acceptable to him has at last been worked out along the lines indicated, with certain modifications. That is good news, for some method has to be devised to free European nations from their present dependence on a bilateral credit system that not only prevents an expansion of intra-European trade but is bringing that trade to a standstill. Moreover, full utilization of Europe's productive resources, which is the aim of the recovery program, would be impossible without adequate export outlets in Europe for European products.

Strikes Taper Off

Forecasts of a period of stability during the remainder of this year are being heard with the settlement of the Ford Motor Co. dispute over wages. All the major industries, except shipping, have now signed management-labor agreements that will run until next spring or beyond. Even in the shipping industry, where an injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act will expire in September, there seems to be hope of working out a settlement. If the anticipated period of stability materializes, it may have significant political consequences in addition to overcoming shortages of some industrial commodities and reversing the price trend.

Men will be asking everywhere whether the Taft-Hartley Act is responsible for this improvement in labor-management relations. Extravagant statements are already being made on both sides. We do not think any conclusive answer can be given at this time. It is true that the number of strikes has sharply decreased from 1928 in the first five months of 1947 to 1150 for the first five months of this year. A much greater drop may be noted from the records of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the number of workers involved in strikes. But the number of man-days lost from January to May of this year, when the Taft-Hartley law was in effect, was slightly larger than for the comparative period last year, when it was not. Still the total of man-days lost was less than one fourth of the 84,400,000 man-days squandered in strikes in the first five months of 1946.

It would be foolish, of course, to ascribe all the gains or all the losses in labor-management relations during the last year to the Taft-Hartley Act. Strikes were certain to reach abnormal proportions in the postwar years in any circumstances. Now labor has succeeded in breaking down many of the wartime restraints. It has also learned that wage increases purchased at the cost of strikes and followed by higher prices are a delusion. These factors would probably have brought a curtailment of strikes in 1948 regardless of the Taft-Hartley Act. It is a matter of record, moreover, that the initial application of the act induced many unions to strike against its provisions.

The efficacy of the new law can be determined only after extensive adjustment to its terms have been made, after some of its obscure passages have been clarified and both employers and unions have become accustomed to operating under it. But one thing is certain: the fears of many opponents of the bill that it would bring about a hurricane of labor unrest have proved to be grossly exaggerated. The fact that agreements have been reached in all the major industries, except shipping, strongly suggests that a more cooperative attitude prevails in labor circles and this may have been influenced by the Taft-Hartley Act as well as by postwar experience. In any event, the period of steady work and production that now seems to loom ahead should redound to the advantage of management and labor alike.

Amusement Doldrums

Most businesses are flourishing, but as was to be expected, the industries that provide amusement and relaxation for the public are feeling the effects of high living costs. For when householders begin to worry about how to pay their grocery bills, economies are apt to take the form of shorter vacations nearer home and fewer visits to theaters and movies. Resort hotels, for instance, are complaining that tourists are making shorter stays and haggling over charges for accommodations. Their troubles have been aggravated by bad weather conditions in the early part of the summer that are not likely to be offset later in the season when the majority of workers and salaried people will have had their vacations. The movie industry has also been hit hard by a combination of rising costs and reduced attendance. The New York Times reports that the volume of box-office movie receipts is from 7 to 12 per cent below the level of a year ago. Sales of records and sheet music have also declined sharply this year.

Some of this loss of business is undoubtedly attributable to the fact that as postwar conditions become more normal, opportunities for spending become more diversified. As one movie producer puts it, during the war years "no other commodity was as freely available as entertainment. Now as other commodities are available, there is a drop to normal in the demand for entertainment." Another possible cause of reduced patronage of the movies, which naturally is not mentioned by spokesmen for the industry, is the poor quality of the entertainment provided by many of the current films. But that may be due in part to production economies enforced by the downward trend of custom that has been troubling the industry for a long time.

The chief cause of the declines in entertainment receipts, however, is no doubt the high level of prices in general that is bringing about changes in family expenditures. Amusements and luxury trades are the first to feel the pinch but, given time, other industries will also be affected. That is why even in the midst of a business boom so many business executives are constantly worrying about the depression that they fear may lie around the corner. They have good reason to be alarmed, for unless inflation is brought under control, rising prices, which always outpace advances in wages and salaries, will be reflected in reduced spending not only for luxuries but also for the things generally regarded as necessities.

Profits Picture

In his discussion of the Business Outlook appearing Sunday in The Washington Post, J. A. Livingston noted that the earnings of 83 companies for the second quarter of 1948 were 34 per cent higher than for the corresponding period of last year. Although this sample showing is not comprehensive and the average covers up a number of deficits, Mr. Livingston concludes that "final returns for 1948 are likely to be ahead of the high 1947 level." Last year industrial managements were the target of criticism from labor leaders and consumers alike who attributed the high level of profits to profiteering and cited it as evidence that industry could pay higher wages and higher materials costs out of excess profits instead of raising prices of manufactured goods. With profits at even higher levels and prices still rising, the increase in corporate profits is again attracting attention and adverse comment.

Both critics and defenders of corporate managements are, as it happens, in no position to pass judgment on the fairness of corporate profits by reference to aggregate earnings and year-to-year comparisons based on such aggregates. For such totals conceal the fact that some companies are in receipt of excessive profits while others may be in the red. Moreover, allowance has to be made for the fact that rising profits in a period of inflation cannot in fairness be compared with the profits of former years when prices were lower. Some allowance has to be made for price changes when comparing profits, just as in the case of wage comparisons, in order to judge the amount of the increase in real profits—that is, profits in terms of purchasing power as opposed to merely nominal gains.

An objective analysis of the profits statements of some of the large corporations whose price policies influence wide segments of the economy would contribute greatly to a better understanding of what constitutes fair as distinguished from excessive profits. If such a study were to be authorized by Congress, it would provide a factual basis for the study of pricing problems that is at present sadly lacking. The Sunday issue of the New York Herald-Tribune contained an article on the subject of corporate profits that suggests some fruitful lines of inquiry. After discussing the defects of the usual yardsticks for measuring profits, (1) the profit margin on sales, and (2) the relation of profits to net worth, the article gives the results of a limited survey, covering 11 large corporations, showing what use was made of each dollar received from sales in 1939 and 1947.

For the companies included in the Herald-Tribune survey dividends in most cases took a smaller share of the sales dollar in 1947 than in 1939, while outlays for wages and salaries accounted for a higher percentage of the sales dollar in 1947 than in 1939, as did reinvestments in the business. The same was true for taxes. Thus it appears that in these cases at least labor and the public at large shared in the benefits of expanding business activity, even in a period of high profits.

Crime In The Parks

The question of crime in the parks is more a question of more policemen, than of whether the park police force should be abolished and its jurisdiction merged with that of the metropolitan police. It is an unfortunate American disposition to solve a problem by a new formula. Given enough well-trained officers to do an adequate policing job, it is of minor importance whether the additional men are park policemen or metropolitan policemen. In the end, it all gets back to that urbane and charming gentleman, Congressman John Taber of New York.

It has been known for years that there were not enough park policemen to do the job that was set for them. Representations to this effect, to the Appropriations Committee of the House, have fallen on deaf ears. Public interest is revived after each succeeding crime, and with it is revived the old controversy whether the metropolitan or the park police should have the jurisdiction. The real agitation should be for more policemen of whichever variety.

Personally, I have favored a separate police force for the parks. I found this system in effect when I came to Washington from Chicago, where there was also a dual police force, the personnel of which rated higher than the city police. Other cities, too, have the dual system. The element of competition has a tendency to keep both groups on their toes.

Moreover, there is merit in the argument of the Department of the Interior that there are special duties in the parks, the performance of which in the public interest requires definite training beyond the needs of the city policemen. But in the end, it all gets down to the question of enough men to do the job.

It is hardly fair to condemn the park police for a failure that probably would be similarly a failure of the metropolitan police, unless the latter also were given additional men. I believe that more men, if attached to the park police force, could do a job to the public's satisfaction. After all, the Department of the Interior should not be criticized for lapses that are due to the fact that Mr. Taber must be permitted to indulge his antisocial idosyncrasies.

U. N. Home

Among the problems before Congress there is at least one that stands foremost affecting the very life of the United Nations. It is well, therefore, to remind our Congressmen that when the General Assembly of the United Nations meets in Paris next September there will be a strong effort made for the removal of its home from the United States to Europe.

We have a few among us who regard the United Nations as a nuisance, and we have a greater number of "penny wise, pound foolish" people who cannot see why 65 million dollars should be spent by us for a home for the United Nations when there are ample facilities for it already in Geneva, Switzerland.

They seem to forget, and perhaps do not realize, that the home of the United Nations, if transferred to Geneva, would be surrounded by Europe's predatory elements. Those very same elements were the ones who put an end to the League of Nations and will not hesitate to do their utmost to lead the United Nations to a similar demise.

It is, therefore, of vital importance that so far as the home of the United Nations is concerned it should be settled at once, based on the conviction that the United Nations needs America for her capital in order to survive the storms now facing her and which are likely to continue for sometime to come.

Third Party Mascot

I have been looking, perhaps in vain, for the Wallace party to adopt an official animal to give them full party status along with the donkey and the elephant.

Since they seem backward in this respect, I would like to offer three suggestions, any one of which would do full justice to the principles of the party. I suggest:

1. A bear, with the smiling, genial, honest face of Old Joe Stalin.
2. A wolf, in sheep's clothing.
3. A coiled snake with the face of Molotov, peeking out from behind the dove of peace, with red herrings rampant in the foreground.

3 R's Come First

I have read several letters relative to the request of the parents of Montgomery County that their children be taught the three R's in the schools. I believe most of these letters have been written by teachers or "educators," and most of them ridicule or denounce the parents for their stand.

They make references to the horse and buggy days and claim that the parents want to go back 20 or 30 years in education. They say, and Dr. Corning of the D. C. schools has also stated, that, while, they admit grudgingly, the three R's should be taught, they are not all that should be taught.

Who said that they were? I have nowhere found that they are all the parents want. As I understand it, these parents want a more thorough teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic plus a few things like grammar and history, instead of lighter subjects such as bowling, etc. Why do teachers object to the thorough teaching of these subjects, or, if they do not object, what are they complaining about?

If you had a house built and found the foundation poor, you would complain to the builder about it. If he then came to the conclusion that you wanted nothing but a foundation, you would certainly think the man had lost his mind. Are these arguments merely to cast discredit on the parents and becloud the issue?

As Others See Us

An article on American youth in the current issue of the Readers Digest prompted me, as an Englishman, to set down my impressions of Washington, after only a week in the city.

I know Americans fairly well. I had the honor to serve on Gen. Mark Clark's staff in Italy for some time, and lived and battled with the United States Army in both Africa and Italy—and in England. Already some of the "different" things which puzzled us Britishers during the war days have been made clear to me during the past week.

In Europe today we have scraped the bottom of the barrel and are now scraping the wood, but it is done with courtesy and consideration. Our waiters with little to serve, our bus conductors with meager rations to sustain them, our shop assistants and hotel staffs, all preserve good humor, civility and courtesy. I find few laughing faces or good humor in Washington. My hotel, a prominent one, was like a morgue, and the service was disagreeable. I left it after two days and now rent an apartment for $5 a day, without service, fan, icebox or even drinking water.

Why is there such an attitude? Is it that you have become so satiated with luxury and plenty that you have become restless, bored with your existence and inconsiderate of your fellow creatures?

My hopelessly inadequate allowance of dollars compels me to eat and shop cautiously, and nearly half of every meal goes to waste because I am served with extravagant and unnecessary portions. In Europe today, plates and dishes are sent back empty, and to me it is a terrible thought that the food wasted on plates in this country would raise the standard of living in Europe by many points.

I have visited three men's shops for small purchases, and was served by young men. In no case was my bill made out correctly, not through any attempt at dishonesty but through sheer inability to work out simple figures. One young man made excuses for his schooling and suggested that I might be better at adding than he. I was.

Is this indicative of youth today? Are they too being overfed with pleasures to the exclusion of the common essentials of a good upbringing? I feel I would be unwise further to state my impressions of the modern American child from the slight experience I have gained.

And on the other side of the ledger: During the weekend vacation I have tramped the city and spent many dollars on taxis. I have seen much of Washington and the immediate surroundings and it is beautiful. I have seen many capitals, but I will not enter into controversy about which is the most beautiful. Your public services and transportation merit the greatest praise. I am envious and covetous of your automobiles, and wish I could take one back to England with me. Your pleasures are legion, but they appear to be all bought pleasures. Your mechanization is ultra-modern and sometimes amazing, except perhaps in regard to food where you have sacrificed the culinary art, and flavor to the machine. I have yet to taste more tasteless "fresh" fish anywhere, and would almost believe that some are synthetic.

But how I wish my teen-age daughter could be with me to sample for the first time in her life, your sundaes, and ice creams and candies and the hundreds of dainties which your kiddies have come to take for granted. That is a measure of my own appreciation of them, too.

How little the American man-in-the-street knows of his British counterpart, and vice versa. We cannot learn those things from our press. More and more should Americans visit Europe and particularly England, which lost nearly all in the cause of the things which you proclaim, liberty and freedom, and study our way of life and our outlook.

I hate your humid heat.

Washington Calling

Berlin Balance

IN THE balance precariously held between peace and a final showdown with Soviet Russia the events of the past weekend must weight heavily. The net result will be known in the headlines of the days to come.

On one hand was the strange convention and final public rally of Henry Wallace's third party. Wallace's demand that the United States get out of Berlin will be exploited to the fullest by the Russians. It was exactly what they wanted to hear from an American.

The peril in such a statement is obvious. Deceived about the state of American public opinion by agents who feel compelled to sent back only the kind of news the Kremlin wants to hear, the Soviets could take the Wallace speech as evidence that the country is not behind a resolute stand in Berlin. Acting on that deception, they could bring about the calamity that so long has been dreaded.

At the same time that Wallace was haranguing his followers in Shibe Park in Philadelphia, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was meeting at Pawling with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and John Foster Dulles on the momentous subject of Berlin. Dewey's desire was to do everything possible to avoid rocking the boat in the present delicate situation while making it clear to the world that there is no difference between the Republican and the Democratic position on the basic issue of not yielding to Russian force in the blockade.

IN EVERY SPEECH Wallace and the lesser lights at Philadelphia brought out the name of Dulles, linking it with the catch phrase, "international banker." The response—loud boos and angry hisses—was each time as automatic as the response of a doorbell when you press the button. Dulles, Truman, the international bankers and "the generals" are back of the "get tough" policy. So the Wallaceites proclaimed. Boo! Hiss!

There is an irony in this that may some day be revealed. When Dulles was called to Washington last week for consultation on Berlin, he threw all the weight of his influence as Dewey's chief adviser on foreign policy on the side of new negotiations with the Russians.

Those negotiations, in Dulles' view, should begin informally in Moscow and after exploration at that level the foreign ministers of the four powers should meet to discuss all phases of the German deadlock. In other words, Dulles came down hard against the "get tough" policy, which seemed to be heading straight toward disaster.

Since Dulles' meeting in Washington with Secretary of State Marshall a great many things have happened. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military commander in Berlin, has come back for consultations. The President and Secretary Marshall have both declared the chances of peace to be excellent. Charles Bohlen, State Department counselor, has flown to Berlin repertedly to initiate new negotiations.

DULLES has consistently opposed the kind of centralized German government urged by Clay and adopted at the conference of the Western Allies in Berlin. Privately, Clay refers to Dulles in strong language as a friend of France who is obstructin in the reconstruction of Germany.

Clay's resentment of Dulles grows out of the latter's consistent advocacy of a policy that would avoid a centralized Germany. Dulles is in favor of a federation of western Europe to which the individual German states could belong. He also has consistently favored internationalization of industry of the Ruhr.

A year ago in Cambridge, England, addressing a world church group, Dulles suggested that military men were too influential in making American foreign policy. When he returned to this country, W. Stuart Symington, now Secretary for Air, wrote him about this criticism.

In the correspondence that followed, Symington included a long memorandum from Gen. Carl Spaatz, then Chief of Staff of the Air Force, on world policy. Dulles replied by saying, in effect, that he thought this proved his point and proposing that the correspondence be made public. Nothing further was heard from Symington

Dulles is a man of paradox. He is head, as the Wallaceites like to proclaim, of the largest corporation law firm in the world. But he is also chairman of the Federal Council of Churches' Commission on Peace and he has worked unstintingly for what he believes to be the way of peace.

The words of the statement issued by Dewey at the end of his conference with Dulles and Vandenberg were carefully weighed. The desire was to avoid any criticism of recent policy in Berlin that could be seized on by Moscow, while emphasizing the need for continuing negotiations. But the final record will show where Dulles has consistently stood and his position will be seen to have little relation to the one that the Wallaceites have for their own purposes so conveniently assigned him.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Crucial German Problem

IN DIPLOMACY as in war there is no more difficult operation than that which Secretary Marshall is now facing—namely, to alter his strategical plan while deeply and dangerously engaged: But it is evident that in order to stay in Berlin without going to war, he must resume four-power negotiations about Germany. This means that the three-power agreements which were signed in London at the beginning of June will have to be renegotiated with the Russians.

LIPPMANN

WHILE this is a very considerable diplomatic success for M. Molotov, it is not nearly so complete as it will look if we persist in ignoring the Warsaw declaration of June 24 on Soviet and satellite policy about Germany. The fact is that the Soviet position has been greatly modified since the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in London last autumn. A year ago M. Molotov was not talking about "the quick conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany" and "an end to the occupation regime." He was talking about a long and indefinite occupation, and it was this determination of the Russians to stay in Germany which justified new administrative arrangements, though not the creation of a German state, in western Germany.

Therefore, in agreeing to resume four-power negotiations, we are not starting all over again where we left off when the previous negotiations became hopelessly deadlocked. What we were trying to do then, and failing altogether, was to reach agreements by which the four powers could work together, governing Germany for many years to come. No such agreement is possible. Four powers, even if all of them were populated with saints, could not collaborate to govern the Germans, or any other large nation, or even any small nation. Three powers could not do it. Two powers could not. The fundamental fact is that military government can only be temporary: it is of all political undertakings most subject to the law of diminishing returns.

WHAT IS not only conceivable but necessary, perhaps even unavoidable, is that the four powers should agree on how to put an end to their effort to govern Germany. The problem is no longer how to collaborate. That, we have learned, is an insoluble problem. The problem, therefore, is how to make a settlement which terminates military government and liquidates the occupation with the least danger to the security of Europe and of the world.

THE HEART of that problem is quite evidently what kind of German regime there is to be which takes over when the occupying powers leave. Of the five proposals in the Warsaw Declaration by all odds the most important and contentious is the third which calls for "the establishment . . . of a provisional democratic peace-loving government for the whole of Germany." For there is no prospect of the four powers agreeing on such a government. What would satisfy M. Molotov, we should regard as a German government certain to be captured by the Communists and to be oriented with the Soviet Union.

What would satisfy us, the Russians and the eastern governments would regard as a Germany made a satellite of the west.

If, therefore, we resume negotiations with the idea that we must agree on a government for the whole of Germany, we shall again become hopelessly deadlocked.

BUT WHY, in all seriousness, must there be a government for the whole of Germany before we can agree on a German settlement which fixes the German frontiers, sets down the things which Germany is forbidden to do and the obligations which she must meet?

There is no all-German government today, and under military occupation no genuine German government can be established. It cannot be established because the four powers cannot agree. And if they could agree, it would be merely a government imposed by the victors, and therefore certain to be overthrown as soon as the victors withdrew their armies. Therefore, it is the part of wisdom, I contend, to abandon the idea that an all-German government must be established before a peace settlement is made.

IT WILL be said that unless there is an all-German government, there will be no German authority to take over when we leave. In my view the Allies could make a declaration of the terms of peace—dealing with frontiers, demilitarization, reparations, and other stipulations, and then restore to the German states, severally and jointly, the sovereignty that this allows the Germans. After that the Germans could be left, within the limits laid down, with the problem of their own constitutional development.

Our own experience throws some light on this problem. When the American colonies became independent, they were no more than a loose confederation of sovereign states. After the British occupation ended, many years elapsed before the separate states formed an effective central government.

Peace was made between the British and Americans before the Americans had a satisfactory government; why must there be a satisfactory German government before peace is made with the Germans? There is no reason, it seems to me, why the German constitutional problem must be solved before peace is made. There is even less reason to think that it can ever be solved under military occupation and before peace is made, for whatever form of government is set up under military occupation will be damned from the beginning. It will be the work of the occupying powers and not, as any durable constitution must be, the result of the Germans having had to face without assistance and without alibis responsibility for their own fate.

THIS IS, I would contend, the course we ought to take even if we were in full agreement with the Russians about the future of Germany. We ought to make the Germans face their own responsibilities because in no other way can they learn to meet them. But, as it happens, the course which is the wisest for dealing with the Germans is also the only course which offers any hope of agreement with the Russians. For if, as they now say, they want a quick treaty and a quick withdrawal, then they must give up, as we must give up, the idea that a four-power conference can solve quickly the German constitutional problem.

For that is a problem that will take years, perhaps a generation, to solve, and if we all stay in Germany, glaring at each other across the military frontier we shall probably have a war about Germany before the ideal German constitution, which every one likes, is agreed to.

Russian Showdown

By Sumner Welles

Hope In A Firm Stand

ON MAY 18 I reported that several governments in western Europe were being warned by their intelligence services that the Kremlin had decided upon a showdown before autumn. Russia's moves have now demonstrated that these warnings were justified.

The Soviet dictatorship deliberately provoked the Berlin crisis. But that does not necessarily mean that it is bent upon war. The Kremlin does not believe that any French government could join Britain and the United States in a course that might end in the use of armed force. It probably believes that if hostilities seem imminent this Government would find itself compelled to give way under the pressure of the American advocates of "peace at any price." The Politburo may for these reasons be persuaded that Russia can blackmail the western powers into concessions that would before long enable her to control Germany, and thus later dominate Europe without any need for a resort to war.

The Soviet government can place little credence in its own daily assertions of invincibility. Its boast that the Red armies could sweep westward to the Rhine within a few days, and to the Atlantic within a few weeks, is probably warranted. But while she is superior in manpower, Russia is no match for the United States in air and naval power, in economic strength and industrial development, or in many of the other advantages that are of supreme value in modern warfare. Russia's ability to utilize atomic weapons does not yet approach that of the United States.

THE DANGER that Moscow may force another war upon humanity lies in its realization that Soviet communism cannot expand if the European Recovery Program succeeds. It is to be found in the possibility that the Kremlin will turn to the expedient favored by dictatorships when they are confronted with opposition at home: a foreign war.

There are indications that the long-rumored rivalries within the Politburo are impairing the discipline of the Communist Party. The rift between the Molotov and Zhdanov factions has widened since the Cominform's excommunication of Tito.

Open hostility to the Moscow dictatorship has so far only shown itself in the Ukraine. But there can be little doubt that the war-weary Russian people would only willingly support the policies of aggressive imperialism upon which their rulers have embarked if Stalin convinces them that they are called upon to fight in order to forestall a foreign invasion.

The authority of the Soviet Union in world affairs is diminishing. The rebellion of the Yugoslav Communists against Moscow's absolutism has loosened the Kremlin's grip in the eastern European countries. Of that the purge now in progress is conclusive evidence. The myth of Soviet infallibility so long prevalent in western Europe has been shattered. Russia's prospects in the eastern Mediterranean and along her southern borders are less promising than they were a year ago.

APART FROM the universal ruin that a new war would bring, every American can visualize what such a conflict must mean to his own country.

The United States would be compelled to depend almost exclusively upon its own strength. The western European bloc is as yet only a shell. Unlike Norway and Denmark, Sweden still clings to the isolation which she calls neutrality. The strength of Italy and of the Low Countries is negligible. France's will to oppose invasion has been profoundly shaken. Britain's determination to resist cannot be questioned, but she no longer possesses the military power nor the resources required.

Yet even though this Nation were forced into war, unaided save for the moral support of the other democracies and for the material help rendered by the American republics and the British dominions, the eventual superiority of the United States can hardly be questioned. This country for the time being is still the strongest power of the world. It is also the country that can best withstand the strain of a prolonged military effort.

It seems incredible that the Kremlin, even in desperation would deliberately provoke a new war when the chances for Russian success seem so slight. It seems far more probable that the Kremlin hopes to force the United States into negotiations through which Russia could procure the means of controlling Germany.

CONSISTENTLY as I have disagreed with this Government's course in Germany since 1945, I believe that Secretary Marshall has rendered this country a further outstanding service by his direction of our policy since the beginning of the crisis in Berlin. He has quietly made plain our inflexible intention of maintaining our legitimate rights. He has prevented provocative action. He has avoided inflammatory official statements. He has made it clear that if direct negotiations break down, the existing threat to peace will be submitted to the United Nations.

The Kremlin's strategy will fail if the American people join in supporting a national policy which unflinchingly opposes further Russian expansion. At this moment of grave danger the President has hazarded the Nation's vital interests by making his call for a special session of the Congress a political maneuver in his election campaign. If recent signs of national dissension are intensified during this special session, Moscow will become convinced that the present Administration in Washington will be prevented by internal opposition from standing firm in the face of Russian pressure.

The best insurance against a new war is to prove to the Soviet dictatorship that it confronts a united America.

Many Homeless Veterans Can't Find Work Either

For many unemployed District veterans, getting a job has become as tough a proposition as finding a place to live.

Interviewers at the Veterans' Service Center were able to place five men in a single day last week, and they were "highly elated." But 40 to 50 men come to the center daily looking for work.

It isn't because jobs aren't available, said District USES Director Fred Z. Hetzel. He can find work, he said, for any veteran who is a craftsman or a professional man. There are jobs for bricklayers, mechanics, carpenters, engineers, architects.

For inexperienced men, however, jobs are scarce. For the veteran just completing his education, for men of "no particular trade or skill," USES has difficulty finding employment.

Brightest side to the veterans' employment picture, said Hetzel, is that fewer former servicemen are out of work now than at any time since the war ended. He estimated the number of jobless District vets as something less than one third of the total 19,000 D. C. unemployed.

According to Col. Waldron E. Leonard, director of the Veterans Service Center, there is currently a tendency for employers to resist taking on new employes.

"It is particularly difficult to find jobs for vets who have been terminated from Government positions," he reported. "The woods are full of people who have done personnel and administrative work, for instance."

Colonel Leonard said the center has placed many veterans in temporary District jobs, such as the X-ray survey and the District survey. Other jobseekers, provided they were qualified and could pass the physical requirements, have found overseas employment.

The center, while not an employment agency, does help veterans find work as a part of its overall problem-solving policy. Two center interviewers are abreast of Government job openings, as well as having some civilian employment contacts.

Truman Plans Weekend Flight to Independence

President Truman will fly to Independence, Mo., either Saturday or Sunday after attending the dedication of New York City's Idlewild Airport July 31.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said yesterday Mr. Truman is going home to vote in the Missouri Democratic primary August 3. He will fly back to Washington either Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

Wallace Returns To N. Y. Unnoticed

New York, July 26 (AP).—Henry Wallace returned today from Philadelphia, unnoticed by the crowds that thronged Pennsylvania Station. He was met only by a single reporter.

The Progressive Party presidential nominee said:

"The convention has been a success. It has indicated to us that we will roll, roll and keep rolling along."

Wallace was accompanied by Mrs. Elinor Gimbel, vice chairman of the party.

Wallace said he was going to his home at South Salem, N. Y., to work in his garden and "pull weeds."

Ukraine Reported Set for Largest Harvest in Years

Moscow, July 26 (AP).—Dispatches from all sections of the Ukraine, known as the bread basket of the Soviet Union, claim this year's harvest will be the highest in many years.

An intensive campaign is being carried on to get in the crop without losses. The entire life of the village communities has been moved into the fields, complete with field kitchens, nurseries, clubs, libraries and medical units. Mail, newspapers, magazines and telegrams are delivered to the farmers directly in the fields.

Tractor brigades with mobile repair shops cruise from one machine to another.

HOW You INTERPRET THIS PICTURE

Is a Clue to Your Future Happiness

(a) With good luck he would never have had an accident.

(b) One accident may be enough to make him pay for the rest of his life.

(c) He couldn't have done more than protect himself against this possibility.

(d) It's terrible; he never suspected this might happen to him.

Yes, from your reactions to given situations, modern psychology can tell you many things about yourself; some you have guessed . . . some you never suspected. The situation depicted above is one of a series in the "Security Analysis Quiz" compiled by the eminent psychologist, Dr. Ernest Dichter. This quiz measures your relative degree of security . . . and, because it tells you your viewpoint towards the future, you can anticipate your degree of future happiness. The "Security Analysis Quiz" is completely personal. You take it. You score it. You, alone, know the answer. Compiled in popular magazine "Quiz" style, this quiz is interesting and entertaining . . . not at all technical, but authentic and scientifically accurate.

Stocks Slump On Political Prospects

New York, July 26 (AP).—Caution gripped the stock market today while traders awaited President Truman's message to the Congress on Tuesday.

Final prices were off fractions to around 2 points mostly due to slim buying power rather than aggressive selling.

Sales amounted to only 720,000 shares, a low since a total of 690,000 about four months ago. This compared with 820,000 Friday.

Berlin news also tended to restrict activity, not because of any sensational developments but because, as traders pointed out, the blockade problem has not yet been solved.

Favorable corporation news was practically ignored.

Ending lower were such issues as Nickel Plate 81, U. S. Steel 78⅜, Republic Steel 28⅝, J. I. Case 44½, Schenley 29¾. Sante Fe 109½, Union Pacific 89, Standard Oil (N. J.) 81, Gulf Oil 73¼, Richfield Oil 41 and Eastern Airlines 15¼.

Douglas Aircraft added more than a point and small improvement was noted in Lockheed, J. C. Penny, and Transcontinental & Western Air.

Bonds slipped a notch or two while U. S. Governments moved narrowly in the over-the-counter market.

The market's course was one-way throughout the day and barely a flicker of a rally disturbed its pattern. It was the first losing day since last Monday, when the list nosedived for the sharpest break since November 1946. In the interval the market patiently recouped a large part of the lost ground.

Similar downward tendencies have been displayed on the eves of the past couple of presidential messages, but in each case a strong upward thrust developed almost immediately—although one was short-lived.

Traders were not too concerned with what the President might plead for tomorrow in the way of legislation or what the Congress might actually place on the law books. Some of the measures that the President is expected to advocate are conceded to have little chance of passage at the hands of a Republican Congress. Others which may be expected to pass—such as a housing bill—are not the type of legislation to worry any but limited sections of the business community.

Traders operated on the "just in case" theory. Just in case something happened in Washington that they didn't expect, they wanted to be out of the market.

Some of the largest losses today appeared in the railway and oil groups, but this was explained as due to the fact that these two groups have been well in front of a good many advances in recent months.

Philadelpsia Co. Attacks SEC Order

Philadelphia Company, of Pittsburgh, yesterday asked the U. S. Court of Appeals to set aside a Securities and Exchange Commission order requiring the company to get rid of its gas and transportation properties and to dissolve.

On June 1, the SEC held that the 370-million-dollar utility holding company system could keep only Duquesne Light Company, its principal integrated public utility system, and various minor businesses.

This system, the company contended, is not the type of holding company system which Congress intended should be dissolved under the utility holding company act. The petition said:

"The (SEC) order of June 1," the petition said, "should be set aside in its entirety for the reason that it is based in large part upon findings which are not supported in any way by any evidence in the record . . .

"The petitioners and their respective security holders are deprived of liberty and property without due process of law in violation of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution . . . by reason of the commission's actions."

ICC Authorizes $18,490,000 Issue

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Lakefront Dock & Railroad Terminal Co. to issue $18,490,000 of securities to cover construction cost of new terminal facilities at Toledo, Ohio.

Funds for the work were advanced equally by the New York Central and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad companies.

As reimbursements for these advances, the terminal company is authorized to issue $9,240,000 of capital stock consisting of 92,400 shares of $100 par value which will be turned over to the railroads. An issue of $9,250,000 of first mortgage sinking fund bonds also will be sold, with proceeds going to the railroads.

The bonds, which will be guaranteed by the two railroads, will be dated June 1, 1948, to mature in 20 years.

Philip Morris Reports Quarterly Sales Record

New York, July 26 (AP).—Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., today reported all-time high sales of $50,689,000 during the quarter ended June 30, compared with $42,857,000 in the June quarter last year.

First quarter sales this year totaled $41,224,000, compared with $37,497,000 in the first quarter of 1947.

ew Haven Loss Seen Despite Peak Traffic

New York, July 26 (AP).—A railad official estimated today that e New York, New Haven and artford Railroad, with the highest acetime passenger revenue in history in 1948, would have a ,613,801 deficit from this year's erations.

L. V. Sullivan, railroad comptrolr, testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing that the anticipated deficit "is the second highest for any peacetime year," exceeded only by a 1947 deficit of $4,421,033.

The hearing is in connection with a railroad petition asking the I.C.C. to increase intrastate fares to the rate now in effect on interstate travel.

Prices To Drop Sharply At Start, Economist Says

New York, July 26 (AP).—When prices do start to go down, the decline probably will be a sharp one, the National Bureau of Economic Research said today.

The observation is contained in a study of postwar prices made by the bureau and reported by Dr. Frederick C. Mills, professor of economics at Columbia University. Dr. Mills is a member of the research staff of the bureau, a nonprofit organization devoted to scientific and economic research.

In a review of price trends, Dr. Mills said that since 1938-39 and up to the recent further advance in consumer prices, wholesale market prices had doubled and living costs had gone up two thirds.

The greatest advances, he said, were in soft goods such as food and farm products, with farm products rising nearly 200 per cent.

With the stability of rents holding the level in check, Dr. Mills reported, the general cost of living for urban workers went up 68 per cent.

New York Cotton

New York, July 26 (AP).—Cotton futures registered losses of 50 to 80 cents a bale in slow dealings today. The market was under light pressure of liquidation and hedge selling. Favorable developments on exports and higher mid-July cotton parity ideas appeared to be overshadowed by expectations of a large Government cotton crop forecast on August 9 and uncertainty created by the special session on Congress.

News over the weekend that SCAP had reentered the market for 50,000 bales of cotton for Japan had no effect on the futures market. Traders, however, anticipated later covering against such sales in December, 1948, the delivery which is the futures month on which the sales will be based.

The New York Cotton Exchange reported additional exports of 7,547 bales of cotton last Friday, bringing the estimated total for the season to 1,947,660 bales against 3,352,009 in the same period a year ago.

Steel Firms Earned 9.54%, FTC Reports

The Federal Trade Commission said yesterday that leading United States steel companies last year made a 9.54 per cent return on their investments after taxes.

It issued a report on international steel cartels stating the companies had total sales of $5,629,290,460 in 1947, almost 98 per cent more than the previous high in 1940.

The commission drew no conclusions and made no recommendations in today's report, but submitted a detailed analysis of the growth of international steel cartels between World Wars I and II.

It said the steel industry, "bellwether" of American business, is "highly integrated and highly mechanized."

As of January 1, 1940, it said, wholly and partially integrated companies owned about 90 per cent of the total capacity of the United States steel industry. On January 1, 1947, the percentage was 88.4.

It said this decrease resulted from the retirement from service of 5,314,850 tons of steel producing capacity by the big companies, while smaller companies increased their capacity by 1,009,670 tons between 1940 and 1947.

The commission said the Steel Export Association of American began active participation in international steel commodity cartels, or "comptoirs," as early as July 26, 1928.

As an example of how the international cartel sought to eliminate price competition, the commission said, members drew on the world cartel's "reserve fund" to wage a price war against any "nonassociated" producer who sought to cut prices.

EAL "BALL GAME": Eastern Air Line plans a system-wide "baseball game" on August 1 as part of an effort to get heavier hitting behind ticket sales promotion. The staffs of the EAL terminals in 85 cities will constitute the "teams." Players and teams will get points for ticket sales and the leaders will win prizes of various electric equipment.

ODD LOTS: Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. has made a grant of $250,000 to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for research in atomic energy . . . A new weekly cargo record in June enabled United Air Lines to more than double its cargo ton mileage for that month over 1947 . . . Platinum prices were advanced $5 an ounce yesterday to $93 wholesale and $96 retail.

EARNINGS: Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co. reports net income of $3,978,572 for the first half of 1948 compared with $8,683,002 for the comparative period of 1947. The income in both instances was after a writedown in the reserve for inventory price declines. When the latter were added to net income the amount transferred to earned surplus was $5,228,572, equal to $2.51 a share, compared with $9,783,002, equal to $4.78 a share last year . . . Phillips Petroleum Co. reports consolidated net profit of $36,481,282 for the first half of 1948, equal to $6.03 a share, against $15,459,699 and $3.14 a share last year. Other reports follow:

Britain Ends Surrender Of Slav 'Collaborators'

London, July 26 (U.P.).—Britain today ended the surrender of alleged Nazi or Fascist collaborators to Yugoslavia.

Foreign Undersecretary Christopher Mayhew told the House of Commons that Britain has surrendered only 58 collaborators to Belgrade of 400 found in Britain or British-controlled territory. In each case, he said, investigation showed the 58 were guilty of willful collaboration.

Altogether, Mayhew said, Yugoslavia had asked the surrender of 1800 persons, but 1400 had not been found.

Mills Pounds Out Sensational Win Over Lesnevich

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THERE IS EVIDENCE that Jake Mintz, manager of Ezzard Charles, was suddenly disenchanted with the idea of his man fighting Jimmy Bivins on the Variety Club's show at Griffith Stadium, and made a bare-faced attempt to run out of the match. The best he achieved was a week's postponement to August 9, but at any rate Mintz can't count it a total loss.

POVICH

Charles needed some kind of a postponement desperately, it seems. He wasn't in shape to fight Bivins next week by Mintz's admission, and the stakes were too high to put Charles in there with Bivins at anything less than his best. In fact it was somewhat surprising that Mintz originally agreed to a Bivins fight here, with his man in a perfect spot to sidestep the old Cleveland battler and lay strong claim to Joe Louis' vacated title.

Charles has already licked Bivins twice in three fights but Mintz knows Bivins is levelling for this one and has been in training almost since the match was signed three weeks ago. A Bivins in shape and a Charles out of shape would collapse the title ambitions of Mintz's man and leave Mintz accused of the worst kind of matchmaking at a time when his man was on the threshold of the big money.

AND TODAY, particularly, Mintz is in a mood to deplore the whole idea of fighting Bivins in Washington for what could be no more than a $15,000 purse. His man Charles has moved up in the heavyweight reckoning without moving a muscle as a consequence of the surprise defeat of Gus Lesnevich by Freddie Mills in London yesterday. That makes Charles an even more important figure in the title picture.

A Bivins fight was a needless risk for Charles to start with but now in the light of Lesnevich's heavyweight demise it could be a horrible piece of folly on Mintz's part. The idea that he had made a bad match for Charles probably motivated Mintz's request for a postponement anyway. What he actually was shooting for was a cancellation, it is believed. He had knowledge that the August 9 date belonged to rival promoters and could presume they wouldn't give it up. If so, he reckoned without the generosity of Goldie Ahearn who waived his claim to the Griffith Stadium date.

Mintz submitted affidavits from Cincinnati doctors that Charles was afflicted with a glandular ailment and could not be in best condition by August 2, but privately he admitted "Charles didn't start training early enough. He's been loafing, and we can't get him ready for a tough guy like Bivins unless we get a new date." It would have pleased him if the new date could not have been arranged.

CHARLES' ATTEMPTED run-out is the best evidence that Washington is finally getting a fight of some heavyweight significance. It's important for the fact that it is the first bout recognized by the NBA in the elimination tournament to determine Joe Louis' successor. The winner would have a powerful claim on a September match in Yankee Stadium.

That latter fact apparently was a factor in Mintz's attempt to duck Bivins. The Twentieth Century Sporting Club has Lesnevich tied up for a September bout and has been making solid overtures to Charles. The latter's appearance against Bivins here is a needless risk. He could take down as much as $100,000 for his end of a fight in New York, and if he walked out the winner he'd be the No. One title contender.

Bivins, in shape, is no sure-thing loser to Charles even if the latter is at his best. In the past year, Bivins has been defaulting his chances to move up in the heavyweight ranks with not much seriousness of purpose but he can recoup with a win over Charles and the fact that he has been in training for three weeks attests to a new enthusiasm.

LEONARD SHANE, manager of Bivins, ridicules the whole idea that all Charles wanted was a postponement. "He wanted out of the Bivins match," says Shane, who lays the onus on Chris Dundee, Charles' New York representative. "Dundee is arranging for a Charles-Lesnevish fight and is trying to talk Mintz out of going through with the Bivins match in Washington."

With the Variety Club able to grant Charles a week's postponement and produce another date, ducking out of the match was a tough problem for Charles. He could, of course, have chucked it, and moved into New York to fight Lesnevich but he would be inviting the certain wrath of the National Boxing Association of which the District is a member.

Charles could get away with it though, if he moved into New York and licked Lesnevich. He could then scorn the NBA because he would be a drawing card in New York. But if he lost to Lesnevich and punctured his New York status as a gate attraction, his only remaining course would be to hang up his gloves, because he'd be barred in the 38 States of the N.B.A. And so, reluctantly, he'll fight Bivins here August 9.

Dodger Fans Hail Durocher With Rip-Roaring Razzberry

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 26 (AP).—This was D-Day in Brooklyn—Durocher back at Ebbets Field—and the former Dodger manager, now directing the destinies of New York Giants, will never forget it.

And not just because the Giants routed Brooklyn, 13 to 4.

Leo Returns, Batters Bums

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 26 (AP).—Brooklyn's prodigal son, Leo Durocher, returned to Ebbets Feld tonight and led the New York Giants to a decisive 13-4 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers whom he managed nine years until his transfer across the river 10 days ago.

The Giants' collection of base hits included home runs by Johnny Mize and Bobby Thomson, triples by Willard Marshall and Billy Rigney and doubles b Whitey Lockman and Buddy Kerr.

The defeat dropped the Dodgers into third place, half a game behind the idle St. Louis Cardinals and 5½ behind the league-leadin Boston Braves. The triumph left the Giants in fifth placen, half a game behind the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Washington Stars Play Brooklyn Here Tonight

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Fifteen Brooklyn boys arrived here last night and they made it plain that sightseeing wasn't their primary mission.

Members of the Brooklyn All-Stars, they're out to avenge a 12-2 defeat handed them by the Washington All-Stars in Brooklyn recently. Tonight's return engagement at Griffith Stadium begins at 8:30 o'clock.

In the event of rain, the game will be played Wednesday night.

Special 60-Cent Ticket for Kids

A special 60-cent ticket will be sold boys and girls 15 years old and under for tonight's Brooklyn-Washington All Star amateur classic at Griffith Stadium 8:30 o'clock tonight. Adult admission, including tax, is $1.20. Tickets are on sale in the lobby of The Washington Post from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. and may be purchased at the ball park today and tonight.

It was at Ebbets Field before 13,000 proud home fans that Jim Munro's pick of the local junior league laid it on the Brooklynites.

In an effort to forestall a similar result, Owen Carroll, manager of the team sponsored by The Brooklyn Eagle and the Brooklyn Dodgers, plans to start Billy (No-Hit) Loes. In pitching Long Island City's Bryant High to the Metropolitan championship, Loes threw four no-hitters this year and one last season.

Ol' Bobo Newsom has promised to pitch batting practice against the boys. And, as Griffith Stadium regulars know, Bobo always is worth the price of admission.

When Newson is slipping that stuff past the 18-year-olders, he may find a ringer at the plate. George Sisler, of .420 batting fame in the American League, is driving here for the game. He manages the Brooklyn All-Stars at Ebbets Field. It's probable that Sisler will be persuaded to step up against Newsom for a few swings.

Newsom also will help The Washington Post's Walter Haight on the public address announcing.

The local lads, sponsored by The Washington Post, will go into the game as favorites after their impressive performance in Brooklyn recently.

Witzel Starting Hurler

Manager Munro plans to start Bill Witzel, ace righthander of the Marx team and a student at Maryland. The 18-year-old has been in big games before. He pitched Marx to the national junior championship last year, beating New Orleans, 8 to 2.

Then Munro could fall back on Eddie Kline, if necessary. Kline won the last Brooklyn game by hurling a six-hitter and he batted in three runs himself.

Most of Washington's attack is expected to be generated by Sal GeGiorgi, Ed Claxton, Dave Zatz, Bill Jones and Bobby Curtis.

LITTLE DODGERS ARRIVE—Brooklyn's "Little Dodgers" arrived at Union Station last evening for tonight's game at Griffith Stadium with Washington's Junior All-Stars. Like the National League Dodgers, the "Little Dodgers" were full of confidence they will avenge the 12-2 licking they took at the hands of the Washington boys at Ebbets Field recently. Tommy Bell TKOs Hursey In 10th Round

By Frank Wagner
Post Reporter

Tommy Bell, of Youngstown, Ohio, spent 10 rounds measuring Washington's Smuggy Hursey for a knockout blow last night at Griffith Stadium before 4,441 slightly bored customers.

The blow—rather a series of them—came in the tenth and Referee Eddie La Fond awarded Bell a technical knockout at 2:44 minutes of the round.

Bell started the fight with sharp flurries to Hursey's head and seemed headed for an easy KO victory. After suffering a comic fall later in the round, Bell apparently caught the clown spirit.

Either a lack of interest or poor condition caused him to loaf through eight more rounds against a sluggish Smuggy who seemed effective only when Bell became careless.

Hursey was credited with a three-count knockdown in the eighth round.

Bell came to life in the tenth to end it.

Bell weighed 148½, Hursey 155.

Gross gate receipts for the five-card event were $10,660.97, netting $7787.09.

Washington's Johnny Arduini stalke dhis opponent with quick hard counter punches for six rounds to gain an unanimous decision from Lew Yonkers of Roanoke, Va.

Bobby McQuillar, 138, of Detroit, scored an easy technical knockout of Washington's Charley Bennett in 2:17 of the third round of their scheduled six-rounder.

Both four-round preliminary bouts ended in split decisions. Puggy Lyons scored enough points with his crouching tie-up of Jimmy Hawkins to rate the nod from one judge and Referee Charley Reynolds. Lyonst weighed 137, Hawkins 133. Both are from Washington.

Charles Gains August 9 Delay of Bivins Bout, Ranks No. 1 With Lesnevich's Defeat

Pittsburgh, July 26 (AP).—Jake Mintz, comanager of Fighter Ezzard Charles, declared tonight the defeat of Gus Lesnevich "just proves that Charles is the No. 1 man for the heavyweight title."

Mintz said Charles has no interest in a bout with Freddie Mills and will not claim the 175-pound title.

"They can keep the light heavyweight title in England," Mintz said. "We're after the heavyweight crown. We're going to concentrate on that."

Elimination Bouts Planned for Fall

New York, July 26 (AP).—Gus Lesnevich was removed temporarily from the list of leading contenders for Joe Louis' vacated heavyweight crown tonight by his surprising defeat in London that also crowned Britain's Freddie Mills new king of the 175-pounders.

When Louis stepped down as heavyweight champion last month, Lesnevich was grouped with Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles as the "big three" in the heavyweight picture.

The Twentieth Cetury Sporting Club indicated tonight Lesnevich was not included now in its fall plans for an elimination tournamet to seek a successor to the Brown Bomber.

The promotional group said plans now call for an elimination involving Charles, a leading light-heavyweight contender; Walcott, Joe Kaksi and Lee Savold. These four probably will be seen in a September 22 show at the Yan-Kee Stadium.

"From all the reports of the fight Lesnevich apparently was pretty well beaten up," a Twentieth Century spokesman said. "He wouldn't be able to fight in September if he wanted to."

In London, Joe Villa, Lesnevich's manager, admitted the defeat had knocked Gus out of the heavyweight picture. Villa said the Cliffside Park, N. J., veteran now was interested in a return bout with Mills.

Commission Gives Ezzard More Time To Get in Shape

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The District Boxing Commission yesterday granted Ezzard Charles a week's postponement of his bout with Jimmy Bivins, originally scheduled to be held here August 2.

The new date for the clash between two of the Nation's leading aspirants for Joe Louis' heavyweight title is August 9. The site remains the same, Griffith Stadium.

The August 9 date was made available by Promoter Goldie Ahearn of the Liberty Athletic Club, who had first call on Griffith Stadium for August 6.

When Charles, who was granted the postponement because he is undergoing treatments for hemorrhoids, originally requested the bout be postponed until August 9, Ahearn said he would not relinquish his date. Yesterday, however, Ahearn suddenly announced that he would not stand in the way of the Variety Club's charity boxing match.

Based on Doctor's Report

The Boxing Commission reached its decision in another of its star-chamber sessions. The decision was actually made over the weekend when the local commission was told by Dr. Walter Phillips of the Cincinnati Boxing Commission that Charles was ailing and had not trained in a week. Dr. Phillips recommended the postponement.

Dr. Phillips examined Charles when the Cincinnati fighter requested a postponement. His findings were telephoned to Chairman Heinie Miller of the D. C. commission, over the weekend. Miller said the local group's decision would be "based on Dr. Phillips' report."

Attending yesterday's meeting was Dr. Don Knowlton of the D. C. commission, who told the commission it would be liable to civil suit if it permitted a "sick fighter to fight."

Bunker Hill Wins

Correcion—The result of Halloran-Murray's game Sunday with Bunker Hill in the American Legion junior league was incorrectly reported. Bunker Hill won the game, 11-2, instead of Halloran-Murray.

Sawyer Named Phil Manager

Philadelphia, July 26 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies reached out into their farm system today and moved up Eddie Sawyer to take over the reins as manager.

Sawyer, 37-year-old native of Westerly, R. I., was promoted from head man of the Phillies International League farm at Toronto. He succeeds Dusty Cooke, who took over as acting manager 11 days ago when Ben Chapman was dismissed suddenly.

Never a major league player or manager but well versed in minor league leadership, Sawyer assumes his new duties tomorrow night when the Phils open a long home stand with the Chicago Cubs.

"Eddie was the first and only candidate considered for the position," said Bob Carpenter, owner of the club. "He was selected because of the outstanding work he has done in our farm system in the past 4½ years."

The new Phillies head man said he had signed a contract running through 1949. He added he is considering no immediate changes in the coaching staff.

"My idea will be to develop the younger players," said Sawyer. "We have a wealth of them coming up and, with those already on the club, we should be right up there challenging for the pennant in another year or so."

Gus Down Twice for '9;' Briton Takes World Title

By Gayle Talbot

London, July 26 (AP).—Gus Lesnevich fell victim to one of the most sensational ring upsets in recent history tonight when he lost his world light heavyweight title to Freddie Mills of Britain, a former carnival plugger, who was thought "washed up" a year ago.

A record British crowd of 46,000 rent the clear evening air over White City Stadium when Referee Teddy Waltham, the lone official strode quickly across the ring and lifted Mills' glove in token of victory after 15 rounds of milling.

With the gesture went Lesnevich's roseate hopes of fighting Joe Louis in September for the heavyweight crown, with its lucrative rewards.

"Just Didn't Have It"

Gus didn't complain about the decision, but told his wife in the dressing room, "I just didn't have it tonight."

He entered the ring a 4-1 favorite, yet from the first round on he bled heavily from around both eyes. In the tenth round, the American was down twice for 9 counts from roundhouse lefts to his jaw.

The Associated Press score card gave Lesnevich seven rounds, Mills five and three even, yet could find little fault with the verdict. Mills seemed to have the greater edge in the rounds he took and finished in better shape.

Lesnevich, the 33-year-old campaigner from Cliffside Park, N. Y., who had held the title since 1941, probably weakened himself considerably in making weight. He barely scraped in at 174¾ while Mills weighed 170½.

Sucker Punch Starts It

Mills, a heavy-browed clubber, landed a wild sucker punch on Lesnevich's chin in the first round and the American never recovered his composure, although he rallied stoutly in the conflict's latter stages.

Until Mills exploded his left on Gus' jaw in the tenth, it was a remarkably dull fight. Neither man was willing or able to force the going and the referee warned them repeatedly to show some action.

The crowd, too, was beginning to boo. However, a few recalled it was the tenth round in which Lesnevich stopped Mills in their previous fight in May, 1946, and there was still hope of fireworks.

Mills didn't keep them waiting long. The tenth had barely opened when he nailed Gus and the American hit the floor. He arose after a nine count and went down again for nine. The second time Mills hit him, Gus went down so hard he bounced.

Gus' Rally to No Avail

As his seconds pleaded with him Lesnevich rallied to win the twelfth and thirteenth rounds with a savage attack.

But Mills, seeing victory within his grasp, was determined not to let it get away. He pressed into the conflict with new vigor the last two rounds.

The referee didn't hesitate about making his decision. He walked to Mills' corner and raised his hand while the British throng let out a exultant yell.

"Good old Freddie," the screamed in tribute to the first British subject to hold the 175-pound crown since Bob Fitzsimmons lost it in 1905 to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Gus, bleeding from ugly gashes below nad above both eyes, was crying as he left the ring.

He had to lose around 10 pounds to make weight and his right hand lost its explosive qualities. He planted it more than a score of times flush on the Briton's jaw but never shook him seriously. Mills was unmarked after the fight.

Mills' manager, Ted Broadribb announced, meanwhile, the new champion "would be glad to fulfill any assignments" that might have gone to the victorious Lesnevich—

Nats Hoping To Reach 5th On Road Trip

Enroute to Chicago, July 26.—While the Red Sox, Athletics and Yankees headed toward the West with pennant ambitions, the Nats tonight were headed that way, too, but not with such lofty hopes as the other Eastern teams.

Manager Joe Kuhel's gang has its eyes on fifth place when it returns to Griffith Stadium, August 13.

Five games behind the fifth-place Tigers today, Kuhel believes his club has a "strong chance" to dislodge the Bengals on this current 16-game trip.

"Our hitting has improved in the last few games and if we can get the pitching to go along with it I think we can overhaul Detroit," the Griff skipper said. "Detroit didn't look too hot to me when we played them at home last week."

Whatever the Nats do on this next to the last trip West, they're rather certain to improve on their performance on this same trip last year. At this stage of the campaign in 1947, the Nats lost 11 in a row and tumbled from fifth place to seventh, where they eventually finished.

Kuhel is undecided who will open against the White Sox tomorrow night, but may give the assignment to Dick Wetleroth, 19-year-old rookie righthander. If it's not Welteroth, Mickey Haefner will probably be the choice.

Although he's received no word from Will Harridge, Kuhel also believes that the American League president will summon Ed Stewart, Ray Scarborough and the Nat boss into his office during the team's stay in Chicago to air the Nat charges against Umpire Bill McGowan.

McGowan was suspended by Harridge last week on complaints by the Nats that the veteran arbiter had cursed a player and threw a baseball at another.

After a daylight performance against the Sox Wednesday, the Nats shift over to Lafayette, Ind., for an exhibition game against an all-star team Thursday night and then continue against the Browns, Tigers, Indians and Athletics before returning to Washington.

Leggett Dies After Bolt by Alpine Boy

Cumberland, Md., July 26 (AP).—The State Rating Commission plans to find out if blindness caused an aged hayburner to bolt through the rail at Fairgo Saturday and kill Jockey Benny Leggett.

H. Courtenay Jenifer, member of the commission, said today it would make an investigation and get a report from three staff veterinarians.

Dr. James A. Gross, veterinarian and owner of the 12-year-old gelding Alpine Boy, said at his home in Jarrettsville, Md., that the horse is blind in one eye "but there was nothing wrong with the other one as far as I know."

Barred at Charles Town

Dr. Gross said Alpine Boy ran in 11 races in 1947, winning three of them, coming in second five times, and third once. That was after he had been barred from the track at Charles Town, W. Va. Dr. W. E. Trussell, the veterinarian there, said Alpine Boy is totally blind.

He barred the racer from Charles Town again this year and said a vitamin B deficiency makes the horse subject to periods of blindness in his one good eye.

Dr. Gross said he had seen Alpine Boy at the time and there wasn't anything wrong with the good eye then. That was about six weeks ago. The gelding's start in the 5-furlong run for $1000 at the Cumberland track Saturday was his first start this year.

Goes Through Inside Rail

About 30 yards out of the starting gate, he bolted through the inside rail and threw Leggett. The 22-year-old jockey was taken to a first-aid room but was on his feet in a few minutes. He collapsed in the jockey room later and was taken to a hospital, where he died yesterday.

Robert (Skeets) Holland, who was aboard Scuttlemate in the same race, said today he had the following conversation with Leggett as they rode to the post:

Leggett: "I guess I better be careful. I hear this horse ducks once in a while."

Holland: "Yes, I know about that horse. I wouldn't ride him. Better take it easy out of the gate."

Ex-Clerk Indicted In $389 Bank Fraud

In Alexandria

Man Given 6 Months in Near-Riot

One man was sentenced to 6 months to jail yesterday while another hovered near death in Alexandria Hospital as the result of a near-riot in Alexandria Saturday night.

Sentenced in Alexandria Police Court was Robert J. Moore, 19, of 204 Princess st., Alexandria, whom police charged with obstructing justice when they tried to disperse a mob estimated around 1000 at N. Henry and Queen sts.

Reported in critical condition at the hospital was Pvt. Eugene Butts, 22, of Fort Belvoir, who was shot in the groin by Officer Wilmer M. Cator after Butts allegedly struck another policeman, Charles L. Baber, and tried to grab his revolver.

When they tried to break up the crowd, they said, Buts refused to move. The policemen arrested Butts, but he broke away. In the ensuing fracas Butts and a man identified as Joseph Hunt, 20, of 720 Gibbon st., Alexandria, allegedly beat up Baber.

A former bookkeeper with the Washington Loan & Trst Co. was indicted here yesterday on charges of embezzling $389.

This was among 26 true bills returned by the regular grand jury in District Court. Others charged a man with hitting his 1year-old son with a brick, another with attempting to engage in a sexual act with a 4-year-old girl, and three persons with operating a numbers lottery.

The bookkeeper, Kenneth A. Snipe, 27, of 3835 S st. se., allegedly pocketed checks he received while employed at the bank last April. According to police, bank examiners discovered the shortage and traced it to Shipe, who made a $2000-a-year salary. They learned that Shipe destroyed the checks when they were returned to his bank canceled in order to cover up the embazzlement.

A national bank examiner discovered the shortage, however. Police said that Shipe cashed the checks at a local night club, a grocery store and a telephone office.

Elizabeth Simmons, 38, of 742 50th st. ne., was charged with five counts of lottery operation between June 5 and June 8. A five-count indictment with charges of numbers running between June 18 and July 2 was placed against Thelma Jones, 28, of 1010 3d st. nw. Four charges of operation between May 11 and May 13 were returned against William R. Bailey, 43, of 1013 2d st. ne.

Alvin S. Chase, 20, of 470 M st. sw., was charged with assaulting his 1-year-old son, Charles, and his 9-year-old niece, Juanita F. Weldon, with bricks. According to police, Chase became miffed in an argument with his wife while she was at her family's residence at 1108 New Jersey ave. se., and threw a brick into the window, painfully injuring the boy, and then threw in another piece of brick, striking the niece.

Alvin M. Romeo, 17, of 315 G st. ne., was charged with assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge on a 4-year-old girl in the back of a delicatessen at 221 Upshur st. nw. According to the charges, the girl had gone to the store to get bubble gum and was induced by Romeo to come to the back with him. The girl told police that she was given some animal crackers after the assault.

Daniel M. Burke, 24, of Culpeper, Va., was charged with assault with intent to rape a 29-year-old employe of the French government here as she was walking with a girl friend near Dumbarton Oaks along a parkway in Rock Creek Park on June 26 at 9:10 p. m.

Two men were charged with assault on policemen. The defendants are Clarence M. Thompson, 28, of 1334 Vermont ave. nw., and Howard E. Parker, 24, of 4612 B st. se.

GI Warned In Traffic Case

A disabled veteran, who transports six amputees to school each day, was warned for parking in an alley last week.

He was one of 97 motorists for whom traffic tickets were adjusted last week, police reported yesterday.

The veteran, Donald Cameron, 25, of 1738 M st. nw., said he parked his car in the alley in the rear of Peters School of Horology, 817 14th st. nw., where he and the amputees are studying, because they had only a short distance to walk to the school from there.

A warning was also given to Joseph E. Garrison, 25, of 200 19th st. se., who had received a ticket for disobeying a policeman's signal.

Tickets were cancelled for the following motorists because of diplomatic immunity:

Jose Guteirrey, Republic of Colombia, standing in a "no standing from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone; Michael Lancreman, French Embassy, parked in a hackers' stand; Irene Neelly, 4735 Nebraska ave. nw., parked in a loading zone; Alvaro Rey de Castro, Peruvian Embassy, parked less than 25 feet from a stop sign; Walter Nuez, 1852 Monroe st. nw., 40 miles an hour; Alberto E. D. C. Attorney Files Suit in Dore Art Sale

New York, July 26 (AP).—John M. Holzworth, Washington, D. C., and New York attorney, today filed in Federal Court a $500,000 damage suit against Manhattan storage & Warehouse Co., and Kaliski and Gabey, Inc., auctioneers.

Holzworth, who said he was a resident of Hot Springs, Idaho, charged breach of agreement in connection with the sale of the Dore art collection. He said he purchased it last year for $12,500.

Commission Tells How Examination Plan Works Out

The Civil Service Commission is repeatedly accused by Federal officials and employes alike of bungling its examining program. The war has been over nearly three years and still there are hundreds of thousands of war service and temporary employes on the rolls. In this and tomorrow's vacation columns, the commission officials tell their side of the story.

When the war ended, the Government faced a tremendous program in converting hundreds of thousands of civilian positions from a wartime to a peacetime basis.

How is the battle going?

The answer is—better than predicted. The program will be practically over by the end of this fiscal year.

The first probational registers following the war were established in July, 1946. Since that date, approximately 41,000 probational registers have been set up. Instead of the 67 per cent war-service and temporary employes during the war period, and the 33 per cent status employes, the proportion has been more than reversed. Today, about 69 per cent of all Federal employes have a permanent status, about 23 per cent are still war service or long-term temporaries, and the remaining 8 per cent have short-term temporary jobs.

Statistics cannot tell all of the story. Everyone knew that a program of this kind, involving hundreds of thousands of persons scattered in offices, naval yards, and in arsenals from coast to coast, would be a difficult one. That this has proven to be the case need surprise no one. At least five large and important groups connected with the program wanted something of great significance. They wanted it badly. They did not want the same thing.

These groups included:

1. War-service employes.
2. Displaced career workers.
3. Returning veterans.
4. Women employes.
5. Personnel directors.

The first question ordinarily asked about reconversion is why the Government did not return at once to its prewar level of a million employes.

The difficulty of such an accomplishment can be appreciated when it is noted that as of today, if the Government decided to do this, and wished to retain Post Office employes and 3 out of 4 employes in the national military establishment, it would then have to release all other persons in the executive branch of the Federal Government.

Although this goal of a million has not been reached, the demobilization has constituted one of the greatest programs of the kind in history. The total number of wartime employes has been cut by more than a million and a half from the war peak.

Obviously, this aim, reduction in force, was not the outstanding personal thought of most war-service employes. They wanted to stay, if possible. Many had been recruited from thousands of miles away. They had been told it would be patriotic to help the Government. Some had been on the job from three to four years. They knew when they came their jobs were not permanent, but they at least had hoped they could take an examination and, if they passed, receive a permanent status.

Before them loomed two imposing barriers. If they scaled No. 1 successfully—reduction in force—they still had to pass a civil service examination. First they had to find one. Most of them had thought that as soon as the war was over they would be examined immediately and those who passed would have a chance to be permanent.

It was not nearly as simple as that. Giving postwar examinations could be no pushbutton affair. The Government service has thousands of kinds of positions. This means thousands of different kinds of tests. Someone had to decide which examinations would be given first.

The rule followed has been to give decided preference to large examinations so that the resulting registers may close out the cases of as large groups as possible. All war-service employes did not hold such jobs.

Scattered here and there throughout the agencies were war-service employes with specialized positions for which there was no counterpart in other agencies. Naturally, if Agency A had three such persons, and there were no others in the Government service, there was extremely little demand either within the Government or from the outside for an open competitive examination. Not enough positions were involved.

This did not alter the fact that the three employes themselves continued to be vastly interested in getting an examination as soon as possible so that they and any others who competed might be considered for permanent appointment. Nor was it possible to simply take out of a file cabinet a prewar examination and give it as a test to postwar candidates. Conditions have changed. Examination procedures have changed. The jobs themselves have changed. For example, some agencies before the war had long-established positions of extreme complexity requiring years of training before a person could qualify.

When the war came, the agencies found they could not get such eligibles. So they broke down the jobs into a number of parts and hired different persons for each part. Therefore, when the examination came to be given, each job had to be studied to see what tests would be practical.

Vice Squad Uses Sledge In Gambling House Raid

Policemen Smash Two Locked Doors Guarding Hidden Numbers Setup

Vice squad raiders yesterday afternoon knocked over a gambling headquarters busy enough, they said, to be handling 7500 numbers "plays" a day.

Fourteen police officers, led by Lieut. Roy Blick, arrested two men and three women. Two other men, allegedly "pickup men," were arrested shortly after the raid.

With the aid of a sledge hammer, the squad smashed through two locked doors on the ground floor of a two-story house at 1006 7th st. ne.

Upstairs in a back room, its shades drawn and covered with heavy blue drapes, they nabbed Joseph Augustus Chase, 43, of 1842 2nd st. nw., said by police to head the establishment.

Chase was charged with setting up a gaming table, permitting gaming, operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. Police said they took two large envelopes containing cash from him.

Also arrested was Chase's daughter, Theresa, 24, of the 2d st. address, charged with setting up a gaming table, operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

The same charges were placed against Julius Smith, 47, 54 53d st. se., Bernice Budd, 27, 425 M st., nw., Ernestine Swann Chichester, 31, 3529 10th st. nw.

Later, police arrested Daniel Webster Cunningham, 37, 637 8th st, ne., and Albert Ellsworth Johnson, 35, 20 K st. nw., after trailing them from the premises, they said. Both were charged with operating a lottery and posession of lottery slips.

All will be arraigned today before United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence.

Police said they found in a rear upstairs room three card tables, three adding machines and a telephone. The raiders took several bets over the telephone while making the arrests.

Player Seeks $2921 for $7 Numbers Bet

An alleged numbers backer was sued in Municipal Court yesterday for $2921 damages on the claim that he welched on a $7 numbers bet.

The suit was filed by Cecil P. Green, 1016 Whittingham pl. ne. The defendant is Andrew P. Gordon, 4653 Hayes st. ne., who is now awaiting trial here after indictment on charges of numbers-lottery operation and possession of numbers slips.

Green, through his attorney, Andrew W. Carroll, claimed three times the sum he bet under a District gaming statute or $21. He asked an additional $2900 as punitive or exemplary damages for fraud. He also sued in the alternative under general fraud provisions for $7, the sum he bet, together with $2900 punitive damages.

The suit says that on June 7, an "agent" of Gordon's induced Green to place the $7 bet on number 918 and represented that Gordon would pay $4200 if the number hit.

The number came out as the winner, Green said, but he didn't get paid.

Under the local gaming statute, any person here who accepts a bet is liable to pay triple the amount of the debt. The District government gets one third of the award, two thirds going to the person bringing the suit.

Gear for the Guard

The Washington Post

EMERGENCY FLIGHT—A plane is loaded here with equipment needed by District National Guardsmen, now at Camp Pendleton, Va. It reached there early yesterday evening. At the loading, in the plane T/Sergt. Kenneth Myero helps with a crate, and Maj. Paul Bailey (right) takes inventory. The third soldier is unidentified bursement officer of the National Guard here.

District Guard Reaches Camp Without Messkits, Uniforms

The Second Army spokesman placed the blame on the National Guard, citing regulations that "no unit is to go to camp until fully equipped."

But General Cox couldn't quite see it that way. "Some of the supplies which the Army was to have shipped us a week ago have not yet arrived," he said.

Among the missing items were meat cans which General Cox said he "presumed" were that part of the mess gear which the soldiers ate from.

The Guard chief said he was inclined to believe the foulup was caused in part by heavy recruiting in the last 60 days.

He said Major Bernsdorff reported all requisitions had been filled up until 2 p. m. Saturday. The men left by truck and train early Sunday.

Criticizing the "District Guard Staff" for "repeated failures and inefficiency" Colonel Myers declared that, to add to the woes of the men, gas ran out while the trucks were being fueled at the District Guard armory, delaying the convoy "2 or 3 hours."

The colonel declared the men were being taken care of through "improvising" and "borrowing" odds and ends of equipment from "local sources."

He said he sensed supply difficulties a week ago and personally brought to camp 1000 plates.

General Cox declared he would probably visit the camp a "week from Wednesday." He said he wanted the men to get acclimated to training conditions before he appeared.

The encampment is under command of Col. Leroy S. Mann, commander of the 260th Antiaircraft Group, who said he concurred with Colonel Myers in the latter's criticism.

Controversy and turmoil are nothing new to the District Guard.

Several weeks ago it was the center of a row between Colonel Mann and Col. Peyton G. Nevitt over who was to be boss in the absence of General Cox. Last March the House Appropriations Committee charged the Guard "with wanton disregard of the law" in the expenditure of its funds.

Five Capital Area Residents Lose Lives in Water Mishaps

Five persons from the vicinity of Washington, including two teen-age girls from Prince Georges County, Md., have drowned since Saturday.

The girls were identified as Joyce Elizabeth Sprouse, 15, of 6202 Kingston rd., Capitol Heights, Md., and her cousin, Doris Bernice Downes, 19, of 600 62d pl., Bernice Milburn Seat Pleasant, Md. Nonswimmers, they were wading in the surf at Capt. Charles Beach, Va., Saturday, when they were swept down by a wave from a passing ferry.

Their grandmother, Mrs. Sallie Charnock, of Cape Charles, and other family members said a third cousin, Bernice Milburn, 14, of 6741 Roosevelt ave., Seat Pleasant, narrowly escaped the same fate. The three, their relatives said, were holding hands when knocked over. Bodies of the two girls were recovered 35 minutes later.

Joint funeral services will be held for the cousins at 1 p. m. Wednesday, at Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se. They will be buried in Christ Episcopal Church Cemetery, Owensville, Md.

Near Leesburg, Va., Pfc. Anthony Polk, 20, son of Rev. and Mrs. William H. Polk, of Leesburg, drowned yesterday in Dry Mill Creek, one mile west of the town. The soldier, home on furlough from Fort Dix, N. J., failed to resurface after diving into the creek, according to Deputy Sheriff C. F. Reed.

The three-day toll also included two Washington area youths who drowned in separate accidents

Joyce Sprouse

Doris Downes

Sunday in the Severn River, near Annapolis, Md. They were identified as Charles W. McAlexander, jr., 18, of 611 Greenwich st., Falls Church, Va., and Francis Wanex, 19, of Eastport, Md.

McAlexander, recently of Kansas City, Mo., lost his life when swimming at Herald Harbor, according to Dr. John Claffy, Anne Arundel County medical examiner. He was employed in Arlington, Va., as a clerk at the Navy annex.

Wanex, whose body was still unrecovered last night, drowned off Winchester, Sunday. He was with Thomas Stinchcomb, jr., 20, of Annapolis. Stinchcomb told police the two were riding the bow of a rowboat being towed by a speedboat when their craft capsized. The speedboat operator picked up Stinchcomb, but his comrade had disappeared.

Arnold Bus Probe Asked In Arlington

Residents Charge Inefficiency in Service Despite Increased Fare

An investigation of Arnold bus service by "some authoritative body" has been asked by 200 Arlington residents in petitions sent to Federal and local officials.

According to Benjamin L. Tipton, one of the signers, the petitions have been sent to the House and Senate District Committees, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the District and Arlington Public Utilities Commissions and the Virginia Corporation Commission.

Inefficiency Charged

Tipton said the group entered a protest against what it termed inefficiency on the part of the company, and has asked for the inquiry to determine whether the firm is providing the "minimum" service required under its charter. The petition charges Arnold service has shown no improvement despite a recent fare increase which was granted on the basis of proposed betterments.

Particular target of the complaint is the "3-F" route, which runs between Washington and East Falls Church via Lee Highway, Tipton said.

The petition "most emphatically protests the present deplorable state of bus transportation between Washington and Arlington and within the county."

Tipton said the petition was a "spontaneous" movement which resulted from discussions and conferences among commuters since the company revised its schedules last may. He said no organized group was backing the protest.

Lester Conley, chairman of the Arlington Public Utilities Commission, said he hasn't had time to analyze the protest, but added, "We do know the Arnold Co. has, for more than a year, been making continuous efforts to improve its service to the county at large, and to reorganize its schedules to the satisfaction of its commuters. Cooperation between the company and our commission has been 100 per cent."

Gas Blamed In Arlington Kitchen Blast

An unexplained explosion of cooking gas was blamed by Arlington police yesterday for a blast that severely injured Miss Esther Williams in her Arlington apartment Sunday.

C. Burns Pressley, chief of the county detective bureau, said Miss Williams told police the explosion occurred when she attempted to light the oven of her kitchen stove.

There was no indication of whether another jet on the stove was open, Pressley said. However, the explosion indicated that a considerable quantity of gas had accumulated.

The blast blew out the back doorway and part of a supporting wall in Miss Williams' kitchen, and shattered a 4-inch plaster partition separating her kitchen from that of Mrs. William Whitehead, next door. Both apartments are at 349 N. Glebe rd.

An official of the Rosslyn Gas Co. said investigators were unable to find defects in gas equipment in either apartment. He said, however, the explosion appeared to have been caused by gas, "possibly of the type we furnish."

Miss Williams, an employe of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, suffered third degree burns of the upper and lower body before she was led from the kitchen by neighbors, her clothes afire. She was reported in fair condition last night by Arlington Hospital authorities, who said she showed "some improvement."

With Miss Williams yesterday were her mother, Mrs. M. T. Williams, and her sister, Miss Amy Williams, both of Dunellen, N. J. They came here after being informed of the accident by police.

According to Miss Amy Williams, her sister told her the explosion occurred as she was preparing supper. She learned her sister had closed the kitchen door, then shut the apartment windows because she wanted to make a telephone call and desired to keep out noises.

He Fired Too Late

HELD UP BY SIX—Armor Macon, holding the rock with which he was struck by one of six holdup men when they robbed Perry's Garage, 7115 Central ave., Capitol Heights, Md., yesterday. Macon grabbed up the shotgun and fired a blast at them as they fled but they were too far away to be struck

'Gas' Station Holdup Nets 6 Bandits $5

Greater Washington police yesterday were searching for six Negroes who held up a gasoline station in Capitol Heights, Md., with a shotgun and took $5 after assaulting an attendant.

The men drove into Perry's Garage, 7115 Central ave., shortly after 1 p. m. One man carried a shotgun, another a knife and a third a rock. Armor Macon, 35, of was at work in the garage.

The man with the rock struck at Macon, who ducked. The rock hit his shoulder. Macon slumped to the ground as if knocked out. The men took $5 from the cash register, returned to their car and fled east on Central ave. toward Largo, Md.

The driver of a Sinclair Oil Co. truck was delivering oil at the station while the holdup was in progress. He remained in the cab of the truck until the men left and then ran to the assistance of Macon, who was not injured except for a bruised shoulder. Macon then grabbed a shotgun and fired a blast at the disappearing car.

Silver Spring police last night were questioning a Silver Spring man in whose name the car was registered. They quoted him as saying a cousin had borrowed it.

Man Held for Jury For Violating New District Sex Law

Gilbert L. Birckhead, 20, of 338 17th pl. ne., was held for the grand jury yesterday on a charge that he attmepted to take indecent liberties with a 5-year-old girl here.

Judge George D. Neilson held Birckhead, a business college student, under $1000 bond for violation of the new District sex law. Birckhead did not testify.

The girl's mother, only witness in the case, said the alleged incident took place in the basement of the defendant's home on Saturday. The girl police reported, was slightly injured.

Under the sex law, Birckhead is liable to serve a 10-year prison term, if convicted.

Army to Withdraw Some Alaskan Troops

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, deputy chief of staff, said yesterday the Army plans to withdraw the bulk of its combat troops from Alaksa when cold weather sets in.

Lack of adequate housing is the reason, he said.

Collins and Assistant Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray have just returned from a two-weeks inspection trip to Alaska.

Gray said $76,083,000 recently appropriated will enable new Army and Air Force housing to be built. But Collins added it would be three years before adequate housing would be ready, since the construction season in Alaska is only about three months.

Mrs. Hallberg Killed in Mich. Auto Accident

Geographic Society Employe's Husband Only Slightly Injured

Mrs. Helen Hallberg, 29, of 1600 16th st. nw., an employe of the National Geographic Society, was fatally injured Sunday night in a Detroit automobile collision in which her husband, Ernest V. Hallberg, jr., was slightly injured.

Mrs. Hallberg

The driver of the car which collided with the Hallberg automobile, 16-year-old Wilbur V. Hamill of Detroit, was reported also killed.

Hallberg, a George Washington University law student, and his wife were visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Baden of Dearborn, Mich. Friends here said they were returning from a picnic with the Badens and Mrs. Hallberg's brother, and his wife and baby, when the accident occurred.

Police reported the Hallberg car, driven by her brother, Phillip Baden, jr., was struck when Hamill failed to stop at an intersection.

Hallberg, who was attending the summer session at law school, had left here Friday to meet his wife and return with her today. They had planned a party here tonight to celebrate his birthday.

Mrs. Hallberg, who was a graduate of Dearborn High School and Michigan State College, came to Washington in 1942 as an employe of the Office of Censorship. She had worked for the National Geographic Society since June, 1945.

A four-car Fairfax County accident which slightly injured a District resident and an 8-year-old Michigan girl yesterday was reported by county police.

The multiple crash occurred when a car driven by John R. Hattle, 117 Poplar st., Fairfax, broke its steering mechanism on Route 50, about 1½ miles east of Fairfax Circle, and jumped the island in the center of the highway.

Drivers of three cars coming in the opposite direction stopped suddenly to avoid a collision, and nicked one another. The injured, who were released after treatment, were Beach Day of 1736 V st. nw., who was in the last of the three autos, and Sharon Edwards of Maybee, Mich.

Big Navy Plane Christening at Airport Thursday

Official christening ceremonies for the Navy's largest airplane, the 92-ton Lockheed Constitution, will be held at noon Thursday at the Washington National Airport.

Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan will speak, and Mrs. Sullivan will smash a bottle of champagne against the ship's nose.

Officials of the Navy, Army and Air Force and members of Congress are expected to attend. The public is invited.

The 168-passenger giant, which landed at Patuxent Naval Air Station Sunday afternoon after a successful initial transcontinental flight from California, will fly to the airport here Wednesday.

Following the christening, the plane will make a brief demonstration flight. It will be on display from 2 to 7 p. m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

2 Speeders Fined $300 In Hyattsville Police Court

Four Other Traffic Violators Heavily Assessed by Trial Magistrate Bowie

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie of Hyattsville Police Court yesterday handed out $300 in Monday morning blues to a pair of Sunday motorists who tried to elude State troopers at a reported 85 miles per hour.

Four other traffic violators were fined a total of $495.

Hubert Freeman, 27, of 4200 Foote st. ne., and Alex Sullivan, 21, 720 Chillum rd., Chillum, Md., were fined $150 each for speeding. State Troopers Kenneth Davis and Vincent Castiglione arrested them after a chase at speeds ranging up to 85 miles an hour from Beltsville to College Park, on the Baltimore blvd.

Freedman was arrested at his home about two hours after the chase. He turned off during the chase, Trooper Davis testified.

In another case, Davis arrested Samuel Hatcher, 23, of 1103 Maryland ave. ne., on June 19 after a chase on the Baltimore blvd. that started at Ammendale and continued to Scaggsville. The car exceeded 90 miles an hour at times, the trooper testified. Hatcher was fined $100, but the fine was suspended after a plea for leniency by his attorney, former Baltimore Police Judge Joseph F. DiDomanico.

James Simpson, 35, Baltimore, was fined $100 for speeding and $20 for passing two traffic lights on Baltimore ave., Hyattsville. He was arrested by Hyattsville Town Policemen Kenneth Mourean and Charles Williams.

Robert L. Allen, 37, Chicago, was fined $100 for operating a truck while drunk on Baltimore blvd. near the District line Sunday, an additional $25 for reckless driving and $25 for disorderly conduct while being booked at the Hyattsville police station by Prince Georges County Policeman James H. Burgess.

Robert Lewis Tippett, 45, of 7001 Dartmouth ave., College Park, Md., was fined $100 for driving while drunk and $25 for reckless driving. He appealed the conviction to Circuit Court. Tippett was arrested by State Police Troopers Kenneth V. Davis and Jack Davis while driving on University lane through the University of Maryland grounds.

Maryland Boy Brings Polio Total to 23

Illness of a 9-year-old Takoma Park, Md., boy in Gallinger Hospital here yesterday was recorded by the District Health Department as this area's 23d polio case this year.

The boy, who lives in the 6000 block of Allegheny st., was admitted to the hospital last week, and physicians there diagnosed his sickness as infantile paralysis on Saturday, health officers said.

His case brings to 13 the number of nonresident patients under polio treatment in District hospitals. Ten resident cases are also under treatment here.

Cases reported from North Carolina, where the Nation's worst polio epidemic of the year is raging, brought that State's total since January 1 to 927 cases. The number includes 43 new cases reported yesterday by the State Board of Health.

Arlington Farms Closing Studied

Public housing administration said yesterday they are conducting a study of financial operations at Arlington Farms dormitories to determine if the project can continue to operate. The dormitories which house about 3500 female government workers, are incurring a growing financial deficit.

The report, to be ready about September 1, will recommend either operating economies, rent increases, or closing down the project, depending on the findings of the committee, it was said.

Legislator Offers Free Beds to GOP Pals

By John London
Post Reporter

As a "friendly gesture," Representative Harold C. Hagen (R., Minn.) is turning his three-bedroom residence at 4012 Southern ave. se., into a free rooming house for fellow Congressmen.

Rep. Hagen

Hagen last night said he had offered free lodging to Representatives Earl Wilson (R., Ind.) and Robert J. Corbett (R., Pa.). Hagen said he had heard both were caught short without housing in Washington because of President Truman's unexpected action in recalling Congress.

If Corbett and Wilson accept the invitation, Hagen says, "they'll have to make their own beds."

Asked what his wife back home in Minnesota might think about the plan, Hagen replied with a chuckle:

"She doesn't know yet, but so long as it's only a couple of men . . ."

Corbett gave up his apartment in town when Congress adjourned in June. Wilson, according to an aide, sublet his apartment in Fairfax Village and at last report was paying $7.50 a day at the Raleigh Hotel.

Of some 55 Representatives and Senators phoned at random yesterday, the majority said they had been spared the Corbett-Wilson housing pains—because they own homes here or did not gve up leases or sublet apartments when Congress adjourned.

One Congressman who did sublet, Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.) proved himself wisely cautious. He sublet his apartment in Fairfax Village only with the understanding that he might use a spare bedroom in event of an emergency session.

Many Congressmen are staying temporarily at hotels, like Representative Claude Bakewell (R., Md.) who gave up his rented house here in June. His secretary, who observed that living at a hotel "can be as expensive as all getout," turned tables on the inquiring reporter.

She laughingly asked: "Er . . . you don't happen to have any idea where Mr. Bakewell might find a place, do you?"

One of those who reported he had no real housing problem in Washington was Senator Harry Cain (R., Wash.) who told the Senate on February 20, in a 3½ hour speech, that "there is no actual shortage of housing . . . merely a desperate shortage of housing which is for rent."

Cain said yesterday he had sublet his apartment for the summer, but has "at least a half dozen places to stay." He said he's living with cousins in Georgetown.

Area News in Brief

Area Using Water At A Record Rate

Greater Washington is using more water this month than ever in its history, David V. Auld, water superintendent, said yesterday.

Water consumption during the first three weeks this month averaged 185,000,000 gallons a day, he said. Of that total 173 million gallons were used in the District and about 12 million in nearby Virginia.

Highest previous daily average in a single month was 175,000,000 gallons a day in August, 1947.

Auld attributed the high consumption "largely" to the recent hot weather. Consumption would have been even higher, he said, had it not been for "well-spaced" rain during the period.

Consumption during June also established a new high for that month, he said, with a daily average of 170,907,000 gallons.

$1000 Fire Damage

An estimated $1000 damage was caused by a fire that broke out yesterday in the rear of a home occupied by T. B. Haley, 7301 Piney Branch rd., Takoma Park. Volunteer firemen from Takoma Park and Silver Spring brought the blaze under control after a wall and a portion of the roof were destroyed. Firemen said children appeared to have set fire to trash under the rear foundation.

Fined for Hitting Mother

An unemployed Glen Cove, Md., man, Thomas McNeil, 45, was fined $25 in Bethesda police court yesterday after being convicted of striking his mother three times in the face last July 23 in their home. The mother, Mrs. Frances McNeil, 70, testified her son struck her following a family argument. In imposing the fine, Judge Warren Browning declared: "You have sunk as low as any person can go."

Stolen Guns Returned

Guns and ammunition belonging to Donal L. Chamberlin, 205 Highland dr., Kenwood, Md., real estate developer, stolen by three Montgomery County youths on Sunday, were returned to their owner yesterday, Bethesda police reported. The loot included three shotguns, three rifles, a revolver, an automatic pistol, as well as 16 boxes of shotgun ammunition and a large number of clips of rifle bullets.

Good Jobs Go Begging

An $8175-a-year job as director of the District's new alcoholic clinic is going begging these days because of a lack of qualified applicants willing to accept the salary, Health Officer George C. Ruhland revealed yesterday.

He said he also is finding no takers for the $7102-a-year post as chief of the psychiatric service at Gallinger Hospital. The National Committee for Mental Hygiene in New York, he said, informed him that as many as 40 vacancies in comparable jobs now exist throughout the Nation.

Drinks Cleansing Powder

Beverly Ray, 23, of 1515 16th st. nw., was treated at George Washington Hospital early yesterday after she mistakenly drank some cleansing powder, believing it to be carbonated soda, police reported. Police said she diluted about a tablespoon of the cleanser in a glass of water. Her condition was not serious, and she returned home later in the day.

'Fringe' Parking Study

Possible changes in downtown routing of proposed shuttle bus lines to serve "fringe" parking facilities will be discussed today by the Commissioners' coordinating committee at 2 p. m. in the District Building.

If the committee can agree on a suitable downtown routing, officials said, the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency will ask the Public Utilities Commission to approve the shuttle bus plan, paving the way to operation of the "fringe" parking system. This would enable drivers to park cars outside the downtown section and ride by bus to the F st. shopping district and return—all for the price of one parking ticket.

$4300 Paid Burned Girl

Fifteen-year-old Adeline Van Nostrand Paul, will receive $4300 damages under a consent judgment signed yesterday for the burns she received when a tub of water was spilled on her in a canteen here during the war.

Miss Paul, according to the suit filed in District Court, was burned while she was a volunteer worker with the American Women's Voluntary Services. The accident occurred in July, 1945 when another worker at the canteen, then at 22d st. and Constitution ave. nw., bumped into the girl. She lives in New York now.

Man Hurt in Fall

Ernest Herbert Smith, 51, of 2409 Shannon pl., se., received head injuries yesterday when he fell 5 feet to the ground from a neighbor's porch, police said.

Smith was climbing over the porch rail to drill a hole for electric wiring, when the railing gave way, according to police. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital and reported in good condition.

William Smith, Waterproofing Pioneer, Dies

William Harold Smith, 59, a pioneer in the waterproofing business here, died yesterday at 2:30 a. m., at his apartment in the Dorchester House. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

A native of London, England, Mr. Smith was the son of William Northey Smith and Mrs. Elizabeth Wyatt Smith of that city. He attended Huntington College, Cambridge University, for about two years.

During World War I, Mr. Smith served with the British army as an officer. He later served the British government in Montreal, Canada, for about a year and a half.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., where he was an employe of the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., prior to 1926, when he again moved to Washington.

Mr. Smith developed a waterproofing paint formula during a period when he was engaged in construction and real estate work here. About 15 years ago he organized the S. & E. Waterproofing Co. here and expanded the business with contracts for waterproofing in prewar Government housing projects in New Jersey and Long Island, N. Y.

With the outbreak of World War II, Mr. Smith became affiliated with a New York firm, using his formula. He retired from business more than a year ago, when he suffered a heart attack.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marion B. Smith, and seven children, Bernard, Edgerton, Bruce and Misses Pauline, Leonora, Virginia and Joyce, all of the Dorchester House address.

Mrs. Patterson's Rites Today For Relatives and Intimates

Private funeral services will be held here this morning for Mrs. Eleanor Medill (Cissy) Patterson, editor and publisher of the Washington Times-Herald.

Later today the body will be shipped to Chicago for interment there Wednesday in the family burial plot at Graceland Cemetery. Burial services, too, will be private.

Today's services for family and close friends will be conducted in the mansion at 15 Dupont Circle by the Rev. Dr. Dudley E. Stark, of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, Chicago. Exact hour of the service was a guarded secret to insure privacy.

Heart Seizure Victim

Mrs. Patterson, 63, died of a heart seizure early Saturday at her country home, Dower House, near Rosaryville, Md.

Born into newspaper wealth and tradition, she entered the field in July, 1930, at the age of 46, as editor of the Washington Herald. Within nine years, she had bought both the Herald and the Washington Times, and had combined them into the Times-Herald.

Mrs. Patterson was the granddaughter of Joseph Medill, founder of the Chicago Tribune, and daughter of Robert Wilson Patterson, onetime editor in chief of the same newspaper. Her brother the late Capt. Joseph Patterson, was publisher of the New York Daily News.

Took Maiden Name

Her entry into newspaper publishing came shortly after the courts permitted her to resume her maiden name with the prefix "Mrs." This followed closely the death of her second husband, Elmer Schlesinger, lawyer and former counsel to the United States Shipping Board.

She divorced her first husband, Count Josef Gizycki, in Chicago, in 1917, reportedly settling her marital problems with him for the sum of $500,000. Eight years before that she regained custody of her only child, Countess Felicia Gizycka, but only after the intervention of President Taft and the Czar of Russia.

She leaves her daughter, the former wife of Drew Pearson, news columnist; a granddaughter, Mrs. George L. Arnold, of Santa Monica, Calif., and a great-grandson, Drew Pearson Arnold, born in 1946.

17 Families Lose Eviction Suit in U St. Building

Chief Judge George P. Barse yesterday ruled against 17 families fighting eviction from the building at 1436 U st. nw.

The families, with a total of 24 children involved, came into the case after their landlord, L. R. Digge, lost possession of the building for alleged nonpayment of rent. The families said they should have been given notice of the action.

Judge Barse said he was forced to rule against the tenants since they were not parties to the contract between Diggs and the superior landlord, Kass Realty Co., Inc.

Rehabilitation Groups to Meet

The medical advisory committee of the District Rehabilitation Service will meet with the newly organized rehabilitation committee of the District Medical Society tonight at 8 in Doctors' Hospital.

David Amato, chief of the Rehabilitation Service, a unit of the office of vocational rehabilitation of the Federal Security Agency, said officials will discuss means of bringing the "message of rehabilitation" to "individual" doctors in the city.

He pointed out that persons frequently need retraining and vocational counseling following illness.

Three latest contestants in the "Miss Greater Washington" competition sponsored by Radio Station WWDC got in just under the contest deadline at midnight Saturday. They are Larene Linn of 1426 M st. nw.; LaVerne Gjesvold, 2742 Woodley pl. nw., and Rebecca A. Langston, 3401 Brothers pl. se.

Columbia Road Merchants Form Citizens' Group

About 40 merchants in the vicinity of 19th st. and Columbia rd. nw. last night formed an organization of businessmen in that area.

The group, still unnamed, elected Benjamin Corbett, 410 Emerson st. nw., temporary chairman. David Franks, 1317 Sheridan st. nw., was elected temporary secretary, and J. McGerrigle, 2901 18th st. nw., temporary treasurer.

The organization will attempt to promote better business and better traffic, parking and lighting conditions in the area. The organizing meeting was held at Lodi's Restaurant, 2463 18th st. nw.

Negro Opera Unit To Hold Exhibit, Festival Here

The National Negro Opera Company will hold a convention, exhibit and music festival here during the week beginning August 1.

Activities will open with a mass meeting Sunday at 5 p. m. at the Metropolitan AME Church, 1518 M st. nw., followed by a reception at the YWCA annex, 1719 13th st. nw.

The program will include lectures, roundtable discussions and concerts, all involving opera. Climax will be a music festival at Griffith Stadium August 7.

At business sessions, delegates will discuss possibilities of erecting a permanent legitimate opera house in Washington and plans for raising a $50,000 sustaining fund.

Phone Box Stolen

Montgomery County police yesterday reported the theft of a telephone containing $6 in nickels from the wall of a Kensington, Md., construction shed.

R. L. Kendrick, District Native, Veteran, Dies

Raymond L. Kendrick, 53, a lifelong resident of the Washington area, died yesterday at Sibley Hospital. He had been ill for about five years.

Born in Washington and educated in the public schools here, Mr. Kendrick moved to Alexandria, Va., about five years ago. His address there was 3407 Old Dominion blvd.

He was employed for 24 years as an electrical technician at the Union Barber Supply Co.

A sergeant during World War I, Mr. Kendrick was a member of the American Legion for many years.

Funeral Wednesday

He leaves his wife, Kathryn, of the above address, and three sisters, Mrs. Alma O. Sarton of Alexandria, Mrs. Edna Pearl Smith of Arlington, and Mrs. Ruth Corrado of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Court Orders Thomas Case Reward Paid

Fairfax Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown yesterday ordered that the $500 reward offered last fall for finding Mrs. Martha Thomas, 101-year-old former slave, be paid to Benjamin J. Winger.

The Immediate Relief Association of Fairfax County offered the reward shortly after Mrs. Thomas disappeared September 20 from her home at Burke Station.

Winger, a neighbor, who has since moved to Bailey's Crossroads, found her body November 2, caught in a barbed wire fence about a quarter of a mile from her home.

The association refused to pay the reward, but ther reasons never came out at yesterday's proceedings. James H. Raby, attorney, neglected to file any pleading in reply to Winger's suit.

After presenting Winger's case, Miss Anna F. Hedrick, his attorney, moved that since Raby had filed no pleading he be forbidden to present testimony at the hearing.

Judge Brown granted the motion and ordered the association to pay Winger the $500. Raby noted an exception to the ruling, thus paving the way for a possible appeal to the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Navy Chief Yeoma Sought Here for Embezzlement

A Navy chief yeoman wanted for embezzlement of $500 was being sought in Washington last night by naval and police authorities.

The yeoman, about 35 years old, also is wanted for being absent without leave. Navy officials here said that he had "an admirable war record." The $500 was said to belong to a private organization.

Police said he was seen last on Saturday in Annapolis, Md., driving his automobile, which bore Virginia license tags.

Dr. Bilmanis Dies, Latvian Minister

Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, Latvian Minister to the United States since 1935, died suddenly yesterday morning at 3:30 at Rehoboth Beach, Del., where he was vacationing.

Dr. Bilmanis

Dr. Bilmanis, who was 61, had been vacationing at Rehoboth since July 1. He had planned to return to Washington at the end of this week. Death was attributed to coronary thrombosis.

Although Latvia has not been an independent nation since August, 1939, when it was declared under the Russian sphere of influence, Dr. Bilmanis had never abandoned hope that his country would once again regain its sovereign independence.

Recognized by U. S.

Over-run by the Germans during World War II, later "liberated" by the Russians, Latvia did not regain its independence at war's end in 1945. Long before, Dr. Bilmanis had been recognized as the diplomatic Latvian representative in this country, a position he held until his death. At the time of his death he was deputy holder of Latvian state emergency powers abroad.

He was recognized by the State Department as the official representative of the Latvian people. His subsistence was provided by the State Department out of Latvian funds frozen in the United States at the outset of World War II.

Last year, Dr. Bilmanis in a published letter declared:

"The Latvian nation since time immemorial has belonged to occidental civilization and liberal progress, based on Christian idealism. Hence it has always been ready to cooperate, and has cooperated with other democratic nations. Also now it would be ready to cooperate to the fullest extent if it could regain its sovereign independence."

Born in Riga

Born in Riga, February 11, 1887, Dr. Bilmanis attended the University of Moscow, where he graduated in 1910 in history and law. He later studied at Strasbourg and received a doctorate from the University of Vilna in Poland.

A contributor to the Encyclopedia Britannica and author of a number of works of history, Dr. Bilmanis also worked as a journalist and newspaper editor.

He was an honorary member of the Latvian Press Society and founder of the Penn Club in Riga.

Survived by Wife

In 1920, Dr. Bilmanis was appointed Chief of the Press in the Latvian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. In 1927, he was made Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary. He was a subdelegate to the League of Nations in 1930 and in 1932 started a three-year tour as minister to Moscow.

He was appointed to represent his country here in 1935.

Dr. Bilmanis is survived by his wife, Mme. Haline Bilmanis, who was with him when he died.

The body will lie in state at the legation here until Thursday morning.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m., at Sacred Heart Church, 16th st. and Park rd. nw. Burial will be in this country, although the place has not been selected, a legation spokesman said.

Reburial Rites for Lieut. Porter Set Wednesday at Falls Church

Funeral services for First Lieut. Robert Clyde Porter, AC, 23, a native Washingtonian, who died in the Sicilian campaign of World War II, will be held Wednesday at 11 a. m. at the Chevy Chase funeral home, 5101 Wisconsin ave. nw. Reburial will be in the National Memorial Park near Falls Church, Va.

Mr. Porter

Lieutenant Porter was the son of the District Fire Department's chief engineer, Stephen T. Porter, who retired from the department on March 1, 1946. He lived at 4320 46th st. nw.

Educated in District public graduated from Western High School about 1937 and lacked a semester of graduating from the University of Maryland when he enlisted in the aviation cadet training program in November, 1941.

Commissioned in the summer of 1942, Lieut. Porter was assigned as a pilot with the Forty-fifth Squadron of the 316th Group of the Troop Carrier Command, and served with the command during the African and Sicilian campaigns. He was reported killed in action on July 11, 1943.

Besides his father, Lieut. Porter is survived by a sister, Mrs. Claire Porter Farr, and two brothers, Leonard Porter, who is a private in the Fire Department's No. 6 Engine Company, and Stephen O. Porter, who is assistant manager and assistant cashier of the Riggs National Bank's Friendship branch office. Lieut. Porter's mother, Mrs. Sarah Lillian Porter, died May 22, 1947.

Funeral Services Set Today For Miss Margaret Baxter

Funeral services for Miss Margaret Baxter, 52, of 2331 20th st. nw., who died Sunday morning at Doctor's Hospital, will be held today at 3 p. m. at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Rear Admiral William N. Thomas, chief of the Navy chaplains corps, and the Rev. Thomas Stone of the National Presbyterian Church, will officiate at services. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Born on Mare Island, Calif., Miss Baxter had been a Washington resident since 1922, when she came to this city with her parents, the late Commodore and the late Mrs. W. J. Baxter.

A gifted artist, she did fashion art work for concerns here for many years, and directed arts and crafts work at several summer camps. She was cited for assistance in blood donor work with the Red Cross here and in Charlottesville, Va., where she visited from 1945 to 1947.

She leaves a sister, Mrs. M. W. Hutchinson, wife of Captain Myron W. Hutchinson, USN, of Annapolis, Md.; an uncle, Lord Macmillan, of Surrey, England; an aunt, Miss Ethel Belle Macmillan of Edinburgh, Scotland; and two nephews, Ensign David Hutchinson, USNR, and Kenneth Hutchinson.

Liberia Day Celebrated At Embassy Reception

IN THE COOL GARDEN of the Liberian Legation last evening, guests gathered under a striped marquee around small tables centered with red, white and blue flowers. The occasion was a reception in celebration of Liberia Day, the day in 1847 when Liberia was first declared independent.

As a symbol of the fact that their country is the first and only independent state in West Africa, the Liberians have placed in the corner of their red and white striped flag a single white star against a blue background.

The Minister of Liberia and Mrs. King received their guests last evening from 8 to 10 o'clock in the gray drawing room of the legation. Emerald green, soft rose and chartreuse colors brightened the room, and on a side table rested a bouquet of white frangipan, the national flower of Liberia. Mrs. King wore a gray chiffon gown with gray lace bodice, and on her shoulder was pinned a corsage of red, white and blue flowers.

Three large buffet tables were set up at the reception last night. One was on the veranda, one on the lawn and one in the dining room. Each table was centered with red roses, white gladioli and blue larkspur. There were turkeys, salads, baked hams, ices, champagne, and everything that goes to make a superb supper.

Over 350 guests attended, including a visitor from Liberia, Emmett Harmon, secretary to the President of Liberia. The Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet were invited, as well as the Ambassador of Belgium, Baron Silvercruys; the Ambassador of Italy, Alberto Tarchiani; the Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin M. Elizalde, and the Ambassador of Russia, Alexander S. Panyushkin.

Others included the Ambassador of Nicaragua and Senora de Sevilla-Sacasa; the Ambassador of Haiti, Joseph D. Charles; the Minister of Ethiopia, Ras H. S. Imru; the Charge d'Affaires of India and Mme. Nehru; the Minister of South Africa, H. T. Andrews; the Minister of Iran and Mme. Noury-Esfandiary; the Minister of Uruguay and Senora de Mora; the newly-appointed United States Ambassador to India and Mrs. Loy Henderson, and the Assistant Secretary of State, George V. Allen.

THE Misses Glover, pretty daughters of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cato D. Glover of Washington and Camden, S. C., who will make their debuts this Christmas at a tea at home. Miss Barbara Glover (left) and Miss Katherine Glover (right) spend their time these days out at the Chevy Chase Club in the swimming pool or on the tennis courts. The two girls will attend George Washington University in the fall, concentrating on an extension course at Corcoran Art Gallery

Embassy to Mark Indian Anniversary By Giving Service

In the traditions of Mahatma Gandhi's ideals of service, the Indian Embassy will celebrate the anniversary of India's first year of independence on August 15, in prayer and social service.

Ladies of the embassy are seeking permission of hospital authorities in the city to visit hospitals, distribute magazines and relieve the nurses of some of their chores.

Argentine Visitors Honored at Party

THE Assistant Military Attache of the Argentine and Senora de Fernandez entertained yesterday at a cocktail party in honor of two visitors from the Argentine, Vice Admiral Juan Caranza, head of operations of the Argentine navy, and Mrs. Caranza.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of the Argentine, Jeronimo Remorino; the Argentine Ambassador to the Pan American Union, Enrique V. Corominos; the Minister Plenipotentiary and Senora de Drago, the Military Attache and Senora de Lucero, the Naval Attache and Senora de Rumbo, and a number of other embassy staff members and their wives.

Also a guest at the fete was Mrs. Henry P. Lewis, whose daughter, Mrs. Gilbert Wilkes 3d, of Newport, R. I., is expected in town today for a visit.

Vistiors Staying at Blair Lee House

Moras Fete Uruguayan Official

THE MINISTER of the Interior of Uruguay and Mrs. Zubiria were honored at a reception yesterday by the Charge d'Affaires of Uruguay and Mrs. Mora, who entertained in their apartment at Hotel 2400. Guests were received between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock.

As the Minister of the Interior in Uruguay is also Prime Minister of his country, the distinguished visitors are guests of the Government at Blair Lee House. Today Dr. Zubiria will see Secretary of State George C. Marshall at 2:30 o'clock and tomorrow he will be received by the President at noon.

The Minister is on his way home to Uruguay, having attended the International Labor Conference at San Francisco. Dr. Juan Angel Lorenzi, who accompanied him to the conference, and Mrs. Lorenzi were among the guests at the reception yesterday.

Others included the Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet, the Ambassador of Italy, Alberto Tarchiani; the Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Carnevali, the Ambassador of the Argentine, Jeronimo Remorino; the Ambassador of Brazil, Maurico Nabuco; the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon, the Ambassador of Paraguay, Juan Felix Morales; the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Jean Guardia, the Ambassador of Peru and Senora de Ferreyros, and Ambassador of Columbia and Senora de Restrepo-Jaramillo and many other Latin-American diplomats.

Mrs. Mora, who is one of the loveliest of diplomatic hostesses, received her guests in a black ankle length frock pinned with orchids at the shoulder. Her guest of honor was also costumed in black and also wore orchids.

Senora de Caceres came without her husband, the Ambassador of Honduras; and Stanley Woodward, chief of Protocol was there without Mrs. Woodward. The Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Belt were missed as they are still in Cuba.

The Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro attended, as well as the Ambassador of Bolivia and Senora de Martinez Vargas, Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tewkesbury, Senator Harry P. Cain, Representative and Mrs. Aime J. Forand, Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher Winslow, Edward Tomlinson and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. U. S. Grant, 3d.

THE AMBASSADOR of the Dominican Republic and Mrs. Thomen will entertain at cocktails tomorrow afternoon from 6 to 8 o'clock at the embassy, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newbegin. The latter couple are leaving soon for Colombia, where Mr. Newbegin has been appointed First Secretary of the United States Embassy.

THE AMBASSADOR of Pakistan, M. A. H. Ispahani, has issued invitations to a reception on Monday, August 16, from 6 to 8 o'clock, to celebrate Pakistan Day. It will be the first party held at the new embassy, at 2343 S st. nw.

Simple Ways to Look Cooler

Girls can look lots cooler in warm weather by observing a few simple rules.

"Wear your hair simply, off face and neck," an article in the August issue of Good Housekeeping advises. "Wash it oftener. Brush and comb it oftener, too, to avoid the limp straggling look that is so hot and messy.

"Get up earlier, move more slowly, take your time. Give the impression of order and cleanliness by scrupulous good grooming. Take twice as many baths; use lavendar, pine, or fresh-scented bath salts.

"Keep your hands meticulously clean, manicured. Wear washable white gloves. If your skin is good, wear little make-up. If it needs disguise, use cake make-up that won't get shiny, stays put.

"Pat dusting powder on you ahd in your girdle. Splash on cologne for fragrance and quick coolness.

"Dust powder on feet and in shoes. If feet swell in the heat, rub them with foot cream, change shoes often."

Six to Sixties Like Barbecues

Backyard Suppers Are Summer Treats

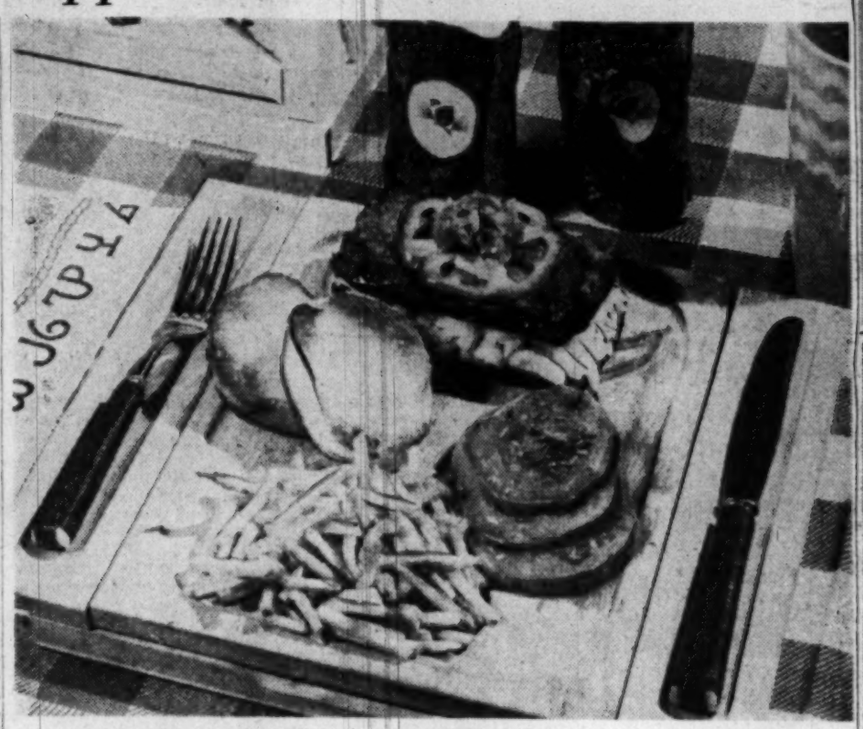
By Harriet Jean Anderson

OUTDOOR entertaining has an appeal that few of us can resist. Flickering flames, wisps of pungent charcoal smoke, the heady aroma of sizzling meat mingled with boiling coffee — who can fail to develop a whale of an appetite?

Rightly speaking, outdoor cooking — or barbecuing — is a man's prerogative. It harks back to cavemen's pursuits, big game hunts, coal-glowing pits and roasting wild steers. And today, even under a more sophisticated guise, it still calls for man-sized meals and man-selected foods.

There's a lot of talk going around about the right technique for barbecuing. Every self-styled chef has his particular way of cooking a steak, his favorite recipe for a barbecue sauce and his most palate-satisfying menu. But if outdoor entertaining is a novel procedure for you, have no fear. It's a wide open field. Food is food and if it's good, your guests will eat it and love it. There will be no criticism of your way of preparing it.

Start with a simple menu for a small-circle supper. Give it a few family trials and you will be ready to compete with the barbecue professionals. Have a pattern of service, then vary it, enlarge it, dress it up or down as the occasion warrants. You'll find that barbecuing is the easiest way in the world to entertain. Try it sometime soon.



FILL split hamburgers with whatever you wish, serve with french fried potatoes, broiled tomatoes and toasted English muffins

STUFFED BREAST OF LAMB BARBECUE

2 breasts of lamb
3 cups soft bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon thyme or marjoram
½ medium-sized onion, minced
8 stuffed olives, sliced
8 broiled mushrooms, sliced
Capers
1/3 cup butter, melted
Barbecue sauce

Wipe breasts of lamb. Combine remaining ingredients except the sauce and toss lightly. Stuff and tie breasts together securely and roast on spit over heavy coals, allowing 30 minutes a pound. Baste frequently with barbecue sauce. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

TEXAS BARBECUE SAUCE

1 pint chili sauce
1½ cups minced onion
1 cup water
1 cup wine vinegar
1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce
1 pint cooking or salad oil
1 cup Worcestershire sauce
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon fresh thyme, minced
½ teaspoon minced fresh tarragon

Combine all ingredients and let simmer 1 hour. If possible, let stand 24 hours before using. Heat and use as basting sauce for pork, beef, veal or lamb. Lield: 2 quarts sauce.

CHARLIBURGERS

2 pounds boneless rump or round steak
Freshly ground pepper
Salt
1 Bermuda onion, finely chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
Green pepper rings
2 tomatoes, cut in ¼-inch slices
4 slices American cheese (optional)
Minced chives
½ cup tart relish

Have meat freshly ground. Pat lightly into cakes 2x4x1 inches. Place on grill and quickly sear one side. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; turn and sear other side. Slice lengthwise and cover with remaining ingredients. Lay second half of hamburger on top. Serve with relish and toasted buns. Yield: 4 portions.

CHUCK WAGON POTATOES

4 large potatoes, sliced lengthwise
2 medium-sized onions, sliced
½ cup bacon or meat drippings
Salt and pepper
4 eggs

Cook potatoes until barely tender in boiling salted water. Cook onions until brown and tender in hot fat, adding potatoes after 5 minutes. Season to taste, using plenty of pepper. Turn occasionally and when vegetables are done break eggs over top of potatoes, stirring so as to break yolks. Cook over very low heat without mixing until eggs are set. Serve immediately. Yield: 6 portions.

CHARLIE SWISHER'S GRILLED CORN

Select fresh ears of corn and leave in husks. Sprinkle lightly with water and lay on grill 5 or 6 inches above heavy coals. Cook until corn is tender, 5 to 10 minutes, turning frequently.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

Have lamb or pork spareribs cut in 1-rib serving pieces. Place in toasting rack and cook about 5 inches above heavy bed of coals 25 minutes, turning every 5 minutes. Brush with barbecue sauce and cook 10 or 15 minutes longer.

MARINADE CRUE

1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon black pepper.
3 onions, finely sliced.
3 carrots, finely sliced.
2 whole cloves.
1 bay leaf.
1 clove garlic, crushed.
10 black peppercorns.
4 sprigs of parsley.
2 cups red or white wine.
½ cup cooking oil.

Season meat to be marinated and place in a deep dish; add remaining ingredients. Refrigerate in marinade 2 or 3 days, basting and turning occasionally.

BARBECUED CHICKENS

Selecting young chickens weighing 1½ to 2 pounds and split as for broiling. Marinate in Marinade Crue 5 or 6 hours. Broil halves on grill over heavy bed of coals, cooking inside first, skin side last; or cook whole chickens on a spit, turning and basting frequently with barbecue sauce.

BONFIRE CARMEL APPLES

Pierce stem end of apple and roast over coals on skewers until the skin loosens. Peel off skin and roll hot apple in a pan of brown sugar or shaved maple sugar. Return the sugared apple to the fire and turn it slowly while the sugar melts into candy.

SHISHKABOBS

small eggplant, cut in cubes.
slices of pineapple.
pound raw mushrooms.
3 Bermuda onions, cut in ¼-inch slices.
6 firm tomatoes, cut in wedges.
Salt and pepper.

Arrange foods on six 24-inch skewers and broil 20 to 30 minutes, 4 or 5 inches above heavy coals. Season and serve with sliced French bread. Yield: Six portions.

BARBECUED LAMB OR VEAL BURGERS

1 1-3 pounds lean lamb or veal, ground
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 slices bacon
Barbecue sauce
6 slices pineapple
Melted butter
6 toasted buns

Use lean meat from breast, neck, shank or shoulder for grinding. Season and shape into patties 1-inch thick to fit on skewers. Wrap a strip of bacon around each and secure with toothpicks. Broil 3 or 4 inches above heavy coals until browned and tender. Baste with barbecue sauce as meat cooks. Add pineapple rings and continue broiling. Brush buns with barbecue sauce. Place burgers on buns and top with pineapple slices.

Yield: Six portions.

FISH SHASHLIK

Bacon
Cubes of fresh salmon
Scallops
Large shrimp
2-inch pieces filet of flounder
Pieces of cooked lobster
Salt and pepper
Minced barlic
Minced garlic
Sherry
Chopped chives
1 recipe of Hollandaise sauce
Garlic toasted French bread

The size and amount of ingredients depend on the size and number of skewers. Cut strips of bacon in half and wrap around pieces of fish, securing on skewer. Fill skewer in order listed. Season with salt, pepper and minced garlic and cook 4 to 5 inches above heavy coals 10 to 15 minutes. Heat sherry, ignite it and pour over shashlik. Sprinkle with chopped chives and serve with Hollandaise sauce and French bread rings.

Where to Sell Austrian Crystal

While my husband was in Austria as a GI he wanted to buy some really beautiful crystal, and therefore sought out the best glass engraver he could find. He admired the man because of his unusual skill and wonderful personality. He told the man if there was anything he could do to help him to write him.

Several months ago, the Austrian wrote and said he was in need of clothing and food for his family and would greatly appreciate our trying to sell some of his work sending him food, etc., in return instead of money. We have had samples he sent appraised and an experienced person places a much higher value than did the sender. However, it is difficult to find a market for such fine glass. (One punch bowl engraved with the four seasons is appraised at from $750 to $1000, but his asking price is much lower.) How might we find shops or persons interested in such crystalware? E. B.

The buyer for a local china and glass firm suggests that you write to the Business Office, 225 5th ave., New York, N. Y. A number of importers are located at this address and they can channel your letter to the person best equipped to give you advice in this matter.

Where in Washington can I obtain long skewers for cooking kabobs, etc.? I prefer them with wooden handles. I've tried a number of stores, but found them in only one here, where they sold for $2.25 apiece!
H. A. K.

The only place, besides the one you mention, where we have found skewers in stock has a set of four with metal handles for $1.29. You can reach this store by calling District 2189. Any other suggestions, readers?

Since your column has been a great help to me, I would like to return the favor with some suggestions for B. F., who is interested in making an awning. I strongly advise against trying to make an awning of that size (18 feet x 10 feet). We experienced a similar problem and found that there are many tricks involved. There are certain fixtures needed and only certain types or canvas will stand up under the wear of sun, wind, and rain. Our porch is flagstone, 11 feet x 13 feet. We made measurements for our frame and had our plumber cut and thread the pipe (¾ inch is required.). We needed only a pipe wrench to put up the frame. (At about 20 cents per foot, the pipe was $20.)

Out of eight awning makers we called, only two would come to estimate. We found that they do not cover just any type of frame. It has to be right or corrected, otherwise they refuse to touch it. They require a certain number of supports, rafters and amount of pitch. They much prefer to be called before the framework is started on a job they are to cover, and are more than glad to advise on fixtures needed and exactly how to do it. There is no extra charge for this service because it saves them trouble in the long run. (It takes three to four weeks to get the awning made at this season.)

We now have a beautiful awning in dark red with white fringe which cost us $96, but it is well worth it. It fits snugly and is sturdy and completely storm-worthy. The company which gave us the excellent advice and prompt service may be reached by calling Atlantic 2805. I'll gladly answer any questions for B. F. at Wisconsin 1159. W. C. J.

Many thanks for your very helpful letter. I'm sure it will be appreciated by B. F.

Advice to Thin Girls

Keep That Healthy Vacation Appetite

By Ida Jean Kain

Fun-loving Gail Russell, Paramount star, looks as if she's hooked a big one. On vacation, throw cares away, thin girls . . . and to gain, hang onto the healthy appetite vacation brings

AS SUMMER simmers on, you thin girls are quite likely to lose your appetite . . . and not get it back again until Thanksgiving. You're just too hot and tired to bother about eating. So you get droopier and wearier and feel less inclined to eat—and the pounds start melting off.

You don't have to be the loser this summer. If you'll put your mind to it, you can pick up curves despite the heat wave. Your problem is partly malnutrition—you can eat to beat the heat.

That fickle appetite of yours has to be handled with care. Give it a boost by stepping up your intake of vitamin B-1, scientifically termed thiamin. Ask your doctor about taking 5 or 10 milligrams of thiamin a day. In addition to stimulating appetite, it feeds the nerves and promotes better digestion.

You may be skeptical, but your appetite would thrive on more food. Haven't you noticed how much more you eat during vacation—and how much more you feel like eating? Of course, the feeling is probably the cause here, but it's just as sure to be an effect. Eating is a sure way to build a healthy desire for food, and eating can be largely habit. So this summer don't let that vacation appetite slip away as soon as you're back on the job. Encourage it.

If you ate a good breakfast at the seashore or in the mountains, why slip back into the old black-coffee-and-toast routine? Get up ahead of the alarm clock—hot weather isn't conductive to late sleeping anyhow—and take time to eat a good breakfast every day.

What's on the menu? All sorts of tempting things: Crispy, ready-to-eat cereal with fresh peaches or berries, served with milk and cream. . . . Two slices of hot buttered toast, perhaps with honey. . . . And a glass of milk or coffee. Alternate days have bacon and eggs instead of cereal, and toast different kinds of bread. . . . Try pumpernickel, raisin, and the baker's special "home-made" variety. A good breakfast helps anyone stand up to the heat of the day because it furnishes energy.

Switch to a citrus fruit juice for the between-meal pickup. Since there's a connection between lack of vitamin C and heat exhaustion, there's nothing better in hot weather than a big glass of orange juice or grapefruit juice. Tomato juice is refreshing, too.

If possible, eat lunch at the same time every day. Going beyond the usual hour can dull your appetite and make you indifferent to food.

After work, if you don't feel like eating, go for a swim. A dip in a cool pool and you'll be all set for a leisurely dinner. . . . Just the way you were on vacation.

It's a promise—three good, regular meals a day this summer will boost both your spirits and your weight.

Cooking Cues

Use moderate heat when making croutons on top of the range. To prepare, cut crusts from bread slices, dice and saute in butter or margarine in a large skillet or wide-based saucepan, turning very frequently, until a golden brown.

Cooked rice is excellent added to chicken and celery salad; it not only gives a pleasing texture contrast but is a good extender. The rice used in this way should be cooked only until done and then spread in a wide pan and dried in the oven.

Strawberries, pineapple and rhubarb team up well in a fruit cup, a salad, a pie or a pudding.

Sliced fresh apricots, combined with celery and nutmeats make a delightful summer salad. Serve on shredded salad greens and garnish with mayonnaise.

Fresh pears have an affinity for blue or Roquefort cheese. Serve them together as is or peel the pears, halve and core, and arrange on water cress or shredded lettuce with a mixture of French dressing and the crumbled blue or Roquefort cheese in each cavity.

Try baking a meat loaf mixture in a square pan, then cutting it in squares for serving.

The Easy Way of House Work

Some easy ways to do odd jobs around the house are suggested by extension specialists from several States:

When putting new elastic in a garment, pin the end of the new to the worn elastic. Then as the worn elastic pulls out, the new elastic will pull in.

Keep a stiff brush near the laundry tubs. Before putting garments into the wash, turn any pockets inside out and brush thoroughly. The brush will be handy also for brushing soapsuds on especially soiled places, such as neckbands, collars and cuffs.

The finger of an old glove or a thimble, placed over the end of a curtain rod, helps the curtain slip onto the rod easily without catching or tearing.

To paint a stairway which must be used while the paint is drying, paint every other step. Then when the first set of steps is dry, the alternate steps may be painted.

When packing cake in waxed paper, sprinkle the paper with powdered sugar first. This helps the frosting to stick to the cake and not to the paper.

Stick a piece of adhesive tape on the wall before putting in tacks to hold pictures. This helps prevent the tack from cracking the plaster.

Shrimp Aspic Is Hot Weather Dish

For a new way to serve fresh shrimp, try this "Shrimp Aspic" recipe from the Fishery Council. It may be made many hours in advance of the meal at which it is to be served. This makes it a perfect dish for "dog days." And what's more, it's served chilled, too. Shrimp is in good supply right now.

SHRIMP ASPIC

½ cup cold water
2 cups stock
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped pickle
6 olives sliced
2 cups cooked shrimp

Add gelatin to cold water; heat stock to boiling; add lemon juice and gelatin; stir until dissolved. Combine with pickles and olives. Cut shrimp lengthwise; add to mixture. Pour into oiled 8-inch ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on platter; serve with Horseradish sauce. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Should Be Covered

Do not leave food uncovered in the kitchen for hours at a time. If the food must cool before placing it in the ice box, put a lid over it and avoid dust or bugs flying into it.

Letting Child 'Cry It Out' Is Not Good Discipline

There is something agonizing to the listener in hearing a baby scream. Yet allowing a child to "cry it out," as a means of teaching him that crying is useless, is an all too popular method of discipline. It's one of those things which persist in the older textbooks on child care though abandoned and decried in the newer ones. But mothers keep on quoting the phrase as if it had some magic value.

It means, that if the baby wakens in the middle of the night—for any reason whatever—he is expected to scream himself back to sleep—unless the neighbors object.

It means, if the child has not been satisfied with the food given it, or has been made uncomfortable, or in pain because of it, that he has to scream it out, because his mother thinks he's had enough or he ought to know better than to cry between meals.

Put thus baldly the discipline shows itself up in all its evil colors. What is preventing the baby from going to sleep, or sleeping? That is the problem for the parents to work out, judging naptimes, possible hours of night sleep, play at bedtime, diet and all the rest.

Why should a child be punished for lack of satisfaction, or because the food upsets him? It is decidedly not his fault and so why force him to use up precious energy trying to show his mother that something is wrong.

All in all, there never seems to be one really legitimate reason for parents to put a child away from them and make him scream in order to prove to him that screaming is useless. The habit of screaming is learned, like all other habits, and is then put to good use on every possibly occasion. The habit of not crying, because the child's wants are intelligently fulfilled, makes for a good child. He doesn't think of using screaming as a method of conquering his parents. It is high time that screaming, as an educational measure, fell into the oblivion it so richly deserves.

High Waist Returns to Fashion In New British Collections

By Geraldine Hill

London, July 26 (U.P.).—The artificially high waist, that awkward fashion of the 1920's, was back again today as Britain's top dress designers began to show their fall and winter collections.

Digby Morton, Britain's conservative couturier, gave the high waist to almost all his day and evening models.

For those who don't remember, the high waist is gathered in way above the true waist front and back. It lends an absurd out-of-proportion look to most women, although it is a favorite designer's trick for adding deceptive inches to short women and subtracting inches from mothers to be.

The high waisted look was in a directoire coat of plum brocade, gathered high above the natural waist line at the back. The coat was worn over a claret velvet, high waisted dress. It was also featured in a slim black dress with side fastenings of jet buttons worn under a directoire jacket, also high waisted in stone beige.

In his L-shaped salon in Mayfair the Irish-born designer also showed a lot of knife pleats which the British call crystal pleats. One of his most popular models was a black velveteen suit, its skirt pleated in back, worn with a belted hip length jacket.

His details include intricate seaming, pockets on the sides, back or front of suits and topcoats and side fastenings. His skirt lengths were unchanged—10 to 13 inches. Materials included fine British tweeds and soft French velvets. His colors were muted—putty, butterscotch, gray, mole and mistle blue.

Outstanding in his show were:

COCA COLA—A black wrap-around coat with one lapel a tobacco brown. It was worn over a black dress whose collar and lapels of brown satin were jet embroidered. The gently flaring skirt had two blocks of pleats in front.

COLD SHOULDER—An evening gown, one shoulder bare, the other covered, in green embroidered with jet.

DANDY—An olive green suit with a high regency collar of jet-embroidered black velvet.

In other collections, the hour-glass silhouette, which fashion purveyors have dubbed "The New Look," was essentially unchanged. These collections, aimed at capturing the attention of American women, favored: Low revealing necklines for evening gowns, a new color called mud, back fullness in skirts which were 8 to 14 inches from the ground.

Jo Mattli, Swiss-born couturier and a newcomer to London, led off the seven-day display with 25 models in his gray and pink Mayfair salon. He emphasized a lower hipline than last year and directed last year's front fullness toward the back. Skirts were 12 inches from the ground for country wear, but 8 inches for cocktail suits and afternoon dresses.

Mattli defined his silhouette as "essentially feminine" with sloping shoulders, rounded hips and wasp waists—the old "new look." Mattli showed cutaway jackets, and most of his skirts, although full to accentuate the ankle, were not as voluminous as last year. He had jersey dresses to wear under loose coats, dressy black cocktail suits and dresses alternating with red, copper and gray.

One of the Matti's suits had a second and long skirt. When it was donned the jacket was removed to show an evening dress with black lace covering a flesh-colored pink top. He used Nottingham lace and net in two low-necked evening dresses with swirl skirts. Highlights were horn buttons and belts, mother of pearl and porcelain buttons, corkscrew-shaped umbrellas with almost every suit and afternoon ensemble.

Blue, Beige Are Princess' Colors

London, July 26 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth gave the royal nod today to two new colors—tide blue and golden beige.

The British Color Council said the blue is a "light smoky turquoise" and the beige is "a deep corn color." Both are on display at the council's fall and winter exhibition.

But, the council added, the fact the princess is sponsoring the colors does not necessarily mean she will wear them.

Miss Stark Wins Sketching Prize

Miss Pearle Stark was awarded first prize of the "Easter Parade" sketching contest at a fashion show sponsored by the Emily Shop.

Washingtonians were invited to sketch the authentic M-G-M costumes worn by Judy Garland and Ann Miller in "Easter Parade" on display in the Emily Shop F st. window for two weeks.

Shaw Reaches 92, Enjoying 'Being Ninety'

Ayot St. Lawrence, England, July 26 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw passed his ninety-second birthday today indulging in his favorite recreation—"being ninety."

And he intends to enjoy that pastime for a long while, the Irish sage said.

Shaw, who dismisses his birthdays with "rubbish," or an explosive "bah," perhaps has shrunk a little physically but mentally he still is eminently alert and amusing.

The bite of his wit and wisdom is practically as potent as ever and his mind is fixed on rounding out a century. His general health is said to be better than it was a year ago and he has fully recovered from a recent chill he caught while strolling in the rain.

Shaw himself gives much of the credit for his longevity to his vegetarian diet, teetotalism and extremely careful rules of living. His sight and hearing have fallen off a bit but he still can read without glasses and listen to normal talk without strain.

He completed a play in the past year entitled "Buoyant Millions," but Shaw himself prefers the subtitle, "A Comedy of No Manners." The play will have its premiere in Zurich this fall and its first British performance at the 1949 Malvern festival. He also has started another comedy and written a postscript to his famous Fabian essays.

Until the nations of the world get the right kind of leadership, Shaw believes we shall continue to have trouble. But he says "no European country can afford a war, least of all Russia.'

Truman-Stalin Meeting Proposal Not Received

By The Associated Press

The White House said yesterday President Truman has received no official proposal for a meeting with Premier Stalin on the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman's position continues to be that Stalin would be welcomed in Washington, but that the President has no intention of leaving the United States for such a talk.

Ross said he knows of no proposal for a meeting of Mr. Truman, Stalin and the heads of state of Britain and France.

Television Same As Broadcasting, Promoters Say

Baltimore, July 26 (AP).—The Baltimore City Circuit Court today was asked whether television comes within the legal definition of a radio broadcast.

Arena Realty Corporation, New York, in an injunction suit filed by the Century Athletic Club, contended that a telecast is not a broadcast.

The club, which promotes fights in a building owned by Arena Realty, contends that television is just a development of radio broadcasting. The club's suit seeks the right to have its fight programs televised. The court reserved decision.

NEW YORK.—John Golden, the producer, has a time-saving arrangement at Sardi's restaurant about his checks: Sardi never submits a check to him, but adds the waiter's tips to the check and sends it to Golden's auditor. Recently Golden was host at a luncheon attended by Martyn Green, star of the D'Oyly Carte, and Mrs. Green. When they left, Mrs. Green said: "I didn't see anybody pay the check." Golden told her: "Mr. Sardi never charges when I bring in someone who is beautiful or famous" . . . Mrs. Green turned to her husband and said: "He didn't pay because you're famous" . . . "No, dear," said Green. "Because you're beautiful."

Massine is returning to New York August 2 to stage four ballets for the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. Danilova and Markova will be starred . . . George Whitney, chairman of the board of J. P. Morgan, is the man who intervened and settled the strike of employes at the Harvard Club.

Walter Reuther, head of the Auto Workers Union, will announce his indorsement of Cord Meyer, jr.'s, United World Federalists . . . Danny O'Neil may get the coveted singing spot on Jack Benny's radio series this fall.

A publisher told this story in the Stork Club last night—of A. S. Trude, the famed Chicago trial lawyer, and the distinguished Dr. Billings. They lived next door to each other. One day Dr. Billings testified as a medical expert against Trude. Trude's cross-examination of his eminent neighbor was brief: "Was Marshall Field, sr., one of your patients?" he began. Dr. Billings said "Yes." Trude asked: "Where is Mr. Field now?" and the doctor said "Dead." Trude named other patients of his—Mr. Armour, Mr. Pullman, Mr. Cudahy, all of whom had died natural deaths. Each time Trude asked: "Where is he now?" and each time Dr. Billings had to answer "Dead." . . . "That's all, thank you," the lawyer concluded, and won his case.

Konrad Bercovici, the author, has gone to Israel to lend his writing talents to the government . . . Some of the ads on "The Naked and the Dead" have a strange design in the corner: Circles looped over a tic-tac-toe. They were doodles by one of the designers whose superior thought they were intended to be part of the design, and approved them . . . Georgie Tapps, the dancer, is about to embark on his first dance-concert tour . . . The first ones to benefit from the Democratic convention were the Beau Jesters, a quartet of singers. Olsen & Johnson saw their telecast and signed them.

When Dr. James Bryant Conant became president of Harvard University, one of his friends expressed regret at this decision. "You're a great chemist," he told Dr. Conant. "The presidency of a university is an important job, but is it worth sacrificing the career you have in science?" . . . "I gave it a great deal of thought," said Dr. Conant. "I am 40 years of age. Rarely does a great scientific contribution come from a man over 40."

Paul Denis, the radio columnist and author of books on show business, awoke one morning last week and found that all the water had been turned off. Denis shaved by wetting his face with ice cubes from the refrigerator . . . When General Pershing was in an oxygen tent, during his illness in 1938, he said: "When I go, I want to wear the old tunic I wore in action, and not one of the newer ones. But don't rush to get one. There is plenty of time."

What Price Safety?

One can appreciate the concern that parents show about their children's safety. But, many times, the emotional crippling that comes from too much protection may be worse than a few bruises, a cut or even a broken leg.

Using fear to teach a child to avoid danger may develop a continuing timidity that will get in the way of a child being accepted by his playmates. Too much coddling very likely will develop an emotional dependence on the protecting parent from which the growing child cannot free himself.

What then is the answer?

One good one, at least, is to help the child build ways of protecting himself. Take tree-climbing, for instance. There is no question that a fall from a tree may be serious. One can protect against this in one of two ways. The child may be forbidden to climb trees. Or he may be shown how to climb them with care—always being sure he has a firm grip with one hand before releasing his hold with the other. There still may be some accidents but the chances are slim, and he is not being denied the fun and the muscle-building that is a part of this activity.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Urged 'to Phone Stalin'

By Drew Pearson

President Truman got some interesting suggestions on the Berlin crisis the other day from James Patton, rugged boss of the National Farmers Union, who urged him to "do something dramatic."

PATTON

"If I were President," blurted the Rocky Mountain farmer, "I would call Premier Stalin on the phone, tell him we had a bad situation on our hands and say I wanted to meet him in Berlin to talk it over."

"Jim," the President smiled, "I can't be dramatic. I'm not the dramatic type."

But he assured the farm leader that "ways can be worked out" to settle the explosive Berlin question without war.

Patton had one more question on the international situation.

"How close," he asked solemnly, "are we to war?"

The newspapers, Truman replied, have overplayed the Berlin tension. The Russians, he was convinced, do not want war.

"And we certainly don't want war," added the President.

Note: Patton also told the President that, while Congress had passed farm price supports, it was only the beginning of a long-range farm program. The farmers needed other measures, such as soil conservation, rural electricity, aid to rural schools, etc.

"Well, I'll certainly keep plugging for you," Truman promised.

Housewife Worries

It has now been exactly two years since the Congress of the United States, after hot and hectic debates in the month of July, 1946, voted to sabotage price controls.

Here are the official figures showing the difference between controlled prices and uncontrolled prices since the end of OPA:

Price of meat—Upped 91 per cent since May 15, '46.

Rents—Which remain under controls, increased only 7.6 per cent.

Gas and electricity—Regulated by State and municipal commissions, have increased only 2 per cent.

General food prices—have gone up 241.1 per cent over the 1935-39 average.

Words certain statemen would like to forget (made during the OPA debates two years ago):

Senator Kenneth Wherry, Nebraska Republican "Taft! Taft! Everybody's talking about what Taft has done to OPA. I'm the fellow that knocked out meat control, and I've done more to that bill than anybody else."

Representative John Taber, New York Republican—"OPA is at the present time the chief promoter of inflation."

Senator Robert Taft, Ohio Republican—"Prices somewhat higher than normal tend to increase production. We certainly should not force such a reduction of prices as to interfere with more production."

Representative Reid F. Murray, Wisconsin Republican—"I do not care to vote for any more money for the OPA and thus increase the dangers of starvation . . . Chester Bowles and the other agencies are there to keep businessmen from making a profit."

Representative Henry D. Larcade, Louisiana Democrat—"(OPA) was run in a high-handed, dictatorial and discriminating manner, treating not only the members of Congress but the people of the country as a whole with disdain, disrepect and discourtesy."

Representative Jessie Sumner, Illinois Republican — "Subsidies are just OPA's black-market way of concealing the fact the cost of living is going up and up and your money is buying less and less and less."

Representative William Lemke, North Dakota Republican—"Today the question is should the OPA be liquidated—abolished? My answer is that it should never have been created. It is an un-American, illegitimate child. It was born of foreign parentage."

Representative Carl T. Curtis, Nebraska Republican—"(OPA) is a sham and a fraud. It is one of the prime causes of inflation."

Representative Edward O. McCowen, Ohio Republican—"Let us make the break now, and then let the Price Control Act die its natural death. There will be confusion for a few months. . . Then confusion will end, prices will be stabilized and production will be normal and sufficient."

While the cost of food to the housewife has zoomed, here is what's happened to the dividends of big corporations.

The figures were presented recently by plain-talking Democratic Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming,, as compiled from the Federal Reserve Board and various banking reports, as follows::

1945—$1,943,000,000.
1947—$3,730,000,000.

O'Mahoney also cited a Federal Reserve Board report, stating that business profits this year will exceed the dizzy high of 1947. Pointing to individual corporations which have shared in this bonanza, he reported that General Electric Co. is now making profits in excess of 20 per cent of net worth, General Motors 19.9 per cent, U. S. Steel, 10 per cent.

The 1947 profits of General Electric, before taxes were paid,, were five times greater than its 1939 profits, O'Mahoney charged.

Meanwhile, he declared, wage increases have been obliterated by inflated living costs, as evidenced by the fact that American consumers are paying 37 billion dollars more for whatthey buy this year than in 1946.

LOSING Your HAIR and Your LOOKS ...and Your LOOKS

E. W. FARRELL, Trichologist

ENJOY MORE VIRLE HAIR In 30 DAYS or WE PAY THE FEE!

Give your scalp a chance to grow hair! Don't let simple deterrents like clogged follicles or sluggish circulation stifle your scalp's natural urge to grow strong, healthy hair! Our intensive trichological treatments scientifically combine ultraviolet therapy, professional stimulation and exclusive laboratory-created formulae; they penetrate clogged hair passages, attack subscalp bacteria, eliminate itchiness and irritation, normalize the blood circulation which "feeds" the hair roots, and revitalizes the entire cycle of hair-growing activity. Delay is deadly and may lead to fatal follicle shrinkage. Come in today or tonight for a free comprehensive examination and consultation. Hopeless cases are never accepted. Yes, enjoy your hair's new virle look within 30 days or we'll pay your fee!

Getting Mail

I used to wonder why my mail . . . Was never very much . . . And why I had so few good friends . . . Who cared to keep in touch . . . It seemed the postman never stopped . . . To ring my bell or knock . . . Although he always had some news . . . For others in the block . . . And then one ordinary day . . . With nothing else to do . . . I wrote a lot of letters to . . . The different folks I knew . . . Well, much to my amazenment I . . . Reecived a message back . . . And magically my daily mail . . . Amounted to a stack . . . And so it was not very long . . . Before I saw the light . . . And learned that letters come to those . . . Who take the time to write.

The Hecht Co. Unveils Your Portrait For Fall . . .

Romantic As a Victorian Lady In . . . .

Lush Rayon Brocade

You'll be a picture . . . the center-of-all-eyes . . when you wear the new lady look of fashion this Fall! You'll be enchantingly feminine . . wisely borrowing from the past the long-ago loveliness, the nostalgic charm of magnificent fabrics. You'll rustle as you walk in stiff brocaded rayon taffeta . . . you'll gleam as you move in rich brocaded rayon satin, while the whisper of your skirts pays eloquent compliments. For, lady, you were never lovelier! . . than you'll be in your cherished new dress from The Hecht Co.'s superb collection!

Dress Salon, Third Floor, Washington; Second Floor, Silver Spring
